5,000 CHARGES FACING CAPONE AND 68 OF GANG

Activities in Beer Racket Basis for New Action by Grand Jury.

U.S. CHALLENGE SEEN TO LIQUOR SYNDICATE

Indictment Claims Violation of Prohibition Statute Ever Since 1920.

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—"Scarface Al" Capone, America's most notorious gangster, and 68 of his henchmen were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on 5,000 charges of violation of the prohibition laws.

A recent conviction for contempt of the Federal Court and an indictment on income tax evasion charges paved the way for the Government's challenge of Capone's gigantic syndicate to make and market beer for the Chicago metropolitan area. On this business Capone founded his authority for leadership of Chicago gangs, a position he still holds unchallenged.

The Federal indictment charged Capone and his allies with manufacturing and transporting beer continuously since the national prohibition law became effective in 1920.

Old Aliases Uncovered.

District Attorney George E. O. Johnson pried behind the days of Capone's opulence in obtaining information for the indictment, going back to his early operations here as "Al Brown" and uncovering aliases new in a city which has followed Capone's career of crime for years.

The United States against Alphonse Capone otherwise called Al Brown, A. Costa, Albert Costa, Frank Ross, John Brown, Snorky Capone, Frank Hart and Louis Hart," the indictment read. Then followed the names of the other three-score defendants.

Noticeably absent were the names and aliases of Capone's trusted lieutenants, his brother Ralph, Sam and Jack Guzik, appealing from income tax convictions, and Frank Nitti, the "enforcer," serving a penitentiary term for a similar offense.

Beer Activities Center Action.

Johnson said today's indictment dealt mainly with the beer interests of Capone's organization rather than with the gambling, vice and labor racket branches. It named Joseph Fusco as Capone's beer boss. Ralph Capone, Johnson said, was interested mainly in the gambling operations and at any rate he is already under indictment on liquor conspiracy charges in connection with the Cotton Club and the Montmartre cafes in Cicero, stronghold of the gang.

The indictment was returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who issued the warrant for Capone's arrest last week on income tax violation charges. The $50,000 bond Capone posted last Friday was allowed to stand for today's action.

Many of the other defendants had scheduled bonds of between $2,500 and $10,000 for previous arrests in connection with seizures of stills and breweries.

The Government cited 19 overt acts. It must prove at least one to obtain a conviction. Johnson, asked if he had a good case, replied, "Well, we never indict unless we have one."

Capone Used Name "Al Brown."

Capone purchased a truck from the Betz Motor Co., in Hammond, Ind., December 22, 1922, the indictment alleged, under the name of "Al Brown." He bought another truck June 5, 1923, from the same company, according to the indictment.

John Peterson, John Doyle and George Anderson, it was charged, transported the second truck, containing 32 barrels of beer, to Chicago's Southwest Side. Financial transactions tied up with beer sales, the indictment said, were reported in a telegraphic money order sent to Capone in Miami, Fla., March 14, 1928, by George Howlett.

June 12, 1930, Capone, Fusco, Howlett, Jack Heinan and Bert Delaney met in the Lexington Hotel here, a hideout of the gang, to discuss ways of circumventing the prohibition laws.

Daily Income $75,000.

The indictment recited 200 offenses of manufacturing alcohol and beer at eight Chicago breweries, and 4,000 offenses in transporting that many trucks each containing 30 barrels of beer. The Government did not estimate Capone's profits but prevailing prices for beer indicated the syndicate collected as much as $75,000 a day, or more than $200,000,000 in ten years.

The Government indicted Capone for evading payment of income taxes on only $1,038,654 between 1924 and 1929, saying it was not prepared to prove other extensive earnings.

Four years ago the Capones were indicted for liquor conspiracies.

The charges were dismissed two years later.

Johnson announced tonight that Capone will be arraigned on the income tax indictments before Judge James H. Wilkerson at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

"We will ask that the case be hastened so that it can be finished this summer," Johnson said.

(Associated Press.)

A long quest by the ablest sleuths the Government can muster was a step nearer its climax yesterday with indictment in Chicago of Al Capone and 68 others.

Months ago Federal prosecuting agencies were directed by President

Defeat of MacDonald Seen in Vote Tuesday

Efforts at Compromise in Government Crisis Are Unavailing.

PHILIP SNOWDEN

London, June 12 (A.P.).—Liberal and Labor leaders today made desperate efforts to avert the crisis which threatens the Labor government with defeat Tuesday and consequent dissolution of Parliament and a general election.

As matters stood there were no signs of weakening in the Liberal determination to press for amendment to Philip Snowden's land tax proposals, upon which the fateful vote will be taken Tuesday.

Nor was there any evidence that the Laborites would be willing to accept the Liberal amendment.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, David Lloyd George, Mr. Snowden and Sir Herbert Samuel met today at the official residence of the chancellor of the exchequer, 11 Downing street, and, although their conversations were strictly private, political commentators were confident the whole situation was exhaustively reviewed in the hope that the general election, desired by neither party, might be avoided.

The attitude of Chancellor Snowden, who is understood to be against any form of compromise with the Liberals, has greatly complicated the problem of the MacDonald government. On all sides, however, it was found increasingly difficult to believe that some way out of the impasse would not be discovered before Tuesday.

The Conservatives are making the utmost out of the situation. They will vote to a man against the government, and they are making extraordinary efforts to insure the presence of every member of their party when the vote is taken in the House of Commons.

Party whips have made it clear that all previous engagements must

BERLIN CABINET NEARS FALL AS POPULISTS QUIT

Menace to Parliament Is Seen as Party Deserts Curtius.

BRUENING PAYS VISIT TO VON HINDENBURG

Chancellor and President Seek Aid for Germany; Stock Prices Tumble.

Berlin, June 12 (A.P.).—President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Bruening, deliberating in the quiet of the aged president's ancestral estate in Neudeck, East Prussia, tonight were confronted with momentous decisions vitally affecting the future of Germany.

While the chancellor intended originally to go to Neudeck solely for a first-hand report to the venerable chief of state on the recent Chequers conferences and his talks with Ambassador Sackett, his journey almost overnight became one during which the future of his cabinet probably will be decided.

The situation which developed for the chancellor during his absence in London was serious enough in the universal chagrin at his emergency decrees imposing additional burdens in the form of taxes in an effort to save Germany from financial ruin.

Populists Desert Bruening.

Now, to add to his troubles, one of the mainstays of the cabinet—the Populist party to which Foreign Minister Curtius belongs and which was founded by the late Foreign Minister Stresemann—decided late last night by a vote of 13 to 11 to support the National Socialist, Nationalist and Communist demand for the immediate convocation of the Reichstag.

This virtual disavowal of Curtius was provoked by certain leaders in the party who wish to force the present Bruening cabinet to resign and then have the chancellor appear with a new slate of so-called strong men of Nationalist bent and constitute a virtual "directorium" for governing Germany without Parliament.

Chancellor Bruening put his foot down on this proposal, and left no doubt in anyone's mind before leaving for Neudeck that he would not be a party to any such arrangement. That was more than the populists bargained for, and they have been left up in the air unable to disavow their

ARMS SHIPPED TO CHINA WITH U. S. APPROVAL

Nanking Makes Requests for Licenses Through American Legation.

WAR PREPARATIONS ARE WATCHED HERE

Peace Offer Is Reported Extended to Canton by Nationalists.

(Associated Press.)

Acting on the suggestion of the Nanking government, the State Department during the past month has granted export licenses for arms shipments to China.

The licenses were requested by that nation through the American Legation at Peiping.

Dr. C. C. Wu, in announcing his resignation as Chinese Minister to Washington Thursday, said warlike preparations by the Nanking government, through purchase in the United States of arms likely to be used against the people of Canton, his native city, had prompted his resignation.

The application through the American Legation to the State Department, instead of the usual procedure of applying through the Chinese Legation at Washington, was said by department officials last night to effect no change in policy.

It was described as merely a temporary substitution of one official channel of application for another.

Procedure Termed Routine Matter.

Undersecretary Castle said several licenses for export had been granted upon China's request. He added that if future requests came through the American Legation in China, and they were known to be bona fide, they would be acted on in the same way as if they were received through the Chinese Legation here.

The procedure was described by the Undersecretary as a routine matter. State Department officials believing the important point to determine was whether the requests were actually from the Nanking government.

Rapid developments in the Canton-Nanking situation, linked directly by Dr. Wu with his resignation, are being watched by State Department officials on the basis of dispatches received from the American Legation at Peiping and the American consular agencies in China.

It has been found that much information from China on political developments has been based on rumors and reports, which in many cases must be discounted because of their apparent source.

Canton Threat Is Discounted.

So far as actual military activities were concerned, officials said nothing sufficiently definite to warrant an opinion on the situation had been received.

From a distance, however, it appeared that the Canton movement does not constitute an immediate threat to the Nanking government.

In many cases in the past, experience in observing Chinese affairs has proved that what appears at first to be a small movement has grown to proportions sufficient to shake the

Dr. Leland Howard Wins Capper Medal

Agriculture Department Scientist Rewarded for Insect Control.

DR. LELAND O. HOWARD.

Dr. Leland O. Howard, head of the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, with which he has been affiliated for half a century, was awarded the 1931 Capper gold medal and $5,000 yesterday for distinguished service to American agriculture, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago.

The award, which is given annually by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, was won last year by S. M. Babcock, of Madison, Wis.

Dr. Howard observed his seventy-fourth birthday anniversary Thursday. The committee of seven which chose him for the honor based its decision on his organization and development of insect control methods, principally in finding one specie to combat another.

His method of setting one insect to destroy another is practically the only system used in Hawaii for crop protection, and is highly popular among citrus fruit growers in California, Florida and Texas.

Dr. Howard's service with the Walter Reed yellow fever commission, at the beginning of the century, and his publications on the house fly as a carrier of intestinal diseases established his position as a humanitarian as well.

Professional societies to which he belongs include the National Academy of Sciences, the American Philosophical Society and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Howard is a former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is an honorary member of numerous scientific societies abroad, and is believed to be the only American honorary member of the Academy of Agriculture of France.

Dr. Howard lives at 1705 Twenty-first street northwest.

G. O. P. SPEECH BAN AT PARLEY MARS CONCORD

Insurgent Avers He Was Denied Chance to Talk on Prohibition.

INTENDED TO DISCUSS BROWN'S ACTS ALSO

Hurley Assails Democrats and Reviews Career of President.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The harmony that had marked the conference of Young Republicans was disturbed late yesterday when Representative Melvin J. Maas, 33-year-old Republican insurgent, of St. Paul, Minn., charged that he had been denied a chance to make a speech.

Representative Maas, who flew here from the Marine base at Quantico, where he is in training with other reserve officers, said that those in charge of the conference decided to ignore him after they had heard that he proposed to demand modification of the prohibition law and to launch an attack on Postmaster General Brown. It was Maas who started the investigation into postoffice leases.

Representative Maas said that Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, had offered him an opportunity to speak and had told him to speak about party organization in Minnesota. He was to have been called upon after Secretary of Agriculture Hyde had finished talking yesterday, Maas said.

No Time, Is Explanation.

"I was not called upon," he said. "The explanation offered me was that there was not sufficient time, although the meeting ran half an hour over schedule and there was ample opportunity to hear numerous other talks."

Later, Maas said, he was told by persons connected with the Republican national committee that the real reason for ignoring him was that word had circulated that he was going to talk not about party organization, but about prohibition and Postmaster General Brown.

Representative Maas' statement, however, was made off the floor, so to speak, and did not sour the harmonious note on which the conference ended last night. The conference ended just as it began—with praise for President Hoover and appeals for a vigorous campaign in 1932.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, who is not so old himself, was the principal speaker at a banquet given last night in the Willard.

Democrats Are Attacked.

He assailed the Democratic "obstructionists," who, he said, though having no program of their own, have been trying to defeat the Hoover policies and to tear down the Hoover program.

The Hoover leadership is succeeding, Secretary Hurley said, and the Republican party will continue in its leadership of America.

In the afternoon, the young men and women were received at the White House by President and Mrs. Hoover. The reception was held in the blue room. Afterward, the young people, arm in arm, moved out to the big east room, walked along the terraces and strolled about the garden.

After last night's banquet, they danced in the Willard ballroom.

Secretary Hurley traced Herbert Hoover's career from the time he was administrator of Belgian relief. He told of his work as food administrator in the Wilson administration, and of his record as Secretary of Commerce under Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

Had Support of People Then.

"But," said Secretary Hurley, "we hear many who say: 'We admit that in all these stupendous undertakings the President was successful, but what of his record as the Chief Magistrate of the Nation? It is that in which we are interested now.'

"I might pause to say in passing that in the splendid achievements made by Mr. Hoover in his former capacities, he had the undivided support of the people of the Nation. As the leader of the Republican party and as President of the Government, his way is beset by political opponents, able strategists, molders of public opinion, who criticize and obstruct his plans and try to defeat his

ACCORD WITH ITALY SEEN IN POPE'S NOTE

Quick Settlement of Rift Is Forecast as Both Parties Make Concessions.

Rome, June 12 (A.P.).—Quick settlement of the Vatican's differences with Italy was forecast today as the Pope turned over to Papal Nuncio Borgongini-Duca a note with instructions that it be delivered to Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister.

It was expected the Vatican's reply to the government would be delivered tomorrow, although a combination of hot weather and the week-end holidays may hold it up until Monday.

The Pope spent nearly an hour and a half discussing the document with the nuncio, and Vatican circles expressed confidence that within a week accord would be established with the government, or at least closely approached.

It is known the Vatican desires to hasten at least a temporary arrangement. One reason for this is the desire of the people to have the prohibition against the religious processions lifted. Another is the importance of removing uncertainty about the future of the 500,000 membership of the dissolved Catholic clubs which now are being incorporated into new societies.

Italy, however, seems to be in no great haste. The government considers the Vatican's reorganization of Catholic Action is evidence the Pope intends to eliminate or prevent the alleged political activities of the organization. As that was the main issue in the controversy the signs are optimistic.

Both sides are understood to be disposed to minimize if not ignore the mutual charges of treaty violation, and the Vatican is believed to have contented itself with the "regrets" of the government, instead of demanding a formal apology for insults to the Pope in outbursts of public violence.

Judge Acquits Holland In Bank Fraud Case

Baltimore, Md., June 12 (A.P.).—J. Monroe Holland, president of the Chesapeake Bank, closed by the State December 9 with an estimated loss of $1,700,000 to depositors, tonight was found not guilty of making false statements to bank examiners and accepting deposits when he knew the institution was insolvent. He still faces trial on an indictment charging him with conspiracy to defraud depositors.

Judge Eugene O'Dunne, who heard testimony for five days, sitting without a jury, in his verdict said that "Holland is 99 per cent guilty. He escapes like a singed cat. I can't find him completely guilty."

COUZENS PLANS BILL TO INSURE 'JOBLESS'

Michigan Senator Will Also Sponsor Federal-State Old-Age Pensions.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Couzens said yesterday he would sponsor legislation for unemployment insurance and old-age pensions operated jointly by the States and the Federal Government in the next session of Congress.

Believing direct operation of either the insurance or the pensions by the Government would be unconstitutional, the Michigan senator said there were plenty of precedents for the joint operation scheme.

Senator Couzens also plans to press for increases in taxes, regulation of power other than water in interstate commerce, amendments to the radio act and further safeguards for railroad supervision by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"I am not at all disturbed at the effort to discredit the dole," he said. "We have a great many standpatters and reactionaries who have used the press to try to make out there's something terrible, obnoxious, unthinkable about the dole. When the so-called British dole was initiated, no one could foresee the years and years of depression which have made it difficult of operation. However, none of the critics have offered a substitute for preventing starvation."

As for private charity, he said he had "always felt that there should be none of it except as an educational measure—as private charity, for instance, took the initiative in establishing playgrounds for children."

Regarding pensions, Senator Couzens said it had been contended, with some justification, they would "cost no more than it cost to keep up the poorhouses."

The senator is studying plans for both insurance and pensions bills. He said he was considering the advisability of employe contributions to funds supplied by the Federal and State governments on a dollar-matching basis.

A Labor Department survey yesterday showed more than 10,000 men and women were receiving public old-age pensions at the end of 1930.

Twelve States and Alaska have old-age pension laws, but in most of them the adoption is optional with counties or cities. Last year, the Labor Department survey showed, 137 counties in nine States had adopted the old-age pension system instead of the county home plan and 10,307 elderly persons received a total of $1,714,388 in pensions.

The department's last previous survey was in 1928. Since that time the number of adopting counties has more than doubled, the number of pensioners increased more than ten times and expenditures increased eight times.

Ortiz Rubio Cancels Fete for Kin's Funeral

Mexico City, June 12 (A.P.).—President Ortiz Rubio today canceled plans to officiate at the opening of a road from Pachuca to Huejutla because of the funeral rites to be held in Morelia for his cousin, Emilio Cortes Rubio, and for Manuel Garcia Gomez, students who were slain by a deputy sheriff at Ardmore, Okla., Monday.

The bodies of the two youths were en route today to their parents' homes in Morelia aboard a train which brought them from the United States. They are due in Morelia tomorrow. The president did not say whether he would go to Morelia for the funerals.

Long Taxi Trail Fails As Girl's Death Clew

Witnesses Unable to Say Starr Faithfull, Found Dead in Surf, Was Gin-Sodden Passenger Who Hired Cab on Fatal Night.

Mineola, N. Y., June 12 (A.P.).—The wandering trail of a taxi carrying a girl dazed by gin or narcotics led detectives tonight to another blank wall in the Starr Faithfull case.

The trail's end was a corner drug store in far Flushing, where a cab chauffeur left his dishevelled fare Thursday night a week ago after driving for hours from the Chanin Building, in Manhattan, through the byways of Queens.

Had this girl been Starr Faithfull, Greenwich Village madcap and acid manufacturer's daughter, whose scantily clad body was taken from the surf at Long Beach last Monday under circumstances indicating murder, the Nassau County authorities would have been nearing the end of their quest for her slayers.

Richard Findley, elevator starter in the Chanin Building, looked at the body in a crematorium and said he believed it was. A policeman who had been summoned because of the girl's actions in the Chanin lobby thought it was, but said the body was clad in a different dress.

Stanley E. Faithfull, the girl's stepfather, denied it, as did her mother. Starr was at home at that time, they said. Inspector Harold R. King, of Nassau police, cast doubt on it because "so many people look alike."

Sy Bockman, the chauffeur, who said he drove for hours in a vain attempt to find a vague address in Queens, was to go to the crematorium to look at the body. He told police his fare stopped once during the ride to buy a bottle of "clear fluid" that looked like gin.

District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, convinced the girl was murdered last Friday by being held under water, and sticking to his statement that several persons prominent socially and politically had reasons to desire her removal, presented all the evidence at his command to a grand jury. The case was presented as "The State vs. John Doe and Richard Roe," indicating indictments against two men were sought.

The witnesses included a physician who believed the girl was jettisoned in the surf; her stepfather; her real father, Frank Wyman, wealthy Boston man; her sister, Tucker, whom Edwards described as "very mysterious about her movements over the week-end" and Francis Peabody Hamlin, of Boston, youthful cruise director for the Cunard Line.

Hamlin told of meeting Starr aboard the liner Franconia at a sailing party May 29. Starr stayed too long on the ship and had to be taken off in a tug. A taxi driver who told of seeing the girl land in an intoxicated condition at a pier was a witness today. He said he gave her a lemon to help sober her. Another chauffeur told of driving her to her home in St. Luke's place.

The Evening Post printed a report today that Starr was in love with Dr. J. Jameson Carr, youthful ship's doctor of the Franconia. The paper said it learned from a woman passenger that once, on an ocean voyage, a stewardess called Dr. Carr to attend Starr. Her illness had resulted from drinking and the physician urged her to give up liquor.

Daisy DeBoe Loses Battle To Escape Term in Prison

California Court Rules Former Secretary to Clara Bow Must Serve Eighteen Months in Jail for Theft of $874 Fur Coat.

Los Angeles, Calif., June 12 (A.P.).—Daisy DeBoe, former secretary of Clara Bow, motion picture actress, must serve an eighteen months' jail term, the district court of appeals ruled today, imposed for a grand theft conviction.

Miss DeBoe was convicted specifically for theft of an $874 fur coat from Miss Bow while she was employed by the flaming-haired actress as secretary. After serving more than a month in the county jail, Miss DeBoe was released under bond pending her appeal.

The court ruled that in filing an application for probation Miss DeBoe had waived her constitutional right to appeal, which she contended was interfered with by the eighteen-month term as a condition of probation.

Miss Bow this week retired from the films to seek to regain her health on a secluded Nevada ranch. Prior to leaving, she said her retirement would last probably three or four months, and she would return to make a "comeback." Friends partly attributed the star's breakdown to the DeBoe trial.

NEW RHEEM TANGLE TO BE AIRED IN SUIT

Receivership Will Be Asked for North Wing of La Salle Apartments.

Receivership for another Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. enterprise loomed last night, as holders of notes on the North section of the La Salle Apartments voted to take this step, removing from possession John I. Cassedy, former head of National Park Seminary.

A bill for receivership will be filed immediately in Equity Court, Edward F. Colladay, one of the committee of seven appointed two weeks ago, said. The vote followed a two-hour fight on the proposal and the alternative request of Mr. Cassedy to be allowed to continue operation of the property.

Henry F. Woodward, owner of part of the land on which the apartment L. built, and representing $10,000 in notes, was heckled in an address opposing the moved. He asked "a little merciful consideration for Mr. Cassedy." The interest of the latter, who holds title to the leasehold, would be wiped out in the event of foreclosure.

George Ober, jr., attorney for Mr. Cassedy, introduced a letter setting forth his plan of operation should noteholders agree to allow him to continue in possession. James A. Purcell, a member of the noteholders' committee, read the letter, taking exception to facts it contained and outlining reasons for rejecting it. Then Mr. Colladay presented the committee's receivership recommendation. He said the committee had agreed to operation of the property by trustees until Mr. Ober at the last informed them his client would not transfer title.

Mr. Woodard, the sole dissenting voice, warned note holders they would "rue the day" they asked for a receivership. He offered to wager $1,000, to be paid to any charity, that 2½ per cent would not be realized December 15, the next interest date, under the arrangement. He said he was willing to deduct 10 per cent from his ground rent if they would not take this course, but withdrew his offer when a note holder said it

The bill for receivership will be filed in the name of William A. Strauch, who holds $8,000 in LaSalle notes, Mr. Colladay said. The note holders voted to form a permanent organization, ot be known as the Organized Note Holders of the North Section of the La Salle, with George L. Sullivan as chairman.

Representative Killed In Virginia Auto Wreck

Alta Vista, Va., June 12 (A.P.).—A. Lowell Witcher, of Gretna, member of the House of Delegates from Pittsylvania County, was fatally injured near here this afternoon as his automobile collided with a heavy truck.

He died in an ambulance before reaching the Lynchburg Hospital.

NAVY ECONOMY HELD CHANCE TO BUILD UP

Adams Thinks Money Saved in Operations May Go for Construction.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams indicated a belief yesterday that economies in naval operations might help in building up toward the London treaty limit.

"If you save money on operations you might be permitted to spend money on construction," he said at a press conference.

The Secretary said the naval construction program to be submitted to the next Congress may include everything but battleships. He was replying to the question whether the program would embrace the same categories as that submitted to Congress last session, which included two 6-inch gun cruisers, four submarines and an aircraft carrier costing a total of $77,000,000. It failed to reach a vote in either House or Senate.

"Don't shut the door on destroyers," Secretary Adams advised. "We may need some of them—everything but battleships."

The United States has the maximum battleship tonnage allowed it under the London treaty.

The last session of Congress appropriated $10,000,000 for starting construction of eleven destroyers as well as $10,000,000 for beginning modernization of three battleships. Virtually all the American destroyers are nearing replacement age. No destroyers have been built since the war. The life of this type of craft is sixteen years.

Now under construction are seven 8-inch gun cruisers, which will bring the United States almost up to the limit in that division, an aircraft carrier and two submarines. Contracts for the eleven new destroyers are to be let this summer.

While Secretary Adams and other Navy officials were silent on the subject, it was reported they plan to save $3,500,000 from the coming fiscal year's appropriation through postponement of purchase of some of the 136 seaplanes, scheduled to be assigned to the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and Coco Solo, Canal Zone, naval air bases.

Director and Actress Burned in Oil Blast

Norwalk, Conn., June 12 (U.P.).—Eva Le Gallienne, director of the New York Civic Repertory Theater, and Josephine Hutchinson, an actress in her troupe, were severely burned late today when an oil heater exploded in Miss Le Gallienne's farmhouse, near Westport.

They were brought to Norwalk Hospital, where physicians said both would recover. Miss Le Gallienne suffered burns around the head and shoulders, and Miss Hutchinson's face was seared.

Bishop Cannon Sues Paper And Hearst for $1,500,000

Churchman Alleges Los Angeles Examiner and Owner Conspired to Libel Him and Defame His Character; Publisher Young Also Accused.

Los Angeles, June 12 (U.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, filed suit today for $1,500,000 damages against William Randolph Hearst and the Los Angeles Examiner, charging libel and conspiracy to defame his character.

George Young, publisher of the Examiner, a Hearst newspaper, also was named as a defendant.

Bishop Cannon charged that Mr. Hearst had opposed prohibition and had conspired to destroy the influence of prohibition leaders. He said that since the presidential campaign of 1928 Mr. Hearst had sought to "destroy the reputation of the plaintiff by false, defamatory and libelous publications."

His complaint said that Mr. Hearst had caused to be published in the many Hearst newspapers, magazines and other publications, propaganda pertaining to him.

policies for their own political purposes.

The obstructionists acquit themselves of wrongdoing on the theory that political partisanship is essential to the welfare of the Nation."

In spite of the obstructionists, Secretary Hurley said, President Hoover had achieved much. He then proceeded to tell how the President had moved to head off unemployment and wage-cutting; how he had pushed the big public building program; how he had worked for the London Naval Treaty, and how he advocated a tariff for the protection of the farmers and the laborers.

Admits Faults in Tariff Law.

"I frankly admit that the tariff law has many faults and inequities," Secretary Hurley said. "But I assert that the law as it was passed was not what the President had asked Congress to enact. It was the best he could get from Congress."

However, he added, the flexible provision which the President had advocated would take care of many of the inequalities.

William Starr Meyers, professor of political science at Princeton University, told the young people that American know full well "in spite of every futile attempt to fool them that Herbert Hoover was in no way responsible for these economic troubles, the unemployment, the suffering and the privation.

"Far from that," he said, "they are thankful that at this very time of trouble and crisis they have had and still have at the helm of the ship of state a man with a firm hand, unfaltering courage and an understanding heart. In other words, a man who has kept his head."

Cheers Given for Hoover.

At the morning session, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, declared, "President Hoover is all right." Whereupon the delegates leaped to their feet and gave three cheers.

Secretary Hyde urged the young Republicans to go to the War Department, obtain some polo mallets and use them on the "yes-but" members of the party.

W. Kingsland Macy, chairman of the New York State committee, denounced corruption in the city and State government of New York, and, while absolving Gov. Roosevelt and Mayor Walker from personal blame, insisted that those two officials should be held responsible for conditions in their own household.

Allan Hoover, son of President Hoover, and Walter Newton, secretary to the President, were both cheered when they appeared at the meeting.

LINCOLN PARENTS' WEDDING ENACTED

Doak Dedicates Kentucky Temple as Thousands See Ceremony.

Harrodsburg, Ky., June 12 (A.P.).—The wedding in the Kentucky wilderness 125 years ago uniting Tom Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, parents of Abraham Lincoln, was reenacted at Pioneer Memorial State Park here today.

A radio audience on a coast-to-coast hook-up heard the ceremonies dedicating the little temple sheltering the cabin in which the Civil War President's parents were married June 12, 1806. Some 5,000 townspeople and visitors gathered for the ceremonies, during which several spectators were temporarily overcome by the heat.

William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor, who delivered the dedicatory address as a representative of the Government, paid tribute to Lincoln's parents and said Lincoln owed much of his strength of character to the hardships of his youth.

The wedding, performed by the Rev. Jesse Head, and the housewarming that followed were portrayed in dramatic fashion by Prof. Edward Saxon and the Stage Crafters of Transylvania College, Lexington.

The program was opened with a pageantry of Harrodsburg's colonial days, this being the 157th anniversary of the founding of the town by settlers from Virginia. Forty-eight young women carrying daisies represented the States and thirteen little girls in costumes represented the original thirteen colonies.

A Bible was placed in the Lincoln marriage cabin by Mrs Doak, attended by Mary Jane and Elizabeth Bird Hutton. After the invocation by the Right Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, Bishop of the Lexington Diocese, Episcopal Church Gov. Flem D. Sampson opened the program. Former Gov. Edwin Morrow introduced the representatives of other States—Dr. Francis Milton Massie, of Lexington, Ky.; George A. Ball, for Indiana, and H. H. Cleveland, Springfield, for Illinois. United States Senator Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky, described the cabin in the days when it stood in Washington County, where the wedding took place.

A painting of Lincoln was unveiled at the banquet tonight. It was the work of Clifton J Long, of Lexington. A painting of the Rev. Jesse Head also was unveiled It was the work of Bruce Thompson, Chicago.

Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president of Indiana University, spoke at the dinner and described Lincoln as a leader who "helped the people see their own best and put it into deed."

Justine Crosser Wed in Elopement

Daughter of Ohio Representative Is Married to Charles Sweeny.

The elopement nd marriage on June 2 of Miss Justine Crosser, daughter of Representative Robert Crosser, of Ohio, and Charles A. Sweeny law student at George Washington University, became known yesterday.

The ceremony was performed in Christ Church, Alexandria, on the day after Miss Crosser was graduated from American University. Both she and Mr. Sweeny are 22 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Sweeny, who are now living at the Miramar Apartments, plan to remain in Washington until he completes his law course, when they will move to Toledo, Ohio, the bridegroom's home.

The bride attended the Women's College of Western Reserve University in Cleveland the Crossers' home city, before coming to Washington. She is a member of Theta Phi Omega sorority. Mr. Sweeny belongs to Sigma Delta Rho fraternity.

Horse Frightened, Dies.

Sterlin Mass., June 12 (U.P.).—A horse, standing in a pasture here dropped dead as a railroad train roared by. Herbert L. Kneeland, the owner, believed that the horse, unaccustomed to loud noises, succumbed to excitement.

Real Presidential Bees Threaten Young G.O.P.

(Associated Press.)

"Presidential bees" came to light yesterday in such numbers as Washington, accustomed it is to the species, found quite unusual.

Incidentally, they almost gave the members of the young Republican convention an unexpectedly warm welcome when the delegates appeared at the White House to meet the President.

Just before the reception began, the White House gardeners felled a big hollow maple and disturbed a large hive of bees within its trunk. As the delegates walked onto the south lawn of the Executive Mansion, the bees swarmed in front of the portico.

Wild honey is to become a familiar dish on the President's table, as one gardener was quick enough to get a container and gather up about fifteen gallons.

TOUR PARLEY OVER, LINDBERGHS LEAVE

Pair Returns to New York; Soviet Director Aids in Planning Flight.

(Associated Press.)

After discussing with Government officials the feasibility of flying to the Orient in a seaplane over thousands of miles of timbered lands, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A Lindbergh took off from Eolling Field yesterday morning to return to New York.

They left in a borrowed biplane after deferring their start until yesterday because it was not equipped with lights for night flying. Lindbergh spent all the day talking over his proposed aerial vacation with officials here.

Whether he and Mrs. Lindbergh decide to cross the Atlantic or choose the northern Pacific or Arctic Ocean for their water jump, the low-winged, pontoon-fitted monoplane they will fly must travel over much of Soviet Russia's territory.

The director of the Soviet Union information bureau, Boris E. Skvirsky, disclosed yesterday that since the United States can not officially communicate with his government, he is lending his cooperation to the flight.

"I have not yet taken it up with Moscow," Skvirsky said, "but I can see no reason why the flight should not be permitted. Col. Lindbergh talked with me yesterday and I promised to cable my government as soon as more details are available.

"Soviet officials would want to know the territory he would cross, so as to aid in making available oil and gas deposits for the plane."

90 MINUTES AROUND WORLD IS HOPED FOR

German Inventors Expect to Make Flight in Rocket at End of Year.

Berlin, June 12 (A.P.).—Around the world in 90 minutes is the modest goal Germany's rocket enthusiasts have set for themselves as a sort of preliminary to journeys to the moon and planets.

As yet no passenger-carrying rocket, even for earthly distances, has been demonstrated here, but Reinhold Tiling, inventor of the sailplane rocket recently shown at Osnabrueck, is so confident of its safety and practicability that he plans to build one big enough to carry himself aloft before the end of the year.

Tiling's rocket goes up like a bullet, then spreads wings to descend like a sailplane.

Most of the rocket designers agree that no rocket will show what it really can do until it is given enough power to climb into the stratosphere, that outer layer of the atmosphere where air resistance practically does miles an hour are theoretically atnot exist. There speeds around 3,000 tainable.

The rarity of the atmosphere at altitudes of 50,000 to 200,000 feet would handicap or disable the ordinary airplane, powered as it is by an engine which must suck in oxygen, and driven by a propeller which must "take hold" of the air to be effective.

For the rocket-plane these would be no handicaps, as the rocket principle of propulsion by recoil functions—even in a vacuum—better, in fact, because of the absence of air resistance.

Once operating in the stratosphere, rocket-planes could cross the Atlantic in a little more than an hour.

To take full advantage of the possibilities of recoil power, however, contend the rocket enthusiasts of the Verein feur Raumschiffahrt (Society for Spaceship Travel) an altitude of 600 miles should be utilized.

At such an altitude the pull of gravity would be balanced by centrifugal force, and a rocket running out of fuel at that height would, if left to itself, circle the earth indefinitely.

Doumer to Assume Presidency Today

New French Executive Will Face Varied Issues in Taking Office.

Paris, June 12 (A.P.).—The massive plaque of the grand master of the Legion of Honor, together with its broad scarf of red, will be affixed to the bosom of Paul Doumer tomorrow—and from that moment he will be head of a French government that faces many problems.

Immediately after the ceremony of inauguration, Gaston Doumergue, newly married retiring President of France, who has headed the state for seven years, will catch a train for the quiet city of Toulouse, near which he and his bride have prepared their home. M. Doumergue will leave many delicate matters in the hands of his successor.

In accordance with precedent, Premier Laval's cabinet will present its collective resignation in order that the new president may be free to ask some one else to form a new ministry. However, Doumer has indicated that Laval and his ministry will be asked to continue at their posts.

PROTESTS ON TARIFF CITED AS FARM HELP

Nebraska Republican Says Foreign Agriculture, Not Industry, Complains.

Alliance Nebr., June 12 (A.P.).—Foreign protests against the agricultural rates in the Smoot-Hawley tariff act were cited today by Representative Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, as proof that the law is aiding the American farmer.

Addressing the Nebraska Stock Growers Association, Mr. Simmons said protests against the tariff law are not coming from foreign industry, but from foreign agriculture.

"Examine the protests," he said, "and they are distinctly an argument for the tariff from the American farmer's standpoint. Canada protests because she has lost the market in the United States for feeder cattle and dairy products.

"Argentina protests because she has lost her American market for beef, corn, &c.; Italy because of vegetable oils; France because of canned goods; Denmark because of dairy products, and so on."

Mr. Simmons said lowering of this country's tariff wall would cause more depression in agriculture, more abandoned American farms, more farmers among the unemployed in the cities.

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "the foreign producer, by cheap labor, cheap lands and mechanical means, has taken away a large part of the foreign market heretofore enjoyed by the American farmer.

"Having taken a good part of the foreign market, they now demand that America lower her agricultural tariff rates in order that they may take away, also, the home market."

YORK DEATH VERDICT HELD INCONSISTENT

Court Questions Decision of Jury in Appeal by Doomed Trio.

The District Court of Appeals yesterday questioned the "consistency" of a jury verdict that found three men not guilty of murder individually and then found all three guilty on an "omnibus" fourth count in an indictment.

The question arose when the appeals of John Borum, John Logan and Milton Guy, Negroes, came up for discussion in the Appellate Court. The court found that the indictment named each Negro, in separate counts, as the "trigger man." The fourth count alleged that all were guilty of first degree murder, and the jury voted for that judgment.

Inasmuch, the court wants to know, as none of the three did the shooting, how could all be guilty of the murder. The case was that of Lamar Watson York, prohibition agent, who was shot to death in April, 1930, while he was trying to attract police attention to a liquor-laden automobile he had seized in an alley.

The point raised by the Court of Appeals was not raised in counsels' argument. By direction, however, the point will be discussed at a rehearing in October. The ruling said the action raises the question of "whether or not the verdict is so inconsistent as to be insufficient to support the judgment thereon."

The three are scheduled to electrocution September 2, but a postponement will be necessary.

BLADENSBURG JAIL IS ORDERED CLOSED

Structure Is Held Filthy and Unsanitary After an Officila Probe.

An order closing the Bladensburg Jail wa sissued late yesterday by Sheriff W. C. Hopkins, of Prince Georges County, following a report by County Health Officer A. B. Hooton, of Capitol Heights, Md., that the structure is both "unsanitary and filthy."

Dr. Hooton, assisted by Dr. H. T. Willis, of Hyattsville, inspected the jail yesterday at Hopkins' request, after the State Board of Welfare had refused to take action "because it lacked jurisdiction."

Eight prisoners are now in the jail, which was originally built for two. They will be removed today to the Marlboro Jail, Sheriff Hopkins stated. Dr. Hooton's report contained a recomendation to the board of county commissioners that a ward for prisoners with contagious diseases be established at the Marlboro institution.

The Bladensburg structure has been under fire a number of times; once, several years ago, when a prisoner was almost drowned when a portion of the town was flooded. It is a two-room brick structure. Eleven prisoners escaped from it during a three-month period this year.

Poisoning of Millions Predicted in Next War

Coventry, England, June 12 (A.P.). Lady Cynthia Mosley tonight told a group of Scouts and Guides of Youth of a "dew of death," a teaspoonful of which, dropped over a city, she said, would kill a million persons.

Lady Cynthia, who is the daughter of the late Marquis Curzon and granddaughter of the late Levi Leiter, a Chicago merchant, predicted the next war would "finish civilization." She said that a small bomb containing "dew of death," carried in a small handbag, could raze London.

Man in Gas Plant Hurt By Falling Machinery

A falling piece of machinery yesterday injured Jacob Horn, 63 years old, of 3501 T street northwest, as he was working at the Washington Gas Light Co. plant, at Twenty-sixth and G streets northwest.

Mr. Horn was given first aid treatment by physicians from Emergency Hospital, members of the Rescue Squad and a private doctor. He was later taken to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition was reported last night as undetermined.

GENDARMES BATTLE STRIKERS IN FRANCE

Textile City Scene of Street War; Police Withdraw After Six Hours.

Roubaix, France, June 12 (A.P.).—Police tonight engaged in a prolonged pitched battle with textile strike demonstrators, said to be led by Communists, who had thrown up barricades in the populous Rue de Laghais. Charges by police and mounted gendarmes failed to dislodge the manifestants.

At a late hour the authorities abandoned until daylight all efforts to break down the barricades. The conflict then had lasted for more than six hours, during which time the strikers stoned police continuously.

The mounted gendarmes were driven off by missles when they attempted to ride their horses into the barricades.

Dispatches from Lille, France, on June 2, said that more than 100,000 textile workers of the Roubaix-Tourcoing region were on strike because of reduction in wages.

A general strike was feared after wages also were reduced in steel mills in that section. Empty textile factories were under guard in the region, but no previous disorders had been reported.

Taxi Driver Arrested In Hit-and-Run Injury

A taxi driver faced three charges yesterday after he was turned over to police by a private citizen following an alleged hit-and-run accident in which a woman was injured. His taxicab, with three passengers, was chased for several miles early yesterday by several motorists who saw the crash.

The man was booked as Ivan Boganoff, 41 years old, of Riggs place near Seventeenth street northwest, and he was charged with driving while drunk, colliding and failure to stop. Mrs. Rosaline Youngs, 45 years old, of I street near Third street northwest, suffered cuts and bruises when the car in which she was parked with her husband, was crashed by the cab while on the Speedway near Hains Point.

Pseudo Floyd Gibbons Held As Reporters Detect Hoax

Californian, With Eye Patch, Staccato Chatter, Expensive Taxi and Plane Trips, Regrets Fun Ends in "Tank Town Like Camden."

Camden, N. J., June 12 (U.P.).—An impersonator of Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, author and radio announcer, drank from a bottle in a hotel room here today while allowing himself to be interviewed by newspaper reporters and "came to" under arrest on a charge of fraud.

The arrest in a luxurious suite ended a triumphant tour of the East, Black Eye Patch, Staccato Chatter, expensive tours in automobiles, planes and everything just as the original Floyd might have had it.

That bottle, supplied by a local bootlegger, incidentally proved the pseudo Gibbons' undoing, for while he dozed, a doubting Thomas among the reporters present peeked under the Eye Patch and found there a perfectly good optic organ.

Police were called. They found papers on the man which belonged to Henry McMillan Luellwitz, Los Angeles, Calif., and removed him to headquarters, where the fraud charge was filed by C. J. Strickland, manager of the Newark Airport. Strickland charged "Gibbons" failed to pay for plane transportation from Newark here.

"I thought I would have some fun," the impersonator said. "I went all over the country posing as Gibbons. I fooled a lot of people.

"I'm sorry my fun had to end in a tank town like Camden."

His Eastern tour began June 9, he said, when he hired a car and driver in New York. The chauffeur was Frank Pellow, Brooklyn.

"We drove about New York several hours, then went to New Haven, Conn.," Pellow said. "Working from the Hotel Taft, we went to Cheshire, Waterbury, Naugatuck and returned to New York today.

"We went to Newark Airport a short time later, took a plane to Camden, and you know the rest of the story."

5 WOMEN ARRESTED IN COAL STRIKE AREA

Demonstrations Continue in Effort to Add Recruits to Miners' Union.

Pittsburgh, June 13 (A.P.).—Sporadic demonstrations designed to enlist recruits to the cause of mine strikers in western Pennsylvania continued today, and Vincent Kemenovich, district secretary of the National Miners Union, predicted serious consequences "unless the coal company officials change their attitude."

Men and women marched near six mines in the Pittsburgh district. Five women who disobeyed orders of Sheriff Robert S. Cain in taking part in demonstrations were arrested.

A deputy sheriff was under arrest for wounding a man at Gallatin. The victim, Lawrence Shaw, 50, was reported to be in a serious condition.

Kemenovich said miners who attended a mass meeting at Walkerville today were armed.

"Unless there is a radical change, we union officials will no longer be responsible for the miners' actions," he said.

The strike began eleven days ago. Officials of the United Mine Workers of America first announced a strike would be called, but since then the National Miners Union has claimed the great majority of the strikers were under its banner. The N. M. U. is opposed to the United Mine Workers.

In a letter to coal operators, N. M. U. representatives demanded a higher wage scale, an eight-hour day, union check weighmen at every mine and recognition of the union.

The scale demanded included 55 cents a ton for machine coal, 77 cents a ton for pick coal, 12 cents a ton for cutters, $5.55 a day for men, $5.40 a day for helpers, $4.50 for outside skilled labor and $4 a day for outside unskilled labor.

Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, was in Harrisburg to confer with Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Five Killed in May Traffic Accidents

Police Report for Month Shows 799 Mishaps; Less Than 1930.

Of the 799 traffic accidents reported to police during the month of May, five fatalities were listed, figures compiled by Inspector E. W. Brown, in charge of traffic, revealed yesterday. The number of accidents for May this year was reduced by 50 in comparison with May, 1930.

The figures for the current year were still 244 higher than in May, 1929, when 555 crashes were reported. There were 352 mishaps in which persons suffered minor injuries and 490 in which only property was damaged. There were 48 collisions in which more than one person was hurt.

The month cut the death rate from traffic accidents greatly over May of 1929 and 1930. In 1929 10 persons were killed in May accidents, while in 1930 the fatal accident toll was 11.

Congressional Junket Urged to Save Money

(Associated Press.)

Plans for a tour of Interior Department projects in Western States and Alaska by members of important House committees were outlined to President Hoover yesterday by Chairman Smith, of the irrigation and reclamation committee.

The trip, the Idaho Republican said, would embrace a study of national parks, irrigation and reclamation projects and Indian reservations with a view to holding appropriations for the 1932-1933 fiscal year at the lowest amount with which efficiency could be preserved.

Hoovers Are at Camp; Entertain Younger Set

Orange, Va., June 12 (A.P.).—President and Mrs. Hoover reached their fishing camp in the mountains near here tonight after a leisurely journey from Washington. The President plans to devote tomorrow to both work and recreation. In the morning he is to complete the address he will deliver at Springfield, Ohio, and in the afternoon he intends to fish.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover found Miss Janet Large, a niece of Mrs. Hoover; Miss Narcissa Sullivan and Mark Sullivan, jr., and their son, Allan, at the camp before them. Other friends of Allan will arrive tomorrow and the week-end is to be given over primarily to the young people.

DIPLOMATS RECEIVE 'FRIENDSHIP ENVOYS'

Ambassadors of Britain and France Laud Flag Trip; Group Entertained.

Members of the United States Flag Association's "envoys of friendship," who start next week on a good-will trip to France and England, were given a decided thrill at the British Embassy yesterday morning when Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, not only cordially received them, but personally conducted them on a tour of the embassy. The party includes a Washington boy and girl, Thomas J. Hayes 3d and Miss Dorothy Skirm, selected to represent the high schools of Washington in a contest conducted by the Flag Association, with the cooperation of The Washington Post.

Expressing his sympathy with the purpose of the trip, which is to promote good will between the children of Europe and those of the United States, Sir Ronald said an undertaking of this kind could not but contribute in a most practical way to the one patriotism worthy of the name, which is that of those who combine a love of their own country with a respect for others. He assured the "envoys" that their friendly greetings to the boys and girls of England, our mother country, would be warmly reciprocated.

Claudel Greets Envoys.

Paul Claudel, the French Ambassador, also extended a hearty welcome to the "envoys" at the French Embassy. Saying that he considered the idea of stimulating friendly feeling among the children of different countries an excellent one, and that he believed it would promote understanding and good will among the people of the world, he wished the "envoys" happiness and success in their trip abroad. He gave them assurance that the mesage of friendship which they are going to convey from the children of the land of Washington to the youth of the land of Lafayette and Rochambeau would be sincerely reciprocated.

In the absence of Secretary of State Stimson, Undersecretary William R. Castle received the "envoys" at the State Department, wishing them "bon voyage." He strongly commended any movement that would help to make the people of the different countries of the world know one another better and told the "envoys" that their mission is one of the greatest that can be undertaken—the laying of a foundation for universal peace. He expressed pleasure at being given an opportunity to meet these fine representatives of the youth of America.

Yesterday afternoon was devoted to general sight-seeing by the "envoys," who were taken to the Congressional Library, the Capitol, Botanic Gardens, Smithsonian Institution and other points of interest.

Honor Guests at Dance.

Last night the boys and girls, both local and out-of-town, were the guests of honor at the senior "prom" of Western High School, held at the Shoreham Hotel. This honor was tendered largely on account of the fact that Thomas J. Hayes 3d and Dorothy Skirm, the two "envoys" selected by the United States Flag Association with the cooperation of The Post, are students at that school.

Tonight they will be guests of honor of the management of the Fox Theater at a showing of "Daddy Long Legs," current at that theater.

Tomorrow morning the "envoys" will visit the Pan-American and Red Cross buildings, the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial and will call at the White House. In the afternoon they will go to Mount Vernon, where they will place a wreath on the tomb of Washington.

G.A.R. Pays Dead Honor In Impressive Service

A memorial service for deceased members of organizations affiliated with the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, was held last night with impressive ceremonies at 808 I street northwest, with all the chapters of the department cooperating.

The principal address was made by Everett F. Warner, a past commander of the Department of Maryland, who spoke on "Our Departed Fathers." Music was furnished by Daughers of Union Veterans of the Civil War. Among those to whom tribute was paid were Col. C. H. Oldroyd, Archibald Burgess, Edgar Allen, jr., Mrs. Nellie Baxter, Mrs. Honora Hoflinger, Mrs. Louisa James, Mrs. Helena Doocy and Mrs. Caroline Guery.

Progressive G.O.P. Given Nine States

Brookhart Urges Fight, but Denies He Advocates Third Paryt.

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, told a conference of Illinois Progressive Republicans today that he believed the Progressives could carry Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, California and the Dakotas in the coming presidential campaign.

Senator Brookhart denied that he favored a third party. "What I am advocating is a fight by Progressives for a Progressive candidate in those States having presidential delegate primaries and in the national convention," he said.

Brookhart said he would introduce in Congress a bill "amending the present Farm Board bill along the lines of the Haugen-McNary bill, substituting the debenture plan for the equalization fee. Prosperity can be restored to the country in that way. The present bill sponsored by the President has failed in its purpose."

Phone's Development Is Shown in "Talkie"

Talking pictures on development of teelphone communication were shown last night at a meeting of the Washington Telephone Society, composed of employes, which was held in McKinley High School Auditorium. An address was delivered by John A. Remon, general manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. More than 500 attended.

Entertainment numbers were furnished by the Glee Club, Miss Dorothy Reddish, vocalist, and George Small, the one-man band."

STONE SAYS BOARD SAVED U. S. BILLIONS

Chairman Sees Little Hope for Profitable Wheat Prices Soon.

Manhattan, Kans., June 12 (A.P.). Chairman James C. Stone, of the eFderal Farm Board, said tonight a crash in wheat prices which would have "cost this country as a whole billions of dollars," had been averted by the board stepping into the wheat market last November.

He asserted the board's stabilization operations in wheat and cotton had been fully justified by the results. Stone told the American Institute of Cooperation it was the opinion of the board that the price of wheat in Chicago would have dropped to 50 cents a bushel or lower if the board had not come forward to bolster prices.

He cited the series of bank failures in Arkansas, Kentucky and North Carolina last fall and said 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels of wheat on which banks had advanced loans would have been dumped on the market if the price had declined a cent or two

Admitting the stabilization optrations had resulted in losses of Federal funds, he said: "Beneficial results from both cotton and wheat tsabilization activities to farmers and the country as a whole are many times over any losses that may be sustained by the revolving fund."

Discussing the outlook for agriculture, the chairman counseled reduced domestic production of wheat, cotton and barley and bright leaf flue-cured tobaccos. He saw little hope of American wheat grwers being able to obtain a profitable price in the world market in the next few years, but believed cotton growers could compete in the world market by improving the quality of their product, if production were reduced to meet present conditions. The tobacco growers named, he said, found "disastrously low prices this fall."

Reapportionment Law Veto Is Held Invalid

St. Paul, Minn., June 12 (A.P.).—The Legislature's reduction of Minnesota congressional districts from ten to nine was legal despite the veto of Gov. F. B. Olson, Judge Gustavus Loevinger, of county district court, held today.

He sustained a State demurrer to a test case brought by W. Yale Smiley, Minneapolis attorney, who contended the governor's veto was effective because his aproval of a measure was necessary to make a legislative act legal.

HAYNES SENTENCED TO 4½ YEARS IN JAIL

Banker Drops Appeal, Asks Mercy; 14 Terms to Run Concurrently.

Withdrawing his motion for a new trial and an arrest of judgment, Harry V. Haynes, convicted former head of the Farmers & Mechanics Bank, yesterday appeared in the District Supreme Court before Justice Peyton Gordon and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

After discussing the case at length, Justice Gordon sentenced Haynes to serve four years and six months on each of the fourteen counts in the indictment against him. He announced that the sentences would be allowed to run concurrently, thus making Haynes eligible for parole in eighteen months. No fine was included in the sentence.

Haynes' attorney, H. Winship Wheatley, read a prepared statement pointing out his client's past good record in civic life. He said that for 30 years he had borne an honorable name here, and that during the war he had been instrumental in the sale of Liberty bonds. He read his statement in slow, measured tones.

In his own defense Haynes said, "I trust the court," and here his voice broke. Resuming after a moment's pause, Haynes continued, "will be as merciful as is consistent with its duty."

Haynes was convicted on five counts of false entries, seven of misapplication of funds and two of abstraction.

Mail Train Robber Dies for Car Tires

Member of Roundout Gang Is Killed by Express Company Guard.

Stilwell, Kans., June 12 (A.P.).—On the seventh anniversary of the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ill., mail train robbery, Herbert Holliday, one of the holdup gang, died today from an officer's bullet as he attempted the theft of four automobile tires.

Holliday was shot and killed by American Express Co. agents as he and a companion, J. I. Harmon, a former convict, broke into a railway station here to steal tires they had ordered under a fake name. Harmon was slightly wounded and, with Mrs. Holliday, found in a motor car near the station, was held in custody at Olathe, Kans.

A year ago Holliday was paroled from the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans., after serving six years of a 25-year sentence for his part in the Rondout robbery.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

BICENTENNIAL GROUP APPOINTS SUBCHIEFS

Northern Virginia Central Body Holds Meeting at Annandale.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Northern Virginia Bicentennial Coordinating Committee at its meeting in the auditorium of the Annandale schoolhouse reported organization of committees and selection of chairmen.

Martin T. Webb, Annandale, was selected chairman of the committee on routine and guides; Dan Hollenga, of Alexandria, was named chairman of the general information committee. He stated that his committee plans to hold joint meetings with the committee on celebration.

Dr. C. A. Ransom, of Falls Church, chairman of the first aid committee, told of preliminary plans to take care of emergencies at the celebration. He stated that following a conference with officers of the medical societies of northern Virginia and officials of the War Department further details will be announced.

Edmund H. Allen, Newington, was selected head of the publicity committee of northern Virginia. He proposed that the several jurisdictions issue a booklet on "Washington's Country" for distribution next year, using historical data of a more local nature than that being put out by the Federal commission. It was estimated that the booklet would cost approximately $5,000. It was suggested the expense be borne by the several jurisdictions on the basis of space allotted to each in the text.

It was believed that work entailed in the compilation of accurate historical data for such a publication would call for appointment of a special committee.

Members of housing committees of the several jurisdictions reported. Clean-up and beautification committees announced plans for a joint meeting in the near future.

Representative Howard W. Smith, chairman of the coordinating committee, requested each committee to hold at least one meeting prior to the gathering of the general committee at Manassas High School July 8. Committees were instructed to select chairmen and prepare statements of what members feel should be the duties of each committee. The executive committee will study these reports and definitely fix functions of each subcommittee.

The coordinating committee adopted a resolution urging the State Highway Commission to consider seriously the request for improvement of State highways in northern Virginia which was recently made by the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, the Pomona Grange, chamber of commerce, Falls Church Town Council and other civic organizations. The committee concurred in the opinion that northern Virginia would require special road appropriations this year to prepare for handling safely the large influx of tourists expected for the celebration next year.

The executive committee is composed of Representative Howard W. Smith, chairman; Henry C. Morris, vice chairman; W. L. Bragg, secretary; Guy N. Church, treasurer; Mayor L. P. Daniel of Falls Church; John W. Brookfield, of Fairfax County; Arthur Orr, of Arlington County; Wade H. Ellis, of Prince William County, and John Barton Phillips, of Alexandria. It will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Representative Smith in Alexandria.

Ladies' Aid Society of the Southern Methodist Church of Andrew Chapel will hold a chicken supper this evening at the Andrew Chapel School on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike. The committee in charge of the supper will include Mrs. Marvin Sanders, Mrs. C. C. Peirpont, Mrs. J. W. Day, Mrs. Roy Money, Mrs. C. E. Roller, Mrs. J. P. Wickline and Miss Sarah Day. The dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

Annual carnival for benefit of the Annandale School and Community League will be held today on the school grounds at the junction of the Columbia pike and the Lee-Jackson highway. There will be a series of athletic events and special outdoor attractions in the afternoon, with a chicken and ham dinner served by women of the community in the evening and dancing at night. W. T. Carrico is the general chairman.

Frederick A. Goodwin, Bishop-Coadjutor of the Diocese of Virginia, will confirm a class at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church in Herndon tomorrow, following which he will conduct regular services in the Episcopal church at Chantilly.

Falls Church Lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold annual memorial services tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in Oakwood Cemetery, at Falls Church. Members will meet at the Odd Fellows Hall, on Broad street, at 2 o'clock and proceed in a body to the cemetery. Elmer Crump will act as marshal, and George W. Hawxhurst, R. E. Kendrick and J. V. Gorham have been appointed to take charge of ceremonies at the cemetery.

Ladies Guild of the Falls Church Episcopal Church will give a sock social this evening in the parish hall on Broad street under direction of Mrs. Louise Galliher. There will be progressive games, with prizes for highest score and a booby prize.

Bishop Andrew J. Brennan, of Richmond, will be in West Falls Church tomorrow to ordain Robert Beattie, of Falls Church, to the priesthood. Father Thomas Walsh, of St. James' Catholic Church, states that this procedure is unusual, as a priest is seldom ordained outside the cathedral. Tomorrow's ceremonies were granted by special dispensation to Father A. J. Van Igelgem, dean of the Catholic clergy in charge of St. James' Parish. Mr. Beattie is the son of Robert Beattie, of West Falls Church, and a grandson of the late Capt. Fountain Beattie, of Fairfax County.

First of a series of evangelistic services will open tomorrow morning in the Baptist Church at Herndon. The pastor, the Rev. O. B. Lloyd, will be assisted by the Rev. and Mrs. J. Fordham, of Baltimore.

Women's Missionary Society of the Southern Methodist Church at Langley will hold a strawberry social and spelling bee this evening at Franklin-Sherman School at McLean. The spelling will be held in the auditorium of the school, and refreshments will be served on the school grounds. Arrangements are under direction of Mrs. B. E. Hummer.

A dance for benefit of the Acacia Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of Falls Church, will be held this evening in the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse. Committee in charge of the dance includes Mrs. Hazel Rucker, Mrs. Maybelle Church and Mrs. Dorothy Jones.

Lee District Improvement Association will meet this evening in the schoolhouse at Lorton. A drive for new members will be planned to increase the total to 100 persons interested in the development of the southern part of Fairfax County.

Senate Query on Fish Brings $19,000 Reply

(Associated Press.)

The Tariff Commission was required to spend $19,000, exclusive of regular staff salaries, to answer a simple Senate request—how many fish are brought into the United States and its possessions by aliens.

Its report, just printed for distribution, said the data had to be collected first hand from 56,000 vessel owners because no records of citizenship of such operators were available.

This was only one of approximately 60 investigations asked by the Senate after passage of the 1930 tariff bill.

Total landings of alien-owned vessels were 176,611,795 pounds, or 10.6 per cent. The figures used were for 1929.

Doherty Quits Board Of Petroleum Institute

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Henry L. Doherty, of Henry L. Doherty & Co., has resigned as a director of the American Petroleum Institute.

His place has been filled by Frank Coates, a director of Cities Service Co., and a vice president of Henry L. Doherty & Co. Mr. Doherty for some time, it was said, had intended to retire as a director of the institute.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

U. D. C. LAYS WREATH ON MARYLAND SHAFT

Ridgely Brown Group Honors Members Who Have Died in Last Two Years.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

A wreath containing 22 white carnations was laid on the Confederate Monument across from the Courthouse in Rockville yesterday by members of the Ridgely Brown Chapter, United Daughters of Confederacy. Each carnation was placed in the wreath by the family of each of the 22 members of the chapter, who have died in the last two years.

The wreath-laying was part of the annual memorial service held by the chapter, of which Mrs. John C. Weedon is president. The service was held at the home of Miss Charlotte Pumphrey at Rockville, with Mrs. Weedon, Miss Charlotte Pumphrey, Mrs. W. Guy Hicks and Miss Mary Pumphrey as hostesses.

Mrs. Charles O'Donnell Mackall, of Baltimore, State president of the U. D. C.; Mrs. Forbes Shaw, former State president; Mrs. Harriman, of Baltimore; Mrs. May Sellman, of Frederick, first president and organizer of the Ridgely Brown Chapter, and Mrs. Louis Thomas, of Frederick, were honor guests.

Mrs. Mackall stressed the importance of the Georgia G. Bright fund, which provides pensions for the widows and orphans of Confederate veterans and congratulated the chapter in having oversubscribed its quota. Mrs. Shaw talked on the U. D. C. scholarships at St. Mary's Seminary. The Ridgely Brown Chapter maintains a scholarship at the seminary under the scholarship plan.

Mrs. Weedon presided at the memorial services at which the white carnations were placed in the wreath by relatives of the deceased and with the State officers headed the procession to the Confederate Monument.

Miss Willie Green Day, executive director of the Montgomery County Social Service League, will address the League of Women Voters Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lavinia Hart Engle, Forest Glen.

Miss Day, who recently took over her duties with the county organization, will talk on "The Place of Social Welfare in a County Supported Program." The meeting also will consider other legislative questions, led by Miss Lavinia Engle, county delegate to the Maryland House of Delegates.

The Chevy Chase Gardens Citizens Association ended its second year of activity with a dinner at the Olney Inn. The dinner was a progressive affair, after each course the men moving forward three places, taking with them their silver, water glass and napkin. This provided an opportunity to become acquainted and was voted a huge success.

Charles E. Jackson, chairman of the commttee on arrangements, acted as toastmaster. Robert E. Littleton, president of the association, declared that the dinner was a success because of its community spirit. Mrs. George W. Henderson read the minutes. Freedrick H. Cox presented the president with a miniature inn. Mrs. Charles E. Jackson gave a basket of grass to Richard Hunt, while Mrs. G. H. Fonken and Mrs. C. H. Ziegler each received a scarecrow with a guarantee against lawn trespassing. A sing, led by Dr. Z. V. Alderman, jr., with Mrs. Alderman at the piano, followed the dinner, after which dancing and bridge completed the program for the evening.

Suit for limited divorce from William B. Ridgeway, of Forest Glen, was filed in circuit court at Rockville yesterday by Mrs. Mary A. Ridgeway, also of Forest Glen. The wife alleged cruelty on the part of her husband. She asks that he be enjoined from interfering with her or their two minor children and from entering their home pending the outcome of the divorce proceedings.

The wife charges that the husband assaulted and beat her and that he is a habitual drunkard and has been arrested several times and convicted on charges of drunkenness. The couple was married January 18, 1921, at Washington.

William T. Moxley, of Cabin John, yesterday filed suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. Marie Moxley, also of Cabin John. The husband charges infidelity and names a corespondent. The couple was married December 24, 1930, at Frederick, Md.

Montgomery County police of the Bethesda substation will enforce rigidly the new fireworks ordinance, which prohibits the setting off of fireworks in the Bethesda area except between July 1 and 4, inclusive, Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, in command of the substation, announced yesterday.

A number of residents have objected to the explosion of fireworks on the streets recently. The new law went into effect June 1. A second provision which prohibits the sale of fireworks does not become effective until January 1, 1932. Violations of the law carry a penalty of $25.

DIED

DUMPING PROTESTS HEARD IN ARLINGTON

County Board Promises That Protection Will Be Given Property Holders.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Protesting against the operation of a dump at the intersection of the Washington-Richmond highway and the new Four-Mile Run road recently built by the county, Joseph McDonnell appeared before the county board of supervisors at its meeting yesterday.

Mr. McDonnell said, "I have paid taxes in Arlington County for the past twenty years and have always had to obtain a permit before I could build anything on my own property. I want to know why a permit was not necessary for the operation of this dump and also on whose authority the new fence was torn down."

Chairman Edward Duncan informed Mr. McDonnell that he would have to see Dr. P. M. Chichester, the health officer, as the board did not issue permits for dumps.

Mr. McDonnell replied that he had seen the health officer. "Have not citizens of this county a right to protest where they have been injured? I have already lost one tenant as a result of this dump," he declared.

Fence Removed by Mistake.

Mr. Duncan stated that the fence was taken down by mistake and he would have it replaced.

"This is all politics," declared Mr. Duncan. To this remark, Mr. McDonnell replied, "You talk of playing politics; you moved into Arlington County so you coul play politics."

At this point Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth interferred and asked for the ordinance book.

The ordinance reads:

"No one shall operate a dump in Arlington County until a permit is first obtained from the county health department."

Mr. Gloth stated "anyone who starts a dump in Arlington County without a permit, I shall prosecute."

Mr. McDonnell, determined to find out who ordered the fence down, was told by Chairman Duncan to "either talk right or sit down. I have taken enough from you." Mr. McDonnell declared that he was talking right and that "you will take more off of me."

Mr. Duncan stated that all the trouble over the dump is unnecessary, as the dump is located in the City of Alexandria.

Woman Joins In Fight.

Mrs. Alice S. Semones, a resident of Aurora Hills, which is but a short distance from the dump in question, taking up the fight, declared that there had been dumping done within the limits of Arlington County.

"I was at the dump on Thursday," she said, "and learned from some of the drivers that you were operating this dump and I would have to see you, as permission to dump had been obtained from you."

No answer was given as to who ordered the fence taken down.

Mrs. Semones stated that she did not object to the filling up of vacant land where necessary but did object to the burning of such trash that caused odors which were coming from this dump and which she could prove if any official would come to her home at night.

The statement by Chairman Duncan that there would be no dump in Arlington County apparently settled the question.

Traffic Survey Is Indorsed.

The board, upon motion of Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, unanimously indorsed the traffic survey which is being sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Bureau of Public Roads. The clerk was instructed to write letters to Representative Howard W. Smith and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the planning commission, advising them of the action taken by the board.

Arthur Orr, president of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council, appearing before the board, called its attention to the work the council is doing toward cleaning up the county for the celebration next year and asked its cooperation in making it possible to have all vacant property cleaned up, and especially to have the tall grass cut.

Mr. Orr cited ordinances which have been passed by a number of cities in the State and asked the board to consider the adoption of such an ordinance for Arlington County.

Chairman Duncan stated that the matter will be considered by Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth and County Engineer C. L. Kinnier, who will make a report at the next meeting.

Mr. Orr left with Mr. Gloth copies of a number of ordinances which he has received from cities bearing on the question.

Vacations Are Allowed.

The board voted to grant a two weeks' vacation to all county employes who have been with the county one year or more. To those employes who have not been on the pay roll of the county for a year they will be given a vacation in proportion to the time they have been employed.

Meeting again on Monday, the board will consider the question of asking for bids for the building of the old Georgetown-Alexandria pike, better known as the Oil Tank road, in Rosslyn and the Little Tea House road to Columbia pike.

Attorney Bernard Miller, of Culpeper, counsel for the seven women of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County against whom a motion for judgment has been filed in the circuit court of Arlington County, filed a demurrer to the notice of motion yesterday.

Attorney Miller bases his demurrer on the following grounds:

First—The notice is insufficient in law to enable the plaintiff to obtain judgment against the defendant, conceding all the allegations to be true.

Second—Conceding all the allegations of fact to be true, there can be no recovery because the statements alleged to be defamatory and libelous are privileged under the conditions and circumstances as set forth in the notice.

Third. The allegations in the notice are to the effect that the defendants and each of them maliciously gave the paper writings about which complaint is made to a representative of a Washington newspaper. Even if this be true, there can be no recovery because the alleged communication was clearly a privileged one as to the plaintiff, who was not a party to the proceedings referred to and set forth in the notice of motion.

Fourth. Assuming all the allegations in the notice to be true, there can be no recovery in this case because the claim for damages is general in nature. In order for a corporation to recover damages for libel against an individual special damages must be alleged.

With the St. Charles' Catholic Church at Clarendon filled to its capacity, the commencement exercises for St. Charles' School were held last night.

The Rev. John A. Curran, pastor, delivered the address to the graduating class, numbering ten pupils, after which he presented the diplomas.

Those who received their diplomas were Elizabeth Ashton, Alice Cavanagh, Eleanor Davis, Bernard Pearson, Caroline Humphry, Francis Madigan, Muriel McCormick, Catherine Miles, Carmel Williams and William Zimmerman.

The high school Palmer certificate was presented to Elizabeth Ashton, while Eleanor Davis, Margaret Childs and Irene Gessner received the Palmer diploma.

Improvement certificates were presented to Helen Burke, Margaret Humphrey, Cornelia Barker, Phyllis Beuchert, Elizabeth Burrows, Ruth Cavanagh, Charlotte Cranston, Agnes Lesieur, Isabel Moore, Roberta Mullin, Mary Parker and Agnes Sherwood.

Certificates for scholarship, deportment and attendance were presented to Elizabeth Ashton, Eleanor Davis, Caroline Humphrey and Francis Madigam, eighth grade; Marie Milks, seventh grade; Ruth Cavanagh, Charlotte Cranston, Isabel Moore, Charles Moore and Agnes Sherwood, sixth grade; Catherine Kirchner, Elizabeth Manning, Miriam McGrath and Albert Morris, fifth grade; Richard Coleman, Frances Frazier, Elinor Hazlette, Louis Metzger, Jerry Moore, and Frances O'Brien, fourth grade; Margaret Miller, Josephine Becker, and John Slater, third grade; Albert Cyr, Rita Mattare, Bennie Joe Smith, and Peggy Sherwood, first grade.

Deportment and attendance certificates were presented to:

Eighth grade—Alice Cavanagh, Catherine Miles, William Zimmerman. Seventh grade—Joseph Barker, Robert Moore, James Mullin and James Puglizi. Sixth grade—Cornelia Parker, Pauline Becker and Dorothy Dowden. Fifth grade—Rita Becker, Dorothy Corkery, Anthony Mattare, Catherine Miles, Frances Mills and Thomas Simpson. Fourth grade—Eyvette Couleman, Margaret Frazier, Vincent Krichner, John Manning, Marie Moore and Margaret Parker. Third grade—Katherine Burrows, William Coleman, Katherine Dowden, Vera Halliday, Vivian Halliday, Donald Kirchner, Robert Mattare, Evelyn Morris. Second grade—Marie Frazier, Martha Hendley, Theodore Kirchner and Jane Manning. First grade—Teresa Burkley, Gerald Coleman, Rene Coleman, Margaret Druchenmiller, Margaret Dowden Joseph Madigan, Hugh McGrath, John Miller and Donnelly Starkey.

Sunday School Day will be observed tomorrow at the Clarendon Methodist Church with special services conducted at 11 o'clock. A program, with representatives of all departments of the school, will be given at that hour.

Evening services will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. John H. Pearson.

With the closing of the public schools in Arlington County yesterday more than 5,000 children packed away their books for a three-month vacation.

Hoover to wage relentless war on racketeering. The Internal Revenue Bureau and the Justice Department took up a trail that led through the heart of Chicago and New York gangland into the haunts of killers where the agents' lives hung in the balance.

Officials, while declining yesterday to be quoted directly, believed the campaign was nearing success. They had not been informed of the indictments, which had been expected, and withheld comment until this information was received.

However, it was pointed out that the prohibition conspiracy indictments were based largely upon evidence turned up by agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau in obtaining indictment of Capone for income tax frauds. Estimates were made that the intelligence section of the bureau over a long period of years had obtained convictions in more than 90 per cent of the cases it had built. Since the Government went after gangsters in various parts of the country not a case tried has failed of conviction.

decision and yet unable to see a cabinet without Bruening as chancellor in the present international situation.

In political circles it is therefore felt that Bruening, together with President Von Hindenburg, must find some way to make it possible for the populists to retrace their steps.

In Berlin the boerse had a bad session, both foreign and domestic investors throwing stocks on the market, while there appeared to be a shortage of dollar bank notes, causing the boerse committee to issue checks on New York cashable in bank notes within two weeks.

Publication of Germany's financial balance sheet for the fiscal year ended March 31, revealed there was an ordinary budget deficit of 1,190,000,000 marks (approximately $275,000,000), and an extraordinary budget deficit of 334,900,000 marks (approximately $77,000,000).

ALLIES PLAN TO SEE MELLON ON DEBTS

Conversion Scheme to Reduce Interest Charges Will Be Proposed.

Basel, Switzerland, June 12 (A.P.). The Havas News Agency said tonight it had learned that while Andrew W. Mellon, Amerihan Secretary of the Treasury, is in Europe he will be approached on the possibility of conversion of the interallied bedts now being paid by Germany through the Bank for International Settlements.

According to Havas, a plan was discussed at Chequers bp the British and German statesmen by which advantage could be taken of better interest rates that had been developed in the past few years. While leaving the interallied debt totals intact, it was said the plan would make a saving of from $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000, which Germany coold nse to aid her interior financial situation.

The news agency stated the German statesmen, before they went to Chequers, were persuaded by officials of the Bank for International Settlements not to ask for a moratorium, which, they said, would hurt the nation's credit, but to attempt to obtain allied support on the plan for conversion of interallied debts paid by Germany through unconditional reparation payments.

England and France, which was kept informed by England, according to Havas, were unwilling to take the question up directly with the United States, but raised no objections in principle.

The possible savings on the Young plan payments under the conversion would be accredited to the allied creditors, and the plan is for them to turn it over to Germany.

The news agency attributes to the former allies an intention to meet before next year's Geneva disarmament conference in order to decide among themselves the maximum armament budgets, with the purpose of satisfying opinion in this respect and to make conversations on war debts more palatable to American opinion.

TRADE GROUP BURIES GEN. GLOOM ON TRIP

Capital Manufacturers and Merchants Off on Outing to Norfolk.

Gen. Gloom, bogey man of the business world, was lowered into the Potomac River at appropriate services at 9:3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when more than 160 members of the Washington Merchants and Manufacturers Association and their guests sailed from Seventh street wharf on board the Southland for a three-day cruise of the Chesapeake Bay.

Old man Gloom was symbolized by a black box about the size of a coffin. It was lowered to its watery grave by Mark Lansburgh, president of the association, and Dr. M. G. Gibbs, chairman of the outing committee. As the box descended on the peaceful waters of the Potomac, Mr. Lansburgh remarked:

"There has been too much unnecessary talk of gloom in Washington in the past year or so. As a matter of fact, Washington has been much better off than most other cities. Gen. Gloom proved to be an elusive old fellow when it came to catching him, but here he is and here's hoping this is the last we see of him."

Splash! and then Gen. Gloom disappeared beneath the river while the crowd of business men and their friends cheered.

By nightfall the excursionists were well on their way to Old Point Comfort, marking the first stopping place on their twenty-first annual outing, the first held since 1929. The Southland is due to dock at Old Point Comfort at 8 o'clock this morning. Those wishing to play golf will go ashore, and the boat will go on to Norfolk for a short stay, returning to the golfers later in teh morning.

Newport News will be visited this afternoon. The President Hoover and Presidentn Coolidge, two new ships under construction, will be inspected. The Southland will sail near the Capes of Virginia tonight. The Naval Academy, at Annapolis, will be visited tomorrow. The gloom-dispersing ship is due back in Washington Monday morning.

Miss Earhart Safe In Autogiro Crash

Windmill Plane Is Forced Down in Automobile Parking Lot.

Abilene, Tex., June 12 (A.P.).—By expert handling of her autogiro Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, veteran woman flier, escaped injury today and avoided striking a crowd of spectators when she was forced to set the ship down in an automobile parking lot. Her mechanic, Eddie DeVaught, also was unhurt.

The aviatrix was attempting to take off from the Abilene Airport, continuing her flight eastward from California, when the mishap occurred.

When she saw she had not gained sufficient altitude to clear a line of parked automobiles, Mrs. Putnam sent the "flying windmill" down steeply to an area clear of spectators and stalled the motor. Wings of the craft grazed three cars, denting the tops and breaking the windshield of one. The automobiles were not occupied.

Bank of U. S. Trial Nears Conclusion

Four Men Charged With Plot to Defraud at Bar Eleven Weeks.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The case of the State of New York against four officials of the Bank of the United States for conspiracy to defraud—one of the longest trials in Manhattan's history—was near conclusion tonight.

Final arguments of the defense counsel were heard today as the trial neared the end of its eleventh week before Judge George L. Donnellan and a jury in general sessions court.

Those on trial are Bernard K. Marcus, president of the closed bank; Saul Singer, executive vice president; Herbert Singer, his son, a law clerk, and Henry W. Pollock, a vice president and director. They are accused of wilful misapplication of the bank's funds.

Mrs. McLean Wins Divorce Suit Move

Publisher Notes Exception When Court Strikes Out Answer.

Justice Jesse Adkins, in District Supreme Court, yesterday struck from the court records the answer of Edward B. McLean, publisher of The Washington Post, to his wife's petition for an injunction to stop him from prosecuting a suit for divorce in Mexico.

The ruling leaves Mr. McLean technically without an answer, and, upon motion of Mrs. McLean's attorneys, Nelson B. Hartson and Albert W. Fox, the court granted a request that Mr. McLean be declared in default and that a decree "pro confesso" be entered in her favor.

The result is that at the end of 30 days Mrs. McLean can file an application to make permanent the temporary injunction she now holds restraining her husband from going any further with his Mexican suit. Attorneys Julius I. Peyser and George E. Edelin, for Mr. McLean, noted an exception to the action of the court in striking Mr. McLean's answer from the record.

Cuernavaca, Mexico, June 12 (U.P.). Court officials here said today that the attorney for Edward Beale McLean had requested the judge to withhold a decision in McLean's suit for divorce. The officials said that otherwise the court here would have proceeded regardless of the decison of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

SUNDAY THRONG DUE AT WOODLAND BEACH

Tomorrow Will Be Big Day; Lots' Low Prices Do Not Strain Budget.

Tomorrow promises to be another big day at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's new summer home development site on the South River in Maryland. For it will be another day on which visitors to the site will be welcomed and shown the advantages offered in this delightful retreat for summer homes.

Since the Woodland Beach project was announced, some four weeks ago, hundreds of Washington residents have visited the place on Sundays and holidays and a large percentage of the number have enrolled as lot owners.

They came to see and were more than pleased with what they saw. Woodland Beach has proven attractive to several hundred lot owners and daily others are adding their names to a rapidly growing list. Tomorrow will be a good day for you to visit the Beach, if you have not already gone, for you may find a bargain which you can not afford to overlook.

First of all the price of lots at Woodland Beach is low enough to prevent any straining of the family budget to purchase a site for a summer home. Only $93 for any lot on the development. Better still, you need not scrape up the $93 all at once. All you have to do is to pay $6 and the cost of a subscription to The Post before you make your choice. Then you make monthly payments of $3.50 until the entire amount has been cleared.

The location of Woodland Beach is another factor which has brought about its great popularity. It is such a short distance from Washington, only 32 miles, that persons owning summer home might easily spend nights there and get to the office on time in the morning.

It is reached over good roads via the Defense highway toward Annapolis as far as Camp Parole, turning right at that point onto Maryland State Highway No. 2 across the South River and then left onto Mayo road which leads to the Beach.

Persons who do not care to motor to the Beach may reach it by means of W. B. & A. electric cars today, leaving the line at Camp Parole, where all cars will be met by buses.

Woodland Beach is an ideal spot for your picnic lunch tomorrow. Come and bring your friends. You'll find it has many advantages including fishing, bathing and boating.

Peirce Is Building $400,000 Residence

Chicago Utility Man Begins Extensive Improvements on Virginia Estate.

The Cosden estate near Warrenton, Va., has been purchased by President Albert E. Peirce, Central Public Service Corporation, Chicago, who is building on it a residence costing approximately $400,000. The estate consists of about 3,600 acres and will be improved by a private race track.

The house is being built on the site of a large frame dwelling erected by J. Temple Gwathmey and later occupied by J. S. Cosden. It was destroyed by fire. The new house will be of Colonial style and is being constructed of brick from old structures that have been razed in Alexandria.

Many workmen are engaged in construction of the building and in the landscaping of the grounds which will contain a tennis club, courts and swimming pool. In addition to the race track and its stables, there are being built kennels for hunting dogs. The estate also includes a farm house.

Mrs. Wilson Accepts Invitation of Poland

(Associated Press.)

The Polish Embassy announced yesterday that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson definitely had accepted an invitation to be present at Poznac, Poland, for the dedication of a memorial to the wartime President.

A partial list of other American guests at the celebration July 4 also was made public. It included Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board, and Mrs. Baruch; Robert U. Johnson, former American Ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. John Edward, of Chicago, formerly Miss Lucy M. Bolling, a niece of Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson will sail on the Leviathan next week.

Hamline Church To Greet Pastor

Dr. Burgan Will Preach Tomorrow; Reception on Thursday.

Hamline Methodist Church will greet its new pastor, Dr. Harry Wilson Burgan, tomorrow. Dr. and Mrs. Burgan have already met their official board and their wives at a luncheon at the National Press Club. Next Thursday evening a reception will be given them at the church, at which Dr. Chesteen Smith, the retiring minister, and his wife will be bidden godspeed. Dr. Smith and Dr. Burgan have exchanged ecclesiastical positions.

Dr. Burgan is a graduate of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, Baltimore Business College, Drew Theological Seminary, and also did graduate work in Johns Hopkins University. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred on him by St. John's College at Annapolis, Md.

In connection with his assignment at Calvary Church, Annapolis, where he was located for nine years, covering the war period, he cared for the Methodist interests among the midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy and other service men located at Annapolis at that time.

He has been a member of the last two general conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was elected a delegate to a third conference, which meets in Atlantic City in May, 1932. He is a trustee of American University, Goucher College and Morgan College. He is also the recording secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Burgan is a graduate of Goucher College and did graduate work in Johns Hopkins University. She was also a teacher in the Maryland School for the Blind.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL IN NATION FORESEEN

Times Held to Be Ripe for Awakening That Will Pervade Country.

Those who think deeply into social and religious problems seem to see just ahead of this country another so-called religious awakening. The times, they say, call for such an event; the conditions are propitious for it. Men are praying for it as never before, and people are talking about it as if it were just around the corner.

In the Episcopal Church, for instance, the Bishops' Crusade, organized by Bishop Darst, of North Carolina, has stirred that denomination, it is said, mightily. In the Catholic Church the activity of the missionary priests was never so great in this country, nor the interest in their work so pronounced. In the Baptist Church the revival spirit never dies down.

There are some ministers who look askance at revivals or awakenings. They express the hope that they will never see one. Probably their hopes will be granted. But the true religious leader of any faith, it seems to me, should be burning with a zeal to bring unconverted and unrighteous people into some sort of relation to God.

Told by Professor.

It is not my purpose to discuss this further. These brief preliminary remarks were occasioned by the recent publication of a rather remarkable book by a Washington professor of history, Prof. W. M. Gewehr, of the American University, on what is perhaps the greatest revival of religion America ever had. His book is entitled "The Great Awakening in Virginia in 1740-1790."

This subject has been considered by historians aforenow. Joseph Tracy in 1841 wrote the classic work, "The Great Awakening," which covered the whole field in one wide sweep. In 1920 Prof. Charles H. Maxson, of the University of Pennsylvania, took it up in one section and wrote "The Great Awakening in the Middle Colonies," a thesis for his doctorate. He was preceded in 1916 by Miss Catherine C. Cleveland, who wrote "The Great Revival in the West, 1797-1805." Prof. Gewehr confines his study to one colony, the Old Dominion.

Washington Strong Churchman.

How little we know of our own history, the sources from which some of the greatest events in it have come. Just now the biographies of our great men are being rewritten, and we are promised at last definitive biographies of Washington and Jefferson and others. No master biographer of these two great Virginians can neglect Prof. Gewehr's book, for while neither was much influenced religiously by "The Great Awakening," Washington firmly believed and stoutly maintained that all the people should be taxed to support one church, and Jefferson claims on his tombstone the fatherhood of the Virginia statute of religious freedom.

If Prof. Gewehr determines any one fact, it is that "The Great Awakening" in the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist Churches, in the order named, not only laid the foundation for religious freedom in Virginia but actually trained the men who under Jefferson's inspired leadership wrote that immortal statute on the records of Virginia. More than that, it was out of this movement that the great Democratic party was born, for it was primarily a contest between the plebeian and the aristocrat.

Influence on Constitution.

While the political aspect of the great awakening does not concern us so much as its religious phases, Prof. Gewehr discloses to us how much even the great Constitution of 1787 owes to this revival. It was not popular in Virginia with the masses, particularly with the Baptists, whose ministers had been so terribly persecuted. Among them the Rev. John Leland was all-powerful. At first he opposed the Constitution, and ran against James Madison as a delegate to the State ratifying convention. Something caused him to withdraw in the interest of Madison when he had the victory won. Had he not done so, Virginia would never have ratified the Constitution and a new one would have had to be written. In this instance a Christian minister giving way to an infidel philosopher changed the destiny of this country.

To religious people, however, the real importance of this study is the light it throws on society in Virginia and how it was changed and shaped under the preaching of an evangelical gospel. Its influence was not confined to the unauthorized sects, however. Devereaux Jarratt, one of the great figures in the Episcopal Church, who went from a tender of gamecocks and race horses to an evangelical position that would have pleased John Wesley, became part and parcel of the movement. He balked at the emotionalism of the circuit rider, but he recognized the social value of the circuit rider's preaching and opened his pulpit to Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist in turn.

Conservator of Peace.

Coming right after the Revolutionary War, when ethical and moral standards were lowered, as they have been lowered by the World War, "The Great Awakening" was the conservator of peace, the propulsive power of new emotions, which kept our ancestors from cutting each others' throats. Religion stirred and humbled the proud and arrogant hearts of the infidel mob.

Old Peter Cartwright, who was born in Amherst County, Va., during that period, is a typical example. He became a famous Methodist circuit rider and politician, running against Lincoln as the Democratic nominee for Congress. In his childhood he and his brothers were so wicked that when their mother left home she tied them up to trees to keep them from killing each other. His classic autobiography is but a continuation of the story of the great Western revival.

When the next great revival comes people will wonder at it, just as they wondered at the first one at Pentecost, and have wondered at every repetition of Pentecost. They will want to know the origin and the sources of these social movements. Prof. Gewehr's book will enlighten them on the greatest of them.

It is not a complete book, for it fails to trace the migration that followed the revival which led Virginians to flee their State and go to other States, notably to Kentucky, which was colonized by this revival or got its colonization impulse from the persecution that attended it. To Kentucky went a vast number of Baptists, which accounts for the presence of the Clays and the Marshalls and the Bledsoes and other families in the Dark and Bloody Hunting Ground. They fertilized the blood of Kentucky and then moved over into Illinois and Indiana and Ohio and strengthened the bloodlines in those young Commonwealths. It may be that this forced the Lincoln family out of the Shenandoah Valley. Who knows?

CHURCHES ARRANGE FOR CHILDREN'S DAY

Tableaux, Pageants, Other Events on Programs Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is Children's Day in many of the churches in Washington. It is variously observed. Some churches have a set program which comes from their general headquarters. Others arrange their own programs. In some the exercises take the hour given over to the regular Sunday-school work; in others the program is held in the church auditorium and takes the place of the regular morning worship. The general idea, of course, is to let the children appear before their elders in such a public way that the parents can see what is being done in the Sunday school to give their children proper religious instruction.

While by no means complete, the following programs from some of the churches will give an idea of what all of them are undertaking to do:

Francis Asbury M. E. Church South—"Recognition," a presentation by the entire Sunday school.

Mount Pleasant Congregational Church—The children and young people will present a pageant, the central theme of which is "The Search of Mankind for God." There will be eight tableaux showing the worship of early man, the worship of God through nature, the search of a little child for God, a Jewish festival of thanksgiving for God, the search of the Oriental for God, how the Christian finds his God, God in the home and the worship of God in the historic church.

Have Parts in Pageant.

The presentation of the pageant will be under the general supervision of Miss Lois M. Kugler, director of religious education, and the members of the church school having parts include Misses Virginia Rand, Margaret Strong, Eloise Collingwood, Betsy Ross, Peggy Smalz, Edith Hammer, Alice McFall and Katharine Lewis, Mrs. R. J. McFall and William Powell, Gordon Livingston, Thomas Collingwood, Clinton Phillips, Edmund Chandler, Charles Dixon Robert Hewitt, Frank Chapin, Howard Brooks, Warren Davis, Charles Howard, Norton L. Marshall, Charles Collingwood, Robert Livingston and a chorus of kindergarten and primary department children.

Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church—A special program will be presented in the Bible school at 9:45 a. m. The Bible school will have a share also in the English worship hour at 11:15 a. m.

Luther Place Memorial Church—The pageant, "The Castle of Life," will be presented by the Sunday school. The offering at this service is for the support of the protege of the church, Alfred Sheasley, in the Tressler Orphans Home at Loyasville, Pa.

At First Congregational.

First Congregational Church—A pageant entitled "The Church and Her Children" will be given by the Sunday school. Bibles will be presented to members of the Sunday school who united with the church during the preceding year. A Christian flag will be dedicated at this service, which is being presented to the church by the Young People's Society.

The Metropolitan Baptist Church—Sunday morning Children's Day exercises will be held. The acting superintendent, Mr. Leroy T. Gravatte, will be in charge. An address will be delivered by the pastor, the Rev. John Compton Ball, on "How God Cares for His Children."

Church of the Epiphany—The closing exercises of the winter session will be held at 9:30, with an address by the rector at 10:15. The service will be in charge of the Rev. Alvin Lamar Wills, associate minister and superintendent of the school.

National City Christian Church—Children's day will be celebrated in the church school by a religious play entitled "A Garden Idyl," given under the direction of Mrs. Helen Turley, and participated in by 25 of the younger children assisted by the junior or chapel choir, composed of 30 young girls.

Mount Vernon Place.

Mount Vernon Place Church—The Sunday school day program will be observed at 11 o'clock under the direction of the general superintendent, Dr. C. F. Clark. The pastor, Dr. W. A. Shelton, will give a short sermon as a part of this program, using for his subject, "The Staff of Life."

Washington City Church of the Brethren—Sunday, June 21, will be celebrated as children's day. The pastor will preach a special sermon for the children tomorrow.

At Georgetown Presbyterian Church children's day will be observed at 11 o'clock. The children of the Sunday school will attend the morning service in a body. They will take part in the service and the sermon will be especially for them. The superintendent of the Sunday school, Frank P. Leeteh, will direct the services and the Rev. Frank S. Niles, the minister of the church, will preach the sermon.

New York Avenue Presbyterian Church—In recognition of children's day, the sacrament of infant baptism will be observed at the morning service. During the worship service the Church Bible School will join in the Nation-wide observance of children's day. A special program will take place at 9:30 with Willard Catchell, superintendent of the young people's department, in charge of this program.

By Brightwood Methodists.

Brightwood Park Methodist Church—The annual children's day exercises will consist of the program, "The Hidden Treasure," at 10 o'clock, and a pageant, "Ways and the Way," at 8 p. m. Old and young are invited.

Chevy Chase Baptist Church—Exercises by kindergarten children and a pageant, "Beautiful Summertime," will be given by the children of the primary and junior departments. The children taking part are as follows: Lois Lord, Stanley Fraser, Letitia Earle, James Crupper, Margaret Hughes, Howard Lord, Mary Jane Little, Billy Noack, Constance Cook, Roger Yoakum, Virginia Rose Kostulski, Virginia Clark, Betty Crandall, Betty Booth, Rennie Gulick, Nancy Lee Walls, Ann Gottlieb, Betty Whester, Shirley McNutt, Marian Likens, Donald Jackson, Chester Finch, Graham Clark, Eugene Sibley, Morgan Little, Harriet Patterson, Betty Shields, Dorothy Jackson, Arthur Crandall, Phyllis Minevatti, Wilton Fraser, Katherine Mannion, Ruth Finch and Joseph Gulick. A young people's chorus under the direction of Mrs. W. A. Reilly will render an offertory selection. A service of dedication of infants will also feature the exercises.

Takoma Park Baptist Church—The church and Sunday school will meet together tomorrow morning in observance of Children's Day. There will be exercises by the children of the various departments of the Sunday school.

Pageant in Petworth.

Petworth Methodist Church—Children's Day will be observed tomorrow. The children will gather at 10 a. m. and at 10:30 proceed to the church auditorium, where a pageant entitled "The Spirit of Children's Day" will be given by a group of the children under the direction of Miss Margaret Hibble.

The evening service of helpfulness at 8 o'clock will also be given over to the children. A group of boys and girls from the Junior Department of the church school will assist the pastor. All the special musical numbers will be provided by them. Robert Smith will play a guitar solo. "Nearer My God to Thee;" Wilson and Henry Jones will sing in a duet; Freda Velley will render a vocal solo, accompanied by her sister Alice Velley, at the piano. The offertory will be a cello solo, "On Wings of Song" by Wayne Hill. None of the performers is over 12 years of age, and most of them are younger.

The reports to the annual conference which recently met in Baltimore proved so stimulating to the congregation of Petworth that the year 1931-32 has been designated by the official board as "advance year." The first project is the paying off the indebtedness on the church, which still amounts to several thousand dollars, and thus clear the way for the erection of a much needed addition to the present plant for the use of the church school.

RAYMOND E. RAPP.

Church to Observe 65th Anniversary

West Washington Baptists Will Have Exercises on Thursday.

The sixty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the West Washington Baptist Church will be observed next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school auditorium. The special feature will be a reunion with former pastors and members. The church has had thirteen pastors, five of whom are now living—the Rev. George E. Truett, the Rev. C. C. Coleman, the Rev. Clarence P. Stanley, the Rev. W. R. Flannagan and the Rev. C. E. Austin, the present pastor.

The West Washington Baptist Church was constituted with eleven members June 19, 1866. They were Arthur M. Appler, Burr P. Nichols, J. C. Nichlos, J. G. Hedgeman, James W. Hanes, W. R. Britton, Susannah Nichols, Susan Maddox, Helen M. Appler, James Nelson and Sarah Nelson. It was formally organized July 9, 1866, by a council composed of the following ministers: The Rev. G. W. Sampson, the Rev. A. D. Gillette, the Rev. J. Berg, the Rev. C. C. Meadow and the Rev. S. R. White.

The church worshiped for over two years after its organization on Market street in a chapel, the use of which was granted by the Bridge Street Presbyterian Church. The house of worship at Gay and Congress streets was dedicated on October 11, 1868.

The Rev. James Nelson, under whose ministry the church was organized, became the first pastor. He resigned March 1, 1872. The old church, a frame structure, was partly destroyed by fire in 1899. This was replaced by the present brick structure, at which time the church name became West Washington Baptist Church, because of the change of nomenclature in the streets of old Georgetown.

St. Paul's to Dedicate Church Sunday, June 21

St. Paul's Lutheran Church will dedicate its new edifice on next Sunday, June 21, instead of tomorrow. The date was postponed on account of the death of Mrs. Henry W. Snyder, wife of the minister. All plans for the social activities in connection with the dedication of the new church have been set aside.

Dr. N. J. Gould Wickey will preach for Dr. Snyder tomorrow morning. There will be no vespers service and no midweek prayer service. Tomorrow the Sunday school, which has been meeting for nearly a century at Eleventh and H streets, will hold its last session in the old church. On the following Sunday the united schools of this church and Epiphany will hold their regular session, as will the united congregations, in the new church.

Baptist Bible School Exercises on Monday

The closing exercises of the Bible School of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches will be held at the First Baptist Church on Monday evening.

Those on the program are Drs. H. W. O. Millington, B. F. Robertson, director of the school, Samuel Judson Porter and F. W. Johnson.

School to Train Church Workers.

The Presbyterian Summer Training School for the Baltimore Synod convens June 27 to July 3 in the Majorie Webster School of Expression and Physical Education, Sixteenth street at the edge of Rock Creek Park. This training school is for church workers and teachers of Sunday schools.

Prayer Circle to Study Muller.

"A Venture in Faith," lessons from the life of George Muller by Henry T. Hamblin, will be taken up for study by the St. Stephen's Prayer Circle when that group meets in the Chapel of the Incarnation, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest, Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

R. E. RAPP CHOSEN BAPTIST ORGANIST

Will Handle Instrument in Auditorium at B. Y. P. Convention.

Raymond E. Rapp, one of Washington's outstanding organists, has been obtained as the official organist for the "Magnetic Fortieth" convention of the Baptist Young People of America, in Washington from July 8 to 12. Mr. Rapp will handle the great organ at the Washington Auditorium, where all the sessions of the convention will be held.

Raymond E. Rapp became organist of the First Baptist Church here in February, 1928. He came here from St. Louis, where he had been organist of the First Presbyterian Church, the Episcopal Church of Holy Communion, and the B'Nai El Temple.

In 1916, Mr. Rapp became a colleague of the American Guild of Organists and was awarded the A. A. G. O. in 1923. Mr. Rapp is a charter member of the Missouri Chapter of the National Association of Organists.

He appeared as conductor with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in a music festival in 1927 in the Belleville High School, in which he was supervisor of the music department.

While Mr. Rapp is a member of the music supervisors' national conference some of his choral compositions were promoted by the Educational Music Bureau of Chicago. These compositions have been acclaimed in music festivals in Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and other cities, and appeared on programs of contestants in a national college glee club contest.

Mr. Rapp has earned a place in the front ranks of the Capital's musicians.

FRANCISCANS PLAN HONORS FOR SAINT

Apostolic Delegate to Preside Over Mass Tomorrow at Monastery.

The Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, will preside at the solemn mass offered in the Franciscan Monastery Church, Brokland, tomorrow at 10 o'clock, it being the celebration of the seventh centenary of the death of St. Anthony of Padua, an illustrious member of the Franciscan Order.

The musical program for the occasion will be rendered by the Monastery Choir, while the sermon will be delivered by the Very Rev. Cuthbert Dittmeier.

Before the mass the time-honored ceremony of blessing and distributing St. Anthony's lilies will take place. At 3:30 there will be the afternoon services of compline and solemn benediction.

On the anniversary date itself, today, there will be a high mass with benediction of the blessed sacrament and veneration of the relic of St. Anthony at 8 o'clock.

Catholic Radio Hour.

The Rev. John A. McClorey, S. J., of Detroit University; the Rev. James M. Gillis, C. S. P., editor of the Catholic World, and the Rev. Dr. Fulton J. Sheen, professor of philosophy of religion at the Catholic University of America, will return as speakers in the Catholic hour of radio broadcasting.

The Very Rev. Dr. Edward J. Walsh, vice president of St. John's College, Brooklyn, who was to have concluded his series of addresses on July 5, will continue to be the speaker in the Catholic Hour until August, it also was announced. Dr. Walsh's topic will continue to be "Divine Helps for Men," and his addresses will deal further with the sacraments.

To Conduct Question Box.

The Rev. Joseph I. Molloy, professor of apologetics at the Apostolic Mission House at the Catholic University of America, will conduct the question box in the Catholic Hour for eight Sundays, beginning June 21.

Father Molloy has had long experience in this work, having had charge of the question box on the Paulist Station WLWL, New York, for some time. He also has had considerable experience as a missionary priest.

The Need of Bringing Our Children to God

"Suffer the little children to come unto me." Mark x:14.

ON a Monday morning some years ago 25 boys appeared for trial in a juvenile court. The judge said to the boys: "All who have ever attended Sunday school raise your hands." Only two hands went up. Further questioning revealed that even these two had not been in a Sunday school for more than a year.

Lack of religious training is not the only cause involved in the waywardness of youth, but it is a very important one. This makes the observance of Children's Day in our churches of particular importance. By this observance we would emphasize Jesus' command to bring little children unto Him.

More than ever before attention is being given to the proper physical and mental development of children. Sound bodies and active minds, however, are not sufficient for good citizenship. The moral and spiritual qualities of life must also be developed, for without these there can be no noble living. These can be nurtured only in fellowship with God.

Early must we lead our children to know God through Jesus Christ and to enter into fellowship with Him, so that His Spirit can abide in them and work through them.

Synod of Baltimore Will Meet Next Week

The Synod of Baltimore and Women's Synodical Society for Missions will meet at Hood College, Frederick, Md., next week.

Among the women who will represent New York Avenue Presbyterian Church at the conference are the following: Mrs. Brodie, Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Edgington, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Hugh Smith, Mrs. Stone, Mrs. Girts and Miss Bailey.

Elmhurst Glee Club Will Sing in Church

The Elmhurst College Glee Club, of Elmhurst, Ill., will give a concert in Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church, on next Saturday, at 8:15 p. m. Three years ago the Elmhurst Glee Club sang in Washington and received favorable commendation from the music critics, who said that it was one of the best glee clubs that sang here that season.

Criticisms of the Elmhurst Glee Club's concerts this season show that its work this year compares very favorably with that of previous seasons.

Representative to Address Class.

Richard Yates, member of Congress from Illinois, will address the Harrison Bible Class of the Congress Street Methodist Protestant Church tomorrow morning.

CENSUS IS PLANNED OF ALUMNI OF C. E.

Hope Entertained That 50,000 in Capital Will Enroll for Jubilee.

An enumeration of all former Christian Endeavorers in the city is being conducted by the C. E. Alumni Fellowship.

This census of former active members of the movement is to be taken during the next three weeks and the completed book of names will be formally presented at the golden jubilee convention of Christian Endeavor at San Francisco in July.

Enumerators have been appointed in each of the Protestant churches of the city, whose duty it will be to obtain on the census forms the names and a record of the year in which each former member of the society joined Christian Endeavor. It is expected that a number of prominent men and women of the Nation's Capital who have been identified with the Christian Endeavor movement since its formation in 1881 will be enrolled in this jubilee census.

Miss Monette Hallam, newly elected president of the C. E. Alumni Fellowship, who is directing the census from the society's headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. Building, said there were probably 50,000 persons in Washington who have been actively associated with C. E. at different times during the last 50 years. The workers in each of the churches will make an effort to enroll as many as possible.

The Sundays of June 14, 21 and 28 have been especially designated as C. E. census days in the churches.

Missionary to China to Preach.

Dr. R. E. Chambers, executive head of the Chinese Baptist Publication Society will preach at Fifth Baptist Church tomorrow night. Dr. Chambers was associated with Dr. C. C. Meador while a student of Columbian College, now George Washington University some 35 years ago and went out as missionary of the church more than 30 years ago.

Open-Air Festival Arranged by Church

Transfiguration Episcopal Church will hold an open air festival on next Thursday and Friday evenings. The women of the parish will serve a supper on the lawn from 5 to 7. A band concert and style show will be given during supper. Clyde Brooks and members of the National Theater Players will be guests at supper.

The men of the parish have a program of games and amusement during the rest of the evening. Through the courtesy of Col. Jones, the National Training School Boys Band will play, under the leadership of John D'Andelet, United States Marine Band. The Smithson Hodgsen School of Dancing, the Daughters of Job and several other groups will assist during the evening.

SUCCESS or FAILURE?

Success or failure?

These alternatives are staring every man and woman in the face today.

Not only in the generally accepted sense of financial well-being, but in the larger civic and moral aspect.

And every man and woman has within themselves to determine which they will choose.

There is only one way to succeed in whatever you attempt.

And that is to work constantly for the ideal which you have set for yourself.

Put your whole heart and soul into the endeavor and there can be no other result than success.

Consider the professional baseball player. How he trains for his job, how he goes upon the diamond with every nerve and muscle set for any contingency.

While playing he gives his best effort and his whole heart and soul to each individual play.

But this is not enough. When off the diamond he thinks about his job in a larger way.

He considers his past mistakes, so he will not make the same ones again. He thinks about better ways to do his job.

INDIFFERENCE IS THE GREATEST ENEMY TO SUCCESS IN ANY FIELD.

And it usually makes the difference between success and failure.

If you would succeed—think about your job and put your best into it.

Play the Game Square and HIT THE LINE HARD
YOUR SUCCESS WILL BE ASSURED

THE MAPES COMMITTEE.

Washingtonians have reason to be incensed at the procedure of the House committee which has pretended to study the fiscal relationship of the District and Federal governments. The primary function of this committee was to determine what portion of the District budget should be supplied by the Federal Government. Instead of devoting its attention to that subject the committee has apparently done nothing but devise new forms of taxation to impose upon the District.

The announcement by Chairman Mapes that the committee will recommend to Congress three different forms of higher taxes betrays a determination on the part of the committee to disregard all adjustment of fiscal relations. The committee has ignored the obvious injustice of the present arrangement. Instead of trying to work out a plan that would give the District an adequate budget based on fair contributions by the taxpayers and the Federal Government, the committee hopes to impose higher taxes upon Washington citizens.

The very fact that the committee has decided upon new taxes for the District before coming to any conclusion as to what portion of the cost of maintaining the National Capital should be borne by the Government, indicates that no change in the present arrangement is contemplated. How could the committee know that new taxes would be necessary, if it has not determined what portion of the revenue must be raised by taxation? It has put the cart before the horse. No amount of explaining will convince the public that this committee has acted upon anything but its own prejudices.

Apparently the Mapes committee conceived its duty to be vindication of the niggardly attitude taken by the House. When the controversy over fiscal relations arose in Congress the last time the Senate voted to increase the Federal allowance to $12,000,000. The House insisted that it remain at $9,000,000. A compromise was finally made on $9,500,000.

Under the pretense of studying the whole question of fiscal relations the House appointed the Mapes committee. But it is very evident now that all the House was seeking was a bludgeon to hold over the head of the Senate the next time the controversy arises.

Hearings conducted by the committee were secret. The expert hired by the committee made a detailed report, but its contents are withheld from the public. Presumably they did not support the arbitrary conclusions of the committee. It is difficult to believe that any expert would stultify himself by recommending higher taxes when he has no means of telling how much revenue will be needed from taxpayers.

The committee's report, whatever the final draft may contain, has been rendered worthless by its obvious prejudices. Congress will not be aided by this report in trying to find a just balance in the responsibility of the Federal Government and the taxpayers for the maintenance of the District of Columbia.

ANOTHER LABOR CRISIS.

The belligerent Mr. Lloyd George and the intransigent Mr. Philip Snowden are about to bring the British House of Commons to another test that may mark the downfall of the MacDonald government. The issue will arise over the proposed penny-in-the-pound tax on land to be effective two years hence. When this tax was first proposed, in connection with the current budget estimate by the chancellor of the exchequer, it was accepted by the Liberals, whose favor keeps the Labor party in power.

At a recent meeting of the Liberals, however, support was pledged to an amendment to be offered by Sir Donald McLean. The proposed change in the land tax bill contemplates a reduction of income taxes for those who would also have to pay the land tax. It is believed that Mr. MacDonald would readily compromise with his Liberal supporters rather than lose their votes, but Chancellor Snowden stands firmly for the passage of his plan unaltered, and the prime minister is reluctant to depose his financial secretary.

The test of strength may come as early as next Tuesday night, following debate on the amendment. Speculation is rife in England as to the outcome and its consequences. Will government defeat involving a major point of financial policy precipitate the resignation of the Labor cabinet and require the calling of general elections? Opinion is divided. Various expressions of sentiment show there is a feeling that, even if the threatened amendment should be adopted, the MacDonald cabinet may find a way to carry on.

Furthermore, hope is expressed that in this serious crisis the return of Lloyd George to London today and the week-end conference of the Liberals may result in avoiding the responsibility for defeating the government at this time. The Conservatives await their chance, and Stanley Baldwin has already announced that their first move if returned to power will be to inaugurate a protective tariff policy for England.

RAILROAD RATE DEMANDS.

In view of the attitude previously taken by Eastern railway executives it is somewhat surprising to find the railroads of the entire country united in a petition for an increase of 15 per cent in all freight rates. A number of executives have admitted that it would be a mistake to attempt a blanket increase. At first they planned to overhaul the entire rate structure and to adjust each tariff with a view to increasing revenue to a maximum without encouraging new competition. Presumably their fear of new competition is now outweighed by their urgent need of more revenue.

Two considerations prompt the railroads to ask for "a 15 per cent increase in all rates and charges." A general overhauling of the rate structure would take a long time. Railroad executives hope for immediate action. They consider the emergency so urgent that they plan to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to omit the usual 90-day period between the announcement of the new rates and the date they would become effective.

The other reason why an increase in all rates is asked is to make the issue simply a matter of revenue. They are not concerned with existing inequalities in the present tariffs. The Interstate Commerce Commission might find numerous objections to specific rate adjustments. But if the railroads show that they are losing money and demand a general increase, they may be entitled to it under the law which allows them a fair return on their investments.

Nevertheless, the decision to petition for a general increase makes the wisdom of the whole procedure more questionable. Inland waterways now carry more than 16 per cent of the country's freight, pipelines carry about 5 per cent, and motor trucks about 2.5 per cent, in addition to a small amount handled by airplanes. This leaves about 75 per cent for the railroads. Each one of these competitors is anxious to make further inroads into the railroads' business. Unquestionably a sharp increase in freight rates at a time when all other costs are declining would give them an opportunity to do so.

THE POSEIDON DISASTER.

Hope of saving the eighteen men entombed in the British submarine Poseidon, which lies 20 fathoms under the Yellow Sea off Weihaiwei, China, has been abandoned. This brings the total of submarine disasters since the war to ten and the loss of life to 465 men. In spite of the elaborate precautions taken against disasters of this kind it is apparent that the submarine is a peculiarly dangerous craft.

This accident is particularly distressing because only a few months ago authorities were predicting that a repetition of submarine disasters was impossible. Numerous life-saving devices have been invented for underwater sailors, and tests led to the belief that they were infallible. But the testing of devices under ideal conditions and the actual saving of life after a submarine has been rammed and sunk are two very different problems. Much remains to be accomplished before the perils of being trapped and drowned in an underwater craft can be overcome.

The loss of life in this instance was not as great as in the cases of the American S-4 and S-51. When those two ill-fated craft went to the bottom there were no survivors. In the case of the Poseidon, members of the crew were just trooping on deck when the crash came, and 31 of them were able to jump overboard. Of those who were trapped in the sunken vessel only four were saved. They owe their lives to a submarine escape device invented by R. H. Davis. This apparatus, consisting of a cylinder of compressed oxygen attached to the bottom of an inflated bag worn on the chest, had been variously tested by the admiralty and pronounced a great success. But eight men who are known to have lived for many hours in a forward compartment of the sunken vessel were unable to make use of it and apparently have perished.

The first two men who were expelled from the submarine were injured so severely that they died after reaching the surface. Only one-sixth of the number entombed were saved. In view of some extravagant claims that have been made for safety apparatus, that does not appear to be a very good record. Nevertheless, it offers a gleam of hope. It proves that a practical approach has been made to submarine safety, which may lead to better results. This disaster should serve to stimulate new interest in the problem and greater efforts to perfect the devices now in use.

ARGENTINA'S TROUBLES.

The political situation in Argentina continues to be both perplexing and distressing. It seems incredible that the leader of a revolution against oppression and dictatorial methods should so soon fall into ways that are called worse than those of his predecessor. The followers of President Uriburu and the revived Irigoyen parties apparently fail to realize that their bickerings are driving the country into the hands of the radicals.

The legislative elections just held in the Province of Entrerios should be a warning. The radical faction, opposing both the Irigoyen liberal group and the combined conservative parties supporting the Iriburu administration, won by a vote that totaled as many supporters as both the other combinations together. The lifing of the formal decree of martial law has done nothing to relieve the strict suppression of political activity.

Minister of the Interior Pico has announced that what is known as the "state of siege" will remain in force until a month before the elections that are to be held next fall. As long as it is in force criticism of the government or individual authorities is an offense against the state, a strict censorship is enforced over the newspapers and political meetings are prohibited. An inquiry from the Argentine Press Club was answered with the warning that the government would not tolerate criticism of its acts or motives.

A novel feature of the situation is the heated opposition to the government by the Argentine Patriotic League, a nonpolitical organization formed in 1919 during the anarchistic riots. Under the leadership of Manuel Carles and many of the leading citizens, cooperating with the army and navy, this league restored order at that time and has since formed a strong organization devoted to upholding law and order. It has now come into conflict with the newly organized Civic Legion, supporting President Uriburu. Senor Carles has demanded that Gen. Uriburu, whom he formerly supported and helped to put in office, shall cease his dictatorial methods, telling him: "You are not a Napoleon. You can not force your will on the Argentine people."

A presidential order prohibited Carles from continuing his speechmaking, and it is evident that the government desires to break up the independent Patriotic League. However, it has a strong hold, and Carles openly defies the authorities to arrest him. He boldly attacks the provisional government, which he claims has broken all its promises to "reorganize the administration without delay, without violation of the law, without deportations, banishments, imprisonments or persecutions." It is unfortunate that months of dangerous political unrest must continue before the general elections. The rancor of the campaign may have a grim sequel in nullifying the election itself.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 12.—National Flag Day has been observed for some years by official direction on June 14. It is the anniversary of the adoption by the Congress of the flag of the United States. We do honor to the Stars and Stripes as the emblem of our country and the symbol of all that our patriotism means.

The stars and the red, white and blue colors have a significance of their own, but when combined and arranged into the flag of our Nation they take on a new significance which no other form or color can convey. We identify the flag with almost everything we hold dear on earth. It represents our peace and security, our civil and political liberty, our freedom of religous worship, our family, our friends, our home. We see in it the great multitude of blessings, of rights and privileges, that make up our country.

But when we look at our flag and behold it emblazoned with all our rights we must remember that it is equally a symbol of our duties. Every glory that we associate with it is the result of duty done. A yearly contemplation of the meaning of our flag strengthens and purifies the national conscience. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

RUSSIA IN THE FAR EAST

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

While America and the European nations are troubled about Russia's plans to invade their markets, Soviet Russia is opening a vast field of commerce in western and northern China. The Russian plans for some time past have been regarded as mainly political. Its Communist propaganda seemed to be the most vigorous and dangerous game, and the Soviet at least succeeded in creating chaos and thus largely destroying capitalist trade in many parts of China, chiefly in the southern and central provinces.

Advices from Manchuria, however, indicate that while Russia may continue underground propaganda in China proper, she is working chiefly now to penetrate northern and western China commercially. Since the little war between Russia and China over the Chinese Eastern Railway, Sino-Russian relations in Manchuria have greatly improved for Russia. It was a short war, without much destruction on either side. The Russian armies conducted themselves so well, as compared with the Chinese, that Russia is popular in northern Manchuria. She has more than regained her half control of the Chinese Eastern Railway, because she has filled her half of the places in the railway with fairly well trained and experienced employes who are thoroughly loyal to the Soviet and who at any time the Chinese cause trouble can be withdrawn in a body and thus completely paralyze the railroad's operation. The Soviet government is selling goods in Manchuria at prices beyond competition by other foreign countries, even by the Chinese.

But Russia has larger plans. Through the new railway built from the Trans-Siberian Railway, near the border of Sinkiang, to Tashkent, she can easily penetrated into northern and western China. The railway carries within a reasonable distance of Urumchi, the capital of Sinkiang.

In dealing with the Chinese, Russia can not only use peaceful methods effectively, but force at little cost. She found out in her Manchurian war how little force is necessary to accomplish her ends with the Chinese. Not more than 5,000 Russian troops crossed the border of Manchuria to put an end to the conflict over the Chinese Eastern Railway, and the destruction of life on both sides was almost negligible. It was more a show of force on the part of Russia than the actual use of it. Of course, the ultimate results of this commercial penetration depend largely on the success of the five-year plan. How long that will take, how long it will be before efficiency is attained, if ever, is a matter of conjecture. Russia at the present time is getting results so far as she is able to produce the goods.

JUST FOLKS

EMPTY HOUSE.

The little house that seemed so gay
Looks very desolate today.
The windows, which last week were fair,
Have taken on a ghastly stare.
No children round the doorway shout,
Gone is the dog that raced about,
Already now the garden there
Is suffering from a lack of care.

Whene'er an empty house I pass,
I think how dull are stone and glass,
And roof and walls and doorways gay
When uninhabited they stay.
To keep their beauty they require
The loving hands which never tire.
There must be happy souls within
Or swift destruction will begin.

All doors and window panes are dull
Unless life makes them beautiful.
When gracious tenants move away
Not long the house will lovely stay.
There must be laughter and delight
To keep a lawn and garden bright
And all that human hands supply.
Or houses, just like people, die.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: Yesterday you told your mother that you wouldn't teach school for a farm in Texas or something like that, and I am wondering what alternative you have in mind.

In this part of the country nearly all small-town girls go to work when they finish school—some of them in order to pay back the money borrowed for their education, some to help support their aged parents, some because they must work or do without nice clothes and some to escape boredom while waiting for a husband.

I take it for granted that you will follow their example.

If the assumption is correct, what do you expect to do?

Yesterday afternoon I had a caller from Iowa—a charming young lady who got her bachelor degree in home economics at the State university up there and then got a job demonstrating electric stoves.

She travels from one State to another, accompanied by a demonstration truck, and stops at hick-town hotels, where impudent stares remind her that she is a strange young lady without an escort.

She finds the work interesting and usually feels secure, but at first she was frightened when notes were slipped under her door and men she didn't know called her on the telephone.

A girl who does "commercial work" must expect that sort of thing.

There are many decent men in the world, but also there are slimy, low-bred creatures who think any girl who must work for a living is or should be an easy victim.

Such men think they have a right to paw any girl who works for them, and a girl who won't submit to it can't hold her job.

I imagine it isn't a very pleasant experience to be broke and have to choose between keeping your self-respect without a job and being handled by a lecherous old rake with a bald head, a wife and halitosis.

School teaching doesn't offer much pay or much future, but in the only kind of towns I know anything about it offers security.

Teachers are supposed to set an example for the youngsters of the community, and their calling gives them public respect. I never heard of one being insulted—unless by some yap who didn't know her occupation.

I don't mean to imply that all working girls are pursued by wicked and designing males, but only that a girl "on her own" meets numbers of men who are without capacity for honor or conception of decency, and I'd like to have you choose a job that will bring you in contact with very few of them. Love, DAD.

Keep the Remedy Dark!

Atlanta Constitution.

The Republican leaders are already harping upon their one-string banjo that "the Democrats are fault-finding and preparing to hammer on republican policies," while presenting "no constructive policies of their own."

Exactly so. What the people are mostly talking about all over the country are the faults and failures of the present Republican administration. They look to the Democrats naturally to expose those faults and pillory those flagrant failures before the bar of public opinion. And that is just what the Democrats ought to do and will do until the voters of the country get a square look at the mess and turn their guns upon the perpetrators of it. If the Democrats do not make those exposures ruthlessly and pungently, who would do it?

And as for presenting any "constructive policy" as a panacea for the predicament into which the Republicans have dragged the country, the Democrat who has such a policy had better not reveal it, for the poverty-stricken Republicans would promptly hijack it and claim it for their own!

Is this the same as criticisms that were made of Woodrow Wilson and Grover Cleveland also? In fact a President is a shining mark, and politics is always politics. But the average American citizen ought to be onto it by this time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Correspondent Objects to Dyer Plan to Legalize Beer—Would Not Promote Business or Public Welfare.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When Mr. Dyer, of St. Louis, called on the President and drew his picture of a return to the manufacture of beer in such gorgeous colors, he apparently forgot that the picture might be turned and show something else. He wants to give employment to 100,000 people to perform a service that will more or less debauch every one who touches it. He wants to close many of the savings accounts now operative, and prevent the opening of thousands of others so that there will be a profit to the Government of a billion dollars a year. We know only too well what it means to have breweries in full blast. It means children, ill fed without shoes, not in school because not properly clad; wives and mothers scheming every way to exist on what is left of the wages, after the drink bill is paid. We know that every law made that affects the liquor traffic in any way is always violated, and that it will be, and if 4 per cent beer does not give the required kick it will be made stronger in spite of the law.

Mr. Dyer makes the broad statement that more than 60,000,000 barrels of beer is now consumed in the United States annually. Easily said, but no one believes it; let him prove it. If in 1914 less than 80,000 men were employed, why should it take 100,000 now when there are no saloons? But there would be saloons and he knows it—probably wants it. He should know that every bit of labor expended upon the production of beer, from the plowing of the field to produce the grain till the schooner is filled at the tap, is a dead loss. It is in no sense constructive, but is destructive and degrading at every turn.

If Mr. Dyer's only son had been lured into the drinking habit through beer, and he had finally followed him to a drunkard's grave, he would be somewhat more careful about claiming the wonderful advantages to the nation by restoring the manufacture of beer.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Go Back to Main Street and Your Red Tin Gas Stations, Mr. Chevroford!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I have space for a word of commiseration to Mr. "Chevroford" and his fellow sufferers, who are put to such agonies of mind and receive such shocks to their artistic nature by the sight of such innumerable parks, circles, trees and lawns with which this city is encumbered? Such waste of valuable space and desecration of a certain standard of urban beauty must indeed cut these noble utilitarians to the soul, but unfortunately we are still burdened with art commissions and park commissions in this primitive town, and the task of the reformers may be difficult.

Let me beg of them to return to the Main street from which they unwillingly departed, and there remain, to feast their eyes once more upon uninterrupted lines of Chevros and Fords, and to be gladdened by the ruddy light of scarlet and orange tin gas stations, so feelingly described by Mr. Chesterton after his visit to this country recently.

They will, we know, be happy, and Washington will make great efforts to exist without them.

Citizen Praises Health Department for Giving Advice as to Summer Diet.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the protest against the Health Department for broadcasting the advice to eat meat in moderation during hot weather, the writer desires to ask whether the conservation of the health and comfort of the people, or the profits of commercial institutions is the more important?

Suppose the people follow the advice of the broadcast and eat less meat during the summer than they otherwise would do. Will they not inevitably eat more of other things and thereby help other food producers?

Are the producers of meat more worthy of patronage than the producers of vegetables?

If the Health Department can promote the improvement of the health and comfort of the people, we shall thereby have more congenial neighbors and more efficient citizens. This will tend to produce real prosperity and greater happiness. More strength to the right arm of the Health Department!

Tennesseean Favors Dyer Plan to Legalize Beer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with a great deal of interest the plan of Representative Dyer, of St. Louis, regarding the manufacture and sale of 4 per cent beer. His plan is worthy of serious consideration. I want to state first that I am a total abstainer and do not want saloons to return, nor do I think that that is his purpose.

I am a resident of Tennessee and have traveled in Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky for fifteen years, and have noted the conditions Representative Dyer speaks of. I believe 75 per cent of the families make some kind of drink, from grapes, rhubarb, dandelion and home brew, which no doubt is poisonous to some degree. The revenue derived to the Government would in a measure reduce the deficit now staring the Government in the face. Representative Dyer's proposition would no doubt give employment to more than 200,000 people for at least part of the time. A READER.

STUDENT OFFICERS ENCAMP AT MEADE

400 Youths Face Strenuous Course of Training in Military Tactics.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 12.

For the next six weeks' 400 Reserve Officers Training Corps students from eighten colleges and military academies in the Third Corps Area will undergo a rigorous training period on the sandy flats of Fort Meade.

They started arriving in camp this morning by automobile and train and by late this afternoon the embryo Reserve officers were all established in their tent colony. A scorching sun greeted them and the tents, this year pitched under a patch of scrub pines, offered scant refuge.

Today was spent in getting equipment, going through the customary medical examination and learning the elementary ropes of camp life. Tomorrow the youths will be organized and Monday the first intensive day of camp life will begin.

District Is Represented.

Most of the students assembled here are juniors in college serving the six weeks in summer camp necessary before being commissioned in the Reserve Corps. Others are advanced students in military academies where the training, due to its intensity, is on a par with that of most colleges. The military academies represented are Augusta, Fishborne and Staunton.

There is a large contingent of Baltimoreans on hand from the Johns Hopkins University, University of Maryland and Western Maryland. Other colleges in the area sending students to the camp are University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State College, Lehigh, LaFayette, Pennsylvania Military College, Gettysburg, Georgetown, Virginia Military Institute, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Carnegie Tech and Drexel.

A new mess hall has been built for the recruits while two new concrete tennis courts and a new swimming pool are near completion.

Three companies of infantry are here assembled with a detachment of the Signal Corps under Lieut. Wiley V. Carter. Col. Walter B. McCaskey, Infantry, commands this year's encampment.

Strenuous Day Is Planned.

Reveille at 5:30 a. m., and breakfast at 6 o'clock will be the schedule for the next six weeks and a full day of activity has been mapped out. There will be a physical drill from 7 o'clock to 7:30, to be followed by the rigors of a regular training camp until noon, when there will be an hour's respite for luncheon. The afternoons will be spent in drill and in lectures and at night those who are not too tired, can go to the post "talkies."

While the work will be strenuous, the food will be in keeping, according to Capt. T. R. Holmes, from the Eastern Shore, in charge of the mess.

Not for three weeks will the students go out on the firing range for instruction in machine guns and other firearms. The time up to then will be spent in drill and other tactics.

Lord, Lady Astor Are Paid Tribute

Silver Drake Ship Model Is Presented to Couple on Anniversary.

Plymouth, England, June 12 (A.P.).—Two thousand persons gathered in Guild Hall tonight to attend the presentation of a silver model of Drake's ship "Golden Hind" to Lord and Lady Astor on their silver wedding anniversary.

Subscription for purchase of the gift came from nearly 3,000 persons of all political shades. The vivacious Virginia-born member of Parliament and her husband are immensely popular in Lady Astor's constituency.

Acknowledging the presentation, Lady Astor said she looked on politics as a "grim necessity."

"Things outside of political life count most with me," she added, "but I take my work seriously, although I never take myself seriously."

NATIONALIST OFFER OF PEACE REPORTED

Cantonese Say Concessions Are Tendered to Avert Civil Warfare.

foundations of the national or provincial governments.

The national government under Chiang Kai-Shek is looked upon by officials here as the most stable which China has had for many years. It is believed to surpass in proportionate power that held by the late Chang Tso-Lin in a portion of Northern China.

The development of the Nationalists has been considered unusually remarkable in view of the fact that it was set up but a few years ago after long and bitter fighting, which left in its wake famine and waste.

Peace Offer Is Reported.

Some of the foreign and domestic policies of the Nationalists have met with disagreement among their American friends in the United States as well as their supporters in China.

Hongkong, June 12 (A.P.).—Information received today from Canton said the Nationalist government has extended the olive branch to leaders of the insurrection there and offered concessions in an effort to avert civil war.

As peace measures, the Nanking officials were said to have proffered Canton its own political council and to have suggested appointment of Wang Ching-Wei, rebel leader, as president of the executive bureau of the new "National" government at Canton.

The Nanking central government would agree also to the calling of a general assembly to provide for its reconstruction. (Meeting in Nanking four weeks ago, the National Peoples Congress, composed of government supporters, adopted a provisional constitution to function until 1936, when the Peoples' capabilities of self-government would be considered.)

Foreign Ships Guard Nationals.

Some concern was felt in Hongkong because of the Canton insurgent government's declaration it would seize a portion of customs payments. The Cantonese said they would pay the port's share of the foreign loan commitment, but would retain the surplus of payments instead of permitting the money to go "not only for National interests, but the personal interest of Chiang Kai-Shek and his family."

Gratification was expressed that Minister C. C. Wu had resigned his Washington post, and it was expected he would align himself with the insurrectionists of Canton, his home.

While the insurrection continued, reports reached Hongkong of foreign warships rushed to Foochow to guard their Nationals from outlaws who overpowered troops in the interior and killed many captives.

Two hundred foreigners, most of them missionaries, fled to Foochow from the Min River Valley, where large bands were looting the country.

Unconfirmed reports said Father Geser, a German priest, was murdered. Three other Catholic priests were unaccounted for in northwestern Fukien.

FIVE HURT AS BLAST IN FILLING STATION WRECKS STRUCTURE

One Victim Seriously Burned in 18th Street Explosion; Cause Is Mystery.

GASOLINE TRUCK TAKEN FROM SCENE OF DANGER

Report Alarms Embassies in Neighborhood; Debris Menaces Many.

An explosion yesterday afternoon in a Lord Baltimore filling station at Eighteenth and S streets, believed to have been caused by accumulated gases in the basement, injured five persons, one seriously, and wrecked the station.

Scores of persons passing in automobiles and on foot narrowly escaped serious injury as a shower of glass and splinters of wood were scattered over the busy intersection with the suddenness of lightning. The report of the explosion was heard over a large portion of the fashionable northwest section, and several embassies and legations, almost in a stone's throw of the station, called police and newspapers to find out what had happened.

The most seriously injured of the five persons was Carl W. Hauf, an auditor employed by the Racquet Club. At Emergency Hospital, where he was taken, it was found that he had sustained secondary burns about the face and arms.

List of Injured.

The others injured were E. R. Currin, 23 years old, of 2410 Twentieth street northwest, manager of the station, who received minor injuries on his left hand and was treated on the scene; Paul Adams, 21, of 611 Otis street northwest, another employe, burns about the face; Louis Armstrong, 24, of Cherrydale, Va., who was in charge of a supply truck unloading gasoline at the station, and Eva Simmons, 38-year-old colored woman, of 1767 Oregon avenue northwest, who was passing the station at the time.

Armstrong, who received minor lacerations about the face and a few small burns, was praised by police and firemen for his quick action in rushing the truck containing a large quantity of gasoline out of the danger zone while he was still dazed from being thrown to the ground.

The woman was only slightly injured, a few pieces of flying glass having made slight lacerations about her hands and face.

Blast Cause Unsolved.

Authorities from the gasoline company last night had not definitely assigned a reason for the explosion. Police who arrived on the scene, at first thought the compressed-air tanks had blown up, but they were found to be intact. An investigation of the explosion is being made by Capt. Hugh M. Groves, commander of the Eighth Precinct, and company officials.

A colored man was arrested, questioned and released when he convinced police he knew nothing about the blast.

Mr. Hauf, who is 25 years old, was having his automobile serviced in the station, and was sitting on a railing just outside the office when a huge plate glass window behind him burst with a loud crash and sent glass flying in all directions. He was blown about 25 feet by the force of air coming from the office, and was taken to the hospital by an unknown person.

Mr. Adams was taken to the hospital by Garlan Wilson, 23, another employe of the station, who was not injured. Mr. Currin, the manager, was able to aid cleaning up the place after his hand, only slightly injured, was dressed by a doctor in the neighborhood.

Radio Pictures' filmization of the story by Kate Jordan, adapted to the screen by Elizabeth Meehan, colfeaturing Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez, supported by Paul Cavanagh, Doris Lloyd, Nance O'Neil, John Sainpolis and Adrienne d'Ambricourt. Directed by Herbert Brenon. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Reliance here is once more reposed in the good, old domestic triangle, one of the most serviceable commodities of the theater, for the clashes of temperaments and struggles of wills necessary to give this subject dramatic point.

A young wife, deserted for a year by her adoring husband, in search of fame and fortune on an engineering project in India, diverts herself in Paris among gay friends and there succumbs to the lures of an amiable young rascal, with castles in Spain and dreamy eyes. From his ancient establishment in the mountains back of Bilbao she dispatches her husband—just returned to London—a letter renouncing their marriage and confessing her new love. Then, her lover having been murdered before her very eyes by an outraged Gypsy father, with a revolver instead of a shotgun, in a frenzy of remorse she attempts, successfully, to beat the letter to London. What happens after that ought to fan into life considerably more dramatic fire than it does.

As a matter of fact, "Transgression" smolders along without ever once bursting into flame. Director Brenon seems never quite to have whipped his excellent cast into anything like the fervor of which they are individually and collectively capable. Perhaps he has tried a bit too hard to skeletonize the plot and tell the story with the fewest possible characters and episodes, thus rendering his charade less substantial than it should be.

Kay Francis and Ricardo Cortez, as the wife and interloper, respectively, are well-dressed puppets, handicapped by material that has been inexpertly fashioned to their needs. Paul Cavanagh, as the husband, is a polished nincompoop whom the authors have endowed with a spirit of angelic, but undelievable, forgiveness.

The best performances in the picture are contributed by Nance O'Neil, as an acrid maiden sister of the imposed-upon husband, and Adrienne d'Ambricourt, who, being French, plays the role of the French maid, Julie, perfectly.

The supporting bill embraces three well-diversified short subjects. "Hurricane Island" is one of the Vagabond Director's descriptive travelogues, dealing with the Island of Santo Domingo immediately following its last visitation by a destructive tornado. "All Gummed Up," starring Ed Kennedy, a comedian of deliberate and effective method, supported by Florence Lake and Louise Carver, is a mother-in-law-in-the-home comedy of the painting-the-bathroom type, and "The China Plate," a Silly Symphony, humorously visualizes the story suggested by the design on a piece of imported tableware.

An interesting issue of the RKO-Pathe News completes a program that elicited every manifestation of approval from yesterday afternoon's audience.

COLUMBIA

"INDISCREET." United Artists production of an original story by De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, starring Gloria Swanson, supported by Ben Lyon, Arthur Lake, Monroe Owsley and Barbara Kent. Directed by Leo McCarey. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Seldom does a picture come to town—and remain to be reflected from the screen for a second week—that is so completely sustained in its popular appeal by a few inspired "moments." Throughout the greater footage, "Indiscreet" develops no especial reason for encomiums of praise. But, during those few—some four or five—times when Gloria Swanson and her supporting cast seem to be fired by the divine afflatus, the picture rises to heroic, though restrained, heights.

For the most part, Miss Swanson, whose indiscretion is somewhat nebulous in the mind of your reviewer, does a highly acceptable piece of work. In the scenes where she contrives to further the impression of possessing a "very, very small dash of insanity," she is particularly effective.

However, throughout the picture there is a strenuous and obvious effort to stage a sophisticated and almost blase drama in the typical exsomething-or-other manner. Miss Swanson is not alone in this transgression; the entire cast and directorial staff are to be included.

In the supporting cast, Ben Lyon, playing opposite Miss Swanson as the author-lover; Arthur Lake and Barbara Kent, furnishing the juvenile love interest and Monroe Owsley, as the perennial philanderer, deliver generally pleasing delineations.

Mention should be made of the three times Miss Swanson sings. And the black pajamas—they are really worth seeing.

The supporting screen bill comprises Krazy Kat demonstrating "Swiss Movements;" "The Big Dog-House," another of those Dogville comedies, and the Paramount Sound News.

FOX

"DADDY LONG-LEGS." Fox picturization of the novel by Jean Webster, adapted to the screen by Sonya Levien, costarring Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter, supported by Una Merkel, John Arledge, Kathlyn Williams, Claude Gillingwater, Louise Closser Hale, Effie Ellsler and Kendall McComas. Directed by Alfred Santell. Reviewed Friday evening (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

With a play done in the not so dim past by such accomplished artistes as Ruth Chatterton and Mary Pickford, and having innumerable successes to her own credit, it is small wonder that Janet Gaynor should carry "Daddy Long-Legs" into a second week.

Despite the previous unforgettable impersonations of Judy Abbott that have created a mark very difficult to better, Miss Gaynor delivers the finest delineation of them all, in the opinion of this reviewer, at the same time eclipsing any of her own previous portrayals, those in "Seventh Heaven," "Sunrise" and "Street Angel" not excepted.

Opposite Miss Gaynor is Warner Baxter in one of his most charming roles, one where he can forget to be big, bold, and bad and yet be none the less virile and convincing.

Especially noteworthy in the supporting cast are Kendall McComas, as the communistic orphan; Claude Gillingwater, Elizabeth Patterson, the asylum matron, and Una Merkel, as Judy's roommate.

For a diverting interlude between the screenings of this delightful picture is Fanchon and Marco's "Vaudeville" Idea of five acts. Al Mitchell delivers over the job of ceremony mastering to Bobby Henshaw, but saves a portion of the bill for his own piano rendition of "Happy Days Are Here Again," with variations, and a brief impersonation of Maurice Chevalier.

Included under Mr. Henshaw's ceremonial hand are the Allison troupe, a very unusual acrobatic company; Ed and Jenny Rooney, aerial artists; the Four O'Connors, a family group of tap dancers of merit, and Doreen Rae, a "comedienne." For his own bit, Mr. Henshaw shoots the same line of chatter that has been his at least since 1928.

Bob Hamilton, at the console of the Wurlitzer, musically interprets "Hats," a pleasing potpourri of bits of yesterday and today.

The Fox Movietone News completes the program.

HEARING IS PLANNED ON GAS FIRM DEALS

Public Utilities Board Gives Notice, but Sets No Date; Rate Quiz Likely.

The possible ramifications and extent of the ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Co. were indicated by the fact that notices of intent to hold a hearing were sent out yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission to nine organizations besides Albert E. Pierce, and "to all others concerned."

These organizations, besides the local gas companies, were listed as follows:

The Washington & Suburban Cos., the Central Public Service Co., the Southern Cities Public Service Co., Public Service Engineer Co., the Patuxent Gas Co., the Central Gas & Electric Co. and the Wetsfield Trust. Notices to all of these were sent in care of the Washington Gas Light Co.

The notice stated that the commission "has investigated the ownership, control and management of the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Co., and also the possible neglect or violation of laws or regulations in force in the District of Columbia in relation to the said gas companies.

"The commission has become satisfied that sufficient grounds exist to warrant a formal public hearing being ordered as to the matters so investigated."

While the notice declared that the utilities body "will proceed to state the time and place for a hearing" ten days after yesterday, it is not believed that the hearing will be scheduled before late summer, though Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, declined to predict the time.

The commission has a heavy calendar ahead of it, with three hearings proposed, but it is not likely that any of them will be held during the hot weather. Rate hearings on gas and electricity are contemplated, though notices have not yet been sent out for these.

THOMAS W. BLAIR BURIAL.

Services to Be Held Today for Native of Ireland, 89.

Funeral services for Thomas Wray Blair, who died early yesterday morning at his home, 6932 Ninth street northwest, in his nietieth year, will be held at his residence at 2 o'clock this afternoon, followed by interment in Rock Creek Cemetery. The Rev. Dr. F. J. Kyle, of the United Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services.

Mr. Blair was born in Colraine, Ireland, and shortly afterward was brought to the United States, making his home in Emporia, Kans. Twelve years ago he came to Washington and had been a resident here since that time.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Anine Blair, four brothers, Maj. William R. Blair, U. S. A., who is stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J.; H. F. Blair, of Panama, who is connected with the United Fruit Co. there; Robert P. Blair, of Portland, Oreg., and John K. Blair, of Hays, Kans., and there sisters, Mrs. C. E. Hill, of 1303 Floral street northwest; Mrs. William A. Weir, of Sylvania, Ga., and Mrs. C. C. Henderson, of Chicago, Ill.

MRS. GREENWALT'S FUNERAL

Services for Former D. A. R. Regent to Be Conducted Today.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maud Lipscomb Greenawalt, former State regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the District of Columbia, who died Wednesday evening in the Sarah Lee Hospital, Norfolk, Va., after a short illness, at the age of 60, will b eheld at 2 o'clock this afternoon at her former residence, 1719 Lanier place, followed by interment in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Greenawalt was known for her work in leading the fight to have the KeKy Bridge named after Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and to have the song officially adopted as the national anthem.

She was a native of Washington and had lived here all her life. She is survived by her husband, who works in the United States Department of Commerce, and a brother, Lysle S. Lipscomb.

MRS. ALICE ROBSON RITES.

Wife of Catholic University Engineer Buried in Mount Olivet.

The funeral of Mrs. Alice Catherine Robson, of 4116 Twelfth street northeast, who died Tuesday, was held yesterday at St. Anthony's Church, in Brookland. Interment was in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Robson was the wife of Robert Emmett Robson, chief engineer at the Catholic University. Besides her husband, four children survive. Mrs. Robson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Quigley, of 3312 Eighth street northeast.

RCA FAILS TO HALT LICENSE HEARINGS

Case Is Kept on Docket as Court Sees Chance of Injunction.

(Associated Press.)

The Radio Corporation of America yesterday failed in its attempt to prevent the Radio Commission from holding hearings which may result in revocation of the 1,409 licenses held by corporation subsidiaries.

Justice Bailey, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, denied the request of the subsidiaries for an injunction to prevent the hearings, set for Monday, but kept the case upon the docket. He explained that developments might warrant the injunction at a later time.

The commission will have before it the question whether the Radio Corporation violated antimonopoly provisions of the radio act in making a radio tube contract which violated antitrust laws.

License Refusal Ordered by Law.

Under section 13 of the radio act, the commission must refuse licenses to concerns which have attempted to monopolize radio communication.

The antitrust decision, made in a Delaware Federal court, was upheld by a circuit court of appeals. The commission then fixed the hearings as test cases on a number of licenses held by the National Broadcasting Co. and three other subsidiaries of the corporation.

Dealers who signed the contract agreed to purchase their radio tubes from the corporation and the result was that it had the greater part of the tube business.

Legality of Section 13 Attacked.

Commission counsel argued before Justice Bailey that the contract was a violation of section 13 because of the importance of the tube to radio communication.

Justice Bailey said from the bench he felt he should not interfere with the commission at present, but that if an adverse decision threatened "irreparable injury" to the radio concerns pending an appeal, he might interfere.

Louis Titus, counsel for the subsidiaries, issued a statement after Justice Bailey's ruling saying the decision protected the position of the Radio Corporation. Titus attacked the constitutionality of section 13 during argument.

Trade Lack Closes Nickel Parking Lot

Federal Clerks Boycott Enterprise on Site of Burned Building.

Because Federal employes considered a nickel a day too much to pay for parking space, the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks stands to lose $350 monthly rental which it had anticipated, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive director, revealed yesterday.

Site of the burned Federal Trade Commission Building was leased recently to A. G. Dezendorf, 722 Tenth street, for parking purposes after bids had been advertised. The space was able to accommodate 1,000 automobiles.

Federal employes boycotted the enterprise, however, and parked on the streets nearby instead. Consequently, Mr. Dezendorf has just closed shop and charged $150 to profit and loss.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

The war still rages and the United States has joined the Allies. Jack Bridges, Jane's nephew and son of her sister Isabel and Robin Bridges, is going to France. So is young Albert Lancaster, son of Jane's school friend, Muriel and Bert Lancaster. Jane and Stephen Carver are told by Cicily, their lovely 19-year-old daughter, that she and Jack are engaged and will be married in June before he goes to war, and that they will have a double wedding with Belle, Isabel's 18-year-old daughter, and young Albert Lancaster, who is not quite 20. Jane and Stephen are horrified, but the younger generation is determined to have its own way. Jane thinks back to her own childhood romance with Andre, and of how her mother and father made her obey them. But this generation is different.

CICILY, JENNY AND STEVE.

CHAPTER II.

"THE older I grow, papa," said Jane very seriously, "the more I admire your technique as a parent."

"That's very flattering of you, kid," said Mr. Ward with a twinkle.

"Why, Isabel and I never gave you and mamma any trouble," Jane went on, still very seriously.

"Oh, I don't know about that, kid," interrupted Mr. Ward. "You went to Bryn Mawr over your mother's dead body——"

"Oh—Bryn Mawr!" threw in Jane contemptuously.

"It seemed very important at the time," said Mr. Ward. "She thought it would damn you to eternal spinsterhood. And before that you had embarked at the age of 17 on a clandestine engagement——"

"It wasn't clandestine!" protested Jane. "We told you right away!"

"Yes, you did," admitted Mr. Ward, with his indulgent twinkle. "You were very good children. Still, it was a bit disquieting——"

In the Pine Street Library.

They were sitting side by side on the old brown velvet sofa in the Pine street library. Mr. Ward always had a fire, now, even in summer. The room was hotter than it used to be and the big branching rubber tree in the west window was gone. Otherwise everything about the Pine street library was completely unchanged.

Everything, that is, but Mr. Ward himself. Jane, looking tenderly across the sofa at her father, was suddenly conscious of how old and frail he seemed. Isabel was right. The war had aged him. Or perhaps it was his retirement from business that had taken place two years before. Mr. Ward lived now in his little brown library.

"Papa," said Jane, "how can you tell, how can you possibly tell, just whom your children ought to marry?"

"You can't," said Mr. Ward promptly. "But you can make a pretty good guess at whom they ought not to."

"But how can you stop them?" said Jane.

"I don't know," said Mr. Ward very seriously after a little pause.

No More Confidence in Parents.

"You stopped me," said Jane. "You stopped me because you made me feel, somehow or other, though I didn't agree with you, that you were inevitably right. Right, because you were my father. That's what's gone out of the family relationship since I was 17, Papa. Children don't think you are right any longer, just because you are a parent."

"Well, you're not," said Mr. Ward promptly. "That's probably a step in the right direction, kid. What's known as progress."

"Well, it makes life terribly difficult for parents," sighed Jane. "And I can't help thinking it may make life terribly difficult for children."

"Life's terribly difficult at times for every one," said Mr. Ward. "A little thing like filial obedience doesn't solve all the problems."

"When I think of the ex cathedra pronouncements that Mamma used to make!" cried Jane. "Why, I never thought of questioning them!"

"And were they always right?" asked Mr. Ward.

"They were usually wrong," said Jane. "But at least they stopped discussion and they decided the issue. Parents used to be just like umpires. All they had to do was to make a decision and stick to it!"

Not an Ideal System.

"It wasn't an ideal system," was Mr. Ward's comment.

"You didn't question it when it was in fashion," retorted Jane. "You didn't have the slightest hesitation in forbidding me to marry Andre. But we loved each other. We truly did, Papa. You never really took that into consideration. I might have been very happy as Andre's wife."

Mr. Ward's glance was just a little intent as he contemplated his younger daughter.

"You've been very happy as Stephen's wife, kid," he said gently.

"Yes," said Jane uncertainly. Words were too crude to define the subtleties of emotion. "Yes, I've been happy. But my marrying him was awfully irrelevant." Suddenly that statement seemed terribly disloyal to Stephen. "You know, papa," she said in extenuation, "a war changed everything in my life."

There was a pause for a moment in the sunlit room. Jane did not look at her father, but she knew, without looking, from his sudden, breathless silence that he had suffered a slight sense of shock. She realized then that her words were open to misinterpretation. She glanced quickly up at him. He was shocked. He looked at her a moment a little uncertainty. Then——

"Which war, Jane?" he asked steadily.

Glad He Asked the Question.

She was awfully glad that he had put the direct question. In answering it she could answer all the unspoken questions that had been worrying him for the last four years.

"The Spanish one," she said gravely. "The other didn't—didn't really affect my action. I mean—I mean it was all settled before——" Her voice was failing her. She could not bear to mention Jimmy's name.

"I'm glad to hear it, kid," said her father gently.

He understood. She would not have to mention it. Jane drew a long breath and felt the emotional tension of the moment snap as she did so. She could return now to the problems of the younger generation.

"All I mean is," she went on brightly, "you can't really tell, can you, what will bring your children happiness? Perhaps they ought to decide for themselves——"

As she spoke, Mrs. Ward opened the library door. Isabel followed her into the room. They had been talking together in Mrs. Ward's bedroom.

Mr. Ward Surrenders Control.

"Well, I hope you've convinced Jane that she must put her foot down," said Mrs. Ward briskly. Her hand was on the bell rope to summon Minnie to bring in the tea.

"Mamma, you don't know what it's like to handle Belle and Cicily," said Isabel wearily.

"I handled you and Jane!" retorted Mrs. Ward. "And very foolish you often were! If it hadn't been for your father and me——"

Jane and her father burst simultaneously into irreverent laughter. Mrs. Ward looked quite offended.

"You don't make it any easier, John, to control the grandchildren," she said severely.

"I've retired," said Mr. Ward, when he had subdued his laughter. "From my family as from my business. At 72 I'm glad to be a spectator. I hand the controls over to Jane."

* * * *

"Jenny's really so homely," said Cicily frankly, "that I think we ought to feature it."

"Feature it?" questioned Flora.

"Y a," said Cicily, "make her look quaint, you know: as if she were meant to be funny."

"The first duty of a bridesmaid, in any case," said Muriel, "is to look less pretty than the bride."

"No one could help looking less pretty than these brides," said Flora, with a glance from Belle to Cicily.

Discussing Veils and Hats.

Isabel looked pleased. Jane felt herself smiling. Jenny did not seem at all insulted by her sister's candor.

They were all sitting in Flora's hat shop. They had just decided on the model for the wedding veils and were now discussing the bridesmaid's hat.

"I think," she said critically, backing away from Jenny and looking fixedly at her plain little face and straight, blonde, bobbed hair—"I think—a poke bonnet. Yes, Jane! A pink poke bonnet—very pale. You're right, Cicily, she must be quaint! A hooped skirt, Isabel, a pink hooped skirt, with little garlands around it and a sweet, tight little bodice. Pale pink taffeta, don't you think, Muriel? And a little 1860 bouquet with ribbon streamers and a white lace frill. Oh, Jenny, my dear, you'll be charming! We'll emphasize your angles. You'll look like a cross-stitched design on a sampler! How old are you?"

"Sixteen," said Jenny meekly.

Pantalettes Suggested.

"You don't look it," said Flora. "Do you think, Jane, that pantalettes would be going too far?"

Jane thought they would.

"I suppose you're right," said Flora, "though I always think a wedding should be primarily a pageant. This one will be lovely. The hot weather will bring out all the roses. What are you wearing, Jane?"

"What does the mother of the bride always wear?" said Jane ironically. "Beige chiffon, of course. I didn't think I had any choice."

"And Isabel, too?" said Flora critically."

"Well, no. Now that I think of it, Isabel is a mother of a bride and she's wearing gray."

"Muriel's dress is lovely," said Flora. "I'm making her hat. Mauve. Let me make yours, Jane. For Heaven's sake, get a good one, for once?"

"All right," said Jane indifferently. "I'd be glad not to have to bother about it."

"We've got to go," said Cicily. "We're going down to Crichton's with Aunt Isabel to pick out my tea-set."

"I chose Belle's yesterday," said Muriel as she rose.

"It's lovely," said Isabel. "It seems just a moment ago that you were choosing your own."

"I know," said Muriel. "And Flora and Jane were trying on those blue bridesmaids' dresses. They were pretty."

Jane Thinks of the Past.

Jane thought of Flora's blue bridesmaid's dress lying crumpled on her bedroom chair the morning after her mother's death. She thought of herself hanging it up in Flora's closet, while Flora dressed in the little black frock that Mrs. Lester had brought over. She wondered if Flora were thinking of it, too. But Flora's face was very tranquil.

"Fittings for all of you, Wednesday morning," she said. "I'll have a beige model here, Jane, for you to look at."

They all went out of the brownstone stable and stood for a moment in the old carriage court. The Furnesses' backyard looked just as it always had. Flora had the playhouse painted every year. But the houses across Ruth street had all been rented to business firms. Dressmakers and milliners and decorators had signs over every door. The clean frilled lace curtains and evenly drawn shades in Flora's Victorian mansion seemed strangely out of place in their commercial environment. They recalled a vanished era. Flora's lace curtains looked just like her mother's—just as clean and just as frilly and just as Victorian. She kept the old place up beautifully. She even kept the orange tree blooming in the conservatory. But if she were going to live in Paris——

Jane sighed. It did not seem to her just a moment ago that she had tried on Muriel's blue bridesmaid's dress.

Jane stood at Isabel's side in the front row of the little congregation that had gathered in the rose garden. On her other hand, pressed close against the tightly drawn white satin ribbon, stood little Steve. Behind Jane stood Mr. and Mrs. Ward and Alden Carver the only representative of the Carver family who had come West for the wedding.

Garden Filled With Guests.

Behind the two families the garden was filled with guests. The orchestra beyond the clump of evergreens had just slipped from the riotous strains of "Tipperary" into the first sentimental notes of the Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman."

The groomsmen and ushers drew their swords. Bright, virgin blades, flashing in the June sunshine. They made an arch of steel. Soon those swords would be splitting Germans. Today they formed a nuptial canopy.

Cicily, radiant on Jack's arm, threw her a sunshine smile. Belle, under shy eyelids, flashed a glance at Isabel. Jenny pranced down the grassy aisle to the rhythm of the Mendelssohn. Her nervousness was all gone. She was young and absurd and adorable. The ushers gallantly sheathed their swords and fell in to follow. Jane felt Stephens hand upon her arm. She knew that she was looking at him stupidly. There were tears in his eyes. Robin was blowing his nose. Isabel was frankly weeping. Muriel, beyond the satin ribbons, was powdering her tear-stained cheeks. It was over.

"Over There" Is the Chorus.

The Mendelssohn had ceased. The congregation was nodding and whispering and smiling. The orchestra was playing "Over There." Jane slipped her fingers through the crook of Stephen's elbow. The ushers, already gathered around the punch-bowl under the apple tree, had begun to sing. The young male chorus swelled out joyously over the sunlight garden.

"Over there! Over there!
Send the word—send the word over there!
That the Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming,
With the drums rum-tumming everywhere!
So prepare! Say a prayer.——"

Jane moved with light step down the grassy aisle to the rollicking rhythm of the war song. If God were in that garden, He knew her misgivings. He knew that she was praying He had blessed those marriages. If there was a God. And if He was in that garden.

Svastis Here Incognito for Short Stay

Queen of Siam's Parents Are Sojourning in Capital Hotel.

WASHINGTON has been favored for several months with the visits of princes and potentates from across the sea; and now Prince and Princess Svasti, parents of the Queen of Siam, who accompanied the king and queen to the Capital in April, have returned here for another brief visit. The royal party is staying at Wardman Park Hotel, and as they are traveling incognito, their plans during their sojourn here remain a mystery. With them is the young Prince Svasti, brother of the queen, who is a student at Yale University.

News of Princess Svasti's return to Washington will be enthusiastically received here, where she quickly gained an enviable reputation for charm during her April visit. Although the mother of nine children, she scarcely looks older than the young queen.

April was a royal month indeed, and the most brilliant that the Capital has seen in many a long day. Not only were the members of the Siamese royal family here but their imperial highnesses Prince and Princess Takamatsu, of Japan, as well; not to mention Prince Charles of the Belgians, second son of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth.

Young Prince Charles, traveling in this country incognito, using the name of Charles de Rethy, nearly escaped the notice of local scribes, so anxious was he to avoid publicity. He lingered in Washington for many weeks, moving from the Anchorage to the Moorings and back again in his effort to avoid "the press." He left Washington recently and, according to word at the Anchorage, left no forwarding address.

He came here with Comte Francois de Buisseret and Mlle. Beatrix de Buisseret. The former is now attache of the Belgian Embassy, where he was stationed several years ago. Charles de Rethy saw Washington informally, which probably would have been a difficult achievement had he not been with Comte de Buisseret, who knows a host of young people here and is well versed on the highways and byways of Washington.

Mrs. Walter J. Hartman will be the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. H. G. Wentworth, of New York; Miss Alice Gregory, of Long Island; Miss Londell Nichols, of Baltimore, and Miss Catherine Cotter, of Washington.

The best man will be Mr. Robert Montgomery Estes, brother of the bride, and the ushers will be Mr. Kenneth Thornhill, of New York; Mr. E. Nelson Snouffer, of Washington; Mr. Ralph Wilson Powers, of Hyattsville, Md., and Mr. William H. Press, of Washington.

The Clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States and Mrs. Charles Elmore Cropley will leave Washington on Sunday to visit Mr. Percy Staunton Talbert at his country home, Rose Hill, near Lexington, Ky. After this Mrs. Cropley will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bristow Wornall, at their home in Kansas City, Mo., where she will be joined by Mr. Cropley late in July, when Mr. and Mrs. Cropley will go to California and the Pacific Northwest.

The marriage of Miss Harriet Louise Sanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sanger, to Mr. B. Paul Broida, of Parkersburg, W. Va., will take place June 23 at noon at the Mayflower, with Dr. Simon officiating.

Steamer Taken By Several for Stay Abroad

Mme. Bachke, Mrs. Depew and Mrs. Taliaferro to See Europe.

Following the trend of travel, which with Washingtonians leads generally to Europe, several of the Capital sailed yesterday on the Homeric. Mme. Bachke, wife of the Norwegian Minister, sailed, as did Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, who generally spends the early summer season abroad. Later in the summer Mrs. Depew will return to Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., for the early fall.

Mrs. Sidney F. Taliaferro left Washington yesterday for New York and will sail today on the Cameronia for Scotland. Mrs. Taliaferro, who is a native of Scotland, will go first to Glasgow and later, with her sister, Miss Isabel Fulton, who visited Washington several years ago, will go to County Kent, where Miss Fulton has taken a cottage. Mrs. Taliaferro will be with friends and relatives in the British Isles about two months.

Judge and Mrs. Samuel Jordan Graham will close their apartment June 22 preparatory to sailing for Europe. They will go first to Baden-Baden and then go to Bayreuth for the Wagner festival. Later they will go to Vienna and Budapest, returning to Paris in the fall. Next winter Judge and Mrs. Graham will take motor trips in Morocco, Algiers and Tunis. They will spend some time in Egypt and go to Sicily for the spring months.

Sailing this noon on the St. Louis are Mrs. Leonard Wood, widow of Maj. Gen. Wood, former Governor General of the Philippine Islands, who is traveling with her daughter. Also on the ship will be Mr. Charles M. Hathaway, consul at Munich, returning to his post.

Gone to Lawrenceville To See Son Graduate.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming have also gone to Princeton with Mr. and Mrs. Smith to attend the exercises. They will return by motor Sunday night.

Miss Kilbourne Is Married to Lieut. Tracy

Ceremony Takes Place in Home of Cousin of the Bride.

A wedding of charming simplicity which took place here yesterday afternoon was that of Miss Elizabeth Gordon Kilbourne, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Evans Kilbourne, to Lieut. Maxwell Wood Tracy, U. S. A., son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Joseph Powell Tracy. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frazer Head, at 4 o'clock, with only close friends present.

Gen. and Mrs. Kilbourne, parents of the bride, are in Manila, and for this reason arrangements for the wedding were very simple and informal. A profusion of pink summer flowers, with palms and ferns, made an attractive background for the wedding, and a reception followed for those attending the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Frazer Head, and wore a gown of white tulle over satin, fashioned on long lines with a train. Her tulle veil was held with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. James C. Parker was the bride's only attendant and wore a frock of pale blue mousseline de soie, with a wide-brimmed hat to match. She carried white roses. Lieut. Coleman Carter was best man.

Mrs. Head, who received with the young couple, wore a gown of gray crepe and lace and Mrs. Tracy, mother of the bridegroom, wore a flowered chiffon with a pale green hat.

Lieut. Tracy and his bride left immediately for a wedding trip, and later will be at home at Weat Point, N. Y., where Lieut. Tracy is stationed. For traveling, Mrs. Tracy wore a costume of dark blue crepe with a hat and accessories to match.

Grace Mae Harper Wed to Virginian.

Mr. and Mrs. James Franklin Harper, of Harpersville, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace Mae Harper, to Mr. Boyd Shields Soles, of Mathews, Va.

The ceremony took place Wednesday at Monument Lodge, Yorktown, Va., with the Rev. A. J. Renforth officiating. Mrs. Soles is a graduate of the State Teachers College at Fredericksburg, where she taught in the public schools for several years. After June 15 Mr. Soles and his bride will be at home in Mathews.

Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown, of Dayton, Ohio, member of the Republican State central committee, entertained at dinner last evening at the Mayflower in compliment to the Ohio delegation to the Young People's Republican Conference. Covers were laid for nineteen.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Noel, of Denver, Colo., are at the Dodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris left yesterday for Atlantic City.

Robert Taft Is Honored By Poland

Decoration Is Bestowed Here for Relief Work in Late War.

The Polish Ambassador, Mr. Tytus Filipowicz, conferred the decoration of Polonia Restituta on Mr. Robert Taft yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in recognition of his services in Poland as a member of the American Relief Administration during the war.

Mr. Taft is the son of the late President William Howard Taft, and during the war was assistant counsel for the United States Food Administration, when he made the trip to Poland to plan relief for that country.

The ceremony represented the second this week at the embassy revolving about the Order of Polina Restituta, which was also conferred upon Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, grandson of the late senator from Massachusetts, the honor being conferred in recognition of Mr. Lodge's promotion of Polish-American friendship.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham, of Chicago, are at the Mayflower, where they will be until tomorrow. Mrs. Burnham was formerly Miss Vivian Cameron, of Washington.

Adams Shows Old-Time Form Sailing Yacht

Secretary of Navy Brings (Vanitie in Second on Long Island.

Defeated by a bare margin of 28 seconds, the Vanitie, one of 36 yachts in the Glen Cove Cup race Thursday, handled by the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams, finished the race second only to Weematoe in the listless race in Long Island Sound which was run by the New York Yacht Club. Handling the wheel with his usual skill and ease, Secretary Adams slipped into port after the 18-mile run only a little behind the winning yacht, with the Resolute, cup defender in 1920, far astern. Weematoe is one of the four America Cup candidates built last year. Vanitie, owned by Gerard B. Lambert, was America's Cup aspirant in 1920.

With Secretary Adams was Mr. George Nichols, who sailed the Weematoe last year in her cup trials. On board the 8-meter Gitane with her husband was Mrs. Henry S. Morgan, daughter of Secretary Adams, and several friends.

Each spring the call of the water and the rustle of flapping sails beckon to the North Shore or the Sound Secretary Adams, whose crafty knowledge of navigation places him well in the ranks of the skilled yachtsmen of America. His prowess was evidenced on Thursday in sailing the Vanitie to near victory, as few of the 36 yachts making the start could finish in the light easterly breeze, which afforded a listless match, with few able to get around the buoys.

Secretary Adams returned yesterday to Washington and will be here over the week-end.

Mrs. Charles J. Brown announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Brown, to Mr. Thomas Joseph Beavers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalridge B. Beavers. The ceremony took place September 30.

Mrs. Victor B. Deyber entertained a company at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel in compliment to Miss Frances Morse, daughter of Commander and Mrs. John E. Morse, whose marriage to Ensign Raymond Hunter will take place on June 20.

Miss Rahel Davies has gone to Bronxville, N. Y., where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Thomas B. Cheeseborough for a week.

THE International Radio Congress at Copenhagen, Denmark, attended by an American delegation—among them Representative Wallace H. White, Dr. Charles Jolliffe and Dr. J. H. Dellinger, concluded its sessions this week. The congress was consultative in character and is to make recomendations to the Madrid congress in 1932. Deliberations were secret but indications are that conclusions were definitely reached on only eight minor points.

Fifteen important questions, including distribution of wave bands to various services, were referred to national committees for further examination.

The new president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association is J. Clarke Coit, who succeeds Morris Metcalf, of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Coit is president of the United States Radio & Television Corporation in Chicago. Four new vice presidents of the association are A. S. Wells, Leslie F. Muter, Fred D. Williams and N. P. Bloom.

In accepting the presidency of the association, Mr. Coit said: "I am not discouraged in the radio industry. All pioneer developments have to go through a period such as we are now going through. If I fail, somebody else will succeed. A billion dollar industry cannot fail. The bigger you get, the harder it is to fail. The radio industry is too big to fail."

THE Newspaper Radio Editors Association, which meets each year during the trade show, elected E. L. Bragdon, radio editor of the New York Sun, president for 1931-32.

Other officers chosen are: O. N. Taylor, Chicago Times, vice president; Darrell V. Martin, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, secretary-treasurer; and Evans Plummer, Chicago Herald-Examiner, Ralph Worden, Cleveland News, and James Spencer, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, directors.

The 1931 winner of Senator Capper's award, a medal and $5,000, will be announced during the National Farm and Home hour today by Dr. Francis D. Farrell, president of the Kansas State Agricultural College. This award is in recognition of those who have made outstanding contributions to American agriculture.

Otto Kruger, who has replaced Noel Coward in the Broadway success, "Private Lives," will be guest pianist during the "Keys to Happiness" program this morning (WRC, 11:30 a. m.)

Bob Brillmayer, of the WLW continuity department, has just hung up what is considered an all-time playwrighting record when he completed his fifty-sixth play last week, in the past nine months time. Every one has been produced.

SELECTIONS from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," second intermezzo, Wolf-Ferrarri; "Dance of the Hours," Ponchielli; and "Carnival of Venice" will be played by Erno Rapee and his symphony orchestra tonight (WRC, 8 p. m.)

The second of the series of five Boston "Pop" concerts will be broadcast over the WJZ network tonight, 7:30 p. m. Arthur Fiedler, director has selected: "Pomp and Circumstance," overture to "Mignon," "Valse Triste," "Ave Maria," "Music of the Spheres," and overture to "Tannhauser."

The Columbia Broadcasting System's New York offices have discontinued all talent auditions until after Labor Day. The National Broadcasting Co. will continue auditions, as usual.

"Seth Parker" has gone to sea. Phillips H. Lord, creator of the Down East philosopher Seth Parker, has purchased a forty-foot cruiser, renamed the craft "Seth Parker," and now devotes his spare time to sailing the Atlantic.

A Interprets the Mode

Smart hats for hot summer days. (Says Dah-ray.)

New York, June 12.

MIDDLE of June already, and high, (and maybe hot) time to be thinking of vacation togs! Thinking of them perhaps with an eye to economy, certainly with an eye to chic, as usual.

Let's start at the top of the matter, say, with hats. Summer hats are a special problem all their own, what with having to be certain sizes and colors and straws to be practical and stylish, yet looking for all the world as they have looked for the last several summers. Really, now, can't you use some of your last year's hats? You bet you can—if you will just lend me your ears a little minute—one of them, by the way, one of your ears, not one of your hats, has to show this summer, remember.

Well, showing one ear is a matter of the hat, not a matter of the way the hat is worn, you see. This year's summer hats perch on one side of the head, the crown, of course, and the brim falls on one side close to the cheek, on the other, straight out over the ear. And they are made that way, my deah. Of course, it's just a crown and a brim after all, and the crown is first made like any crown ever was, and then the brim poses at this gay angle, and the surplus crown on one side cut off, comprenez?

But never, never wear your hat perched rakishly to one side, if it isn't fashioned to be that way in the first place! If you have a good hat that is not thus made, take a little tuck in it at one side, over one ear, to give it this slant. Or wear it as you wish, for I assure you that there will be many a hat worn this summer with perfect aplomb other than on one side of the head, even though fashion decrees the more fashionable and exaggerated angle.

As to materials, the paper, or imitation Panama hats, are all the go this year. Both for their charm and lightweight, the head and their inexpensiveness. Balibuntl, of course, and many of the wider and rougher grained weaves that have several names apiece.

* * * *

And as to colors, white is the most popular color, and yellow and pale green run close seconds. Blue next, and then all the other colors follow in about the same order, with pinks of a more tannish shade than last year.

* * * *

And what kind of a hat is sketched for you today? Well, my deahs, it's the Dah-ray summer hat, for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dah-ray department of the Washington Post and get a leaflet back telling you how to make it. And it's tricky—there are several brims, and several crowns, and you have oodles of hats from each crown and brim combination, all for the price of one! Not only that, but you positively can make this hat your very own self, with our careful instructions. How about sending for the leaflet and giving it a trial—this hat can cover every wardrobe need for the entire summer, not only for vacation time and the country, but for the city as well. Better take a look—and cut out this sketch and save it while waiting for the directions for making it.

Don't forget tomorrow to look for the Dare fashion letter in the big Sunday Post.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph.D.

"Felix Nale" means "Happy-at-the ale-house."

"Bridget Granville" means "Strong large-town."

THE family name "Nagle" (also spelled "Nagel" and "Nagele") is much more common in the United States and Canada than it is in England. When "Nagle" is of English origin it is a corruption of "Nangle." "Nangle" is a shortened form of "atten angle" which means "at the corner," and which points out the place of residence of the persons who were first so called. However, in the great majority of cases "Nagle" represents the Germanic "Nagel" which means "the nail" and "the spike," and which was once a common personal name in Germany and in England. It will be recalled from previous articles in this series that the old Germanic tribes adopted as personal names the names of almost everything which served them in their warlike existence, especially weapons and armor. It will also be recalled that many old Germanic personal names have reference to the exploits, occupations and equipment of legendary heroes and mythological gods. "Nagel" obviously belongs to the large group of such personal names. At the present time "Nagel" has come to be a common German family name, being found with many variations. Some of the commonest of these are "Nahl," "Naegel," "Negele" and "Neil." The great prevalence of "Nagle" in the United States and Canada is largely due to German and Irish immigration. The commonness of this name in Ireland is probably due to the German immigration in the first part of the eighteenth century. However, many Irish Nagles derive their descent from Gilbert de Angulo, one of the earliest of the Anglo-Norman invaders. "De Angulo" is a Latinized form of "atten angle." The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain John de Angulo and a Symon in Angulo. (The next article of this series will include further remarks concerning this name.)

Chilled Tomato Cocktail.
(Serving eight)

2 cups tomatoes
1 cup water
1 slice onion
4 celery leaves
4 whole cloves
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix tomatoes, water and seasonings (except lemon juice). Cover and cook very slowly 20 minutes. Strain. Cool and add lemon juice. Chill. Serve in small glass cups.

Mint Jelly Salad.

1 package lemon flavored mint gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 cup diced celery
½ cup diced green cherries
2 tablespoons chopped pimentos
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
4 tablespoons salad dressing
½ cup diced pineapple

Pour water over gelatin mixture and stir until dissolved. Cool and allow to thicken a little. Fold in rest of ingredients. Pour into individual molds which have been rinsed out with cold water. Set in cold place to stiffen. Unmold on lettuce and top with more dressing.

If desired, salad can be molded in loaf pan.

Frozen Macaroon Bisque.
(Serving eight)

3 eggs
2-3 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
1 cup broken macaroons
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon extract
¼ teaspoon almond extract
2 cups whipped cream
½ tablespoon granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons water

Beat eggs and add sugar, flour and salt. Add milk. Cook until creamy in double boiler. Stir constantly. Add gelatin which has been soaking five minutes in cold water. Mix well and cool. Add all rest of ingredients and pour into tray of mechanical refrigerator. Freeze four hours. Unmold carefully and serve, cut in squares. Top with whipped cream and red cherries.

If desired, this dessert can be packed in mold and buried four hours in three parts of chopped ice to one part of coarse salt.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE some blooming narcissus. Please tell me the future care of this bulb. Its common name is paperwhite. MRS. E. K.

The paper-white variety of narcissus is of no further use after it has finished blooming.

What is the remedy for a flat, shell-shaped fungus-like growth appearing six or eight inches up the branches of my lilac bushes? Will this damage the plant? MRS. HORACE W.

There is no remedy for this fungus. I should advise the prompt removal of all branches on which it is present.

Please tell me the name of a plant of which I am inclosing a flower. Last fall I took up some stocks and planted them in a pail. They have been very attractive all winter and now I am wondering if I can plant them again in my flower border. I understand that they are annuals, in which case they would not be likely to live much longer. MRS. A. McC.

The flower you inclosed is from a hop vine. Stocks are annuals, but occasionally one finds a plant which lives for several months, so if it is green and thrifty plant it in the open and enjoy it as long as it lasts.

Please tell me how many English ivy plants are used to start an ivy blanket on an adult grave. FRIEDA.

Usually eight small ones are used, two being planted at either end, placed so that the tendrils will grow toward the center of the grave. The remaining four plants are planted 12 inches apart along the center of the grave. The long branches are pinned in position with bone or wire hairpins. As the plants grow and develop more tendrils pin these close to the ground. In this way you can train the vine to cover the soil.

Please tell me the summer care of an oleander. MISS SARA T. F.

Keep plant on a sunny spot on your porch and water it every day. About this time it would be well to incorporate some bonemeal with the soil in which it is growing. This can be done without disturbing the roots of the plant. If it is easier, use liquid manure.

Please tell me where to get a Christmas rose. ANXIOUS.

I am sorry, but we can not publish names or places in this column. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to tell you of several firms listing the Christmas rose.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger hours are from 2 p. m. to 3:45 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

The astrological signs of June 13 indicate that much self-control will be needed to get through the day with anything like justice to yourself or to others. Everything will be at sixes and sevens, and nothing, apparently, will go as you wish. Avoid change, new enterprise and all risk!

A child born on this June 13 will at a very early stage display those characteristics which will distinguish it when matured. It will be tenacious, rather inconsiderate of others, and guided principally by its own wants and desires. It will travel extensively and not crave for a home.

Born on June 13, you are the despair of those near and dear to you. Lumbering through life, you always do what no one expects you to do, and say many things that should, conventionally, be left unsaid. With it all, however, you are not malicious, nor are you stupid. You have a heart of gold, responsive and tender; your sympathies are easily aroused, and your generosity quickly awakened. You, too, possess a vast store of learning, as your habits have always been studious, while your memory is a retentive one. Why, then, do you so often put your foot in it? Because of an utter inability to think quickly or to act judicially.

In order to achieve success in any career, you must choose one where your originality can have full play, and which will not bring you into individual contact with the public, always slow to recognize ability which is not allied with conventionalism.

The fates, according to your horoscope, have in store for you a very felicitious marriage, as your mate will be able to smooth out the difficulties that your lack of gumption may have caused, in addition to sharing with you the happiness that springs from two hearts, beating as one.

Successful people born June 13:
1—Francis Dara—statesman.
2—Winfield Scott—soldier.
3—John P. K. Henshaw—P. E. Bishop—missionary bishop of Arkansas.
4—John M. Henni—R. C. Archbishop.
5—Mary L. B. Branch—author.
6—Frederic W. Root—composer.

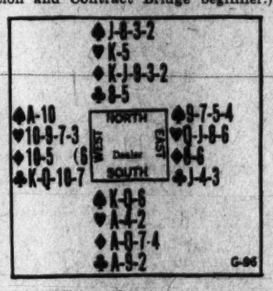
Work's Bridge

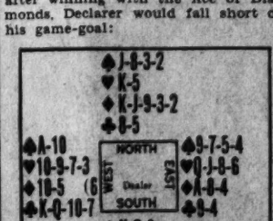
(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)



SOUTH would be playing the above hand at one No Trump if it were held in an Auction Game, Three No Trumps at Contract. West would lead the King of Clubs, and whether West would dare to continue the suit after South's hold-up of the Ace would depend upon East's card. If East played the Jack, West would go on with one of his then touching honors; but if East played the Four, West would not dare continue with a Club for fear that he would be leading up to Ace-Jack in closed hand.

It will be noted that clearing the Clubs immediatly would save game as Declarer could only take one Club, five Diamonds and two Hearts before being obliged to let West in with the Ace of Spades to take a total of four Club tricks; but a shift to any other suit after the first Club trick would make the Declarer's task absurdly easy.

However, with the East and South cards distributed as below (note that West and North hands are the same in both cases,) the lead by West of a second Club would make game easy for Declarer; but if West shifted to a Heart, and East continued Hearts after winning with the Ace of Diamonds, Declarer would fall short of his game-goal:



The above exemplifies the rule that when a King is led originally against a No Trump, and the Partner of the leader has the Jack, he should play it regardless of the number of cards he has in the suit—unless a very unusual condition exists and the composition of the dummy hand assures third hand that it would be disadvantageous to make the play.

The New JELLEFF'S

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

It Will Werk.

DEAR Frances McDonald—Please let me thank you sincerely for the help and interest you give in your daily column—it is half the paper for me.

I am nearly 40 years of age and very much in love with a man of 60. In qualities of heart and mind he can not be surpassed—is this enough for complete happiness in marriage?

The tyranny and petty cruelties of younger men—including my former husband—would discount for me any advantage they may have.

With every good wish to you and appreciation.

Sincerely yours, "HELEN."

The chances of happiness are in your case 100 to 1. You start with that rare thing, high respect for the man. That—after the honeymoon era—is the thing that matters most in holding up a marriage. In fact few marriages ever fall until the woman begins to lose respect for the man. You have in addition a background of comparison that is all in favor of the present arrangement. It is my guess that you will, for the balance of your days, bask happily in the warmth of complete adoration. And anyone versed in the matter of marriage will tell you that the happiest wife is the one who is loved a bit more than she loves! And the unhappiest of all is the one wildly in love with a man who is merely complacently a husband!

Your chances on all sides are better than average—and I hope all on the side of perfect happiness. Plunge and fear not!

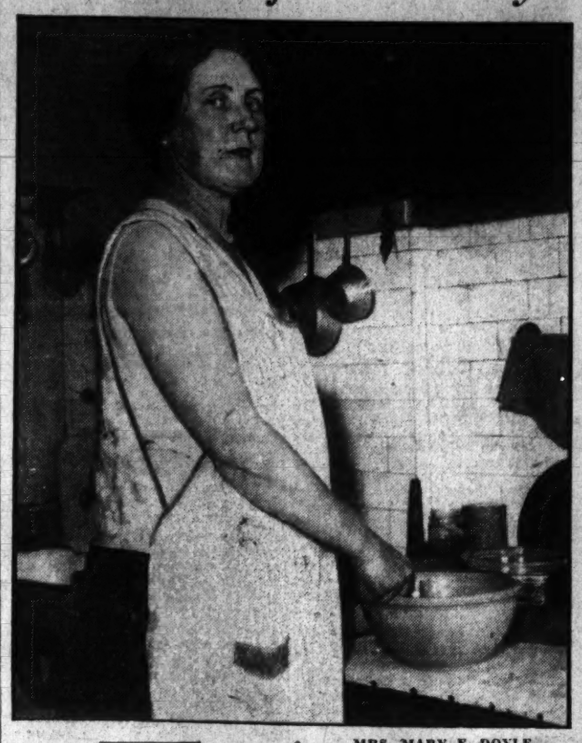
Recipe for Tea Rolls Wins Post Prize for Mrs. Doyle



MRS. MARY E. DOYLE, of 2829 Twenty-seventh street northwest, in the kitchen of her home preparing to make tea rolls, the recipe for which won for her the $5 prize in this week's contest.

Capital Housewives Will Learn How to Make Delicacy.

A recipe for tea rolls this week is the prize winner in the weekly contest to secure the best recipe which includes the use of some article advertised on the Saturday food pages of The Post.

The prize of $5 goes to Mrs. May E. Doyle, of 2829 Twenty-seventh street northwest, whose recipe for tea rolls promises to give numerous housewives of the Capital an opportunity to offer members of their families a new and tempting delicacy for the summer season.

Mrs. Doyle's recipe is as follows:
1 teaspoon salt
1 yeast cake
3 tablespoons sugar
1 large potato.
½ cup shortening, Crisco preferred
4 cups Washington flour.

Cook potato in salted water until it will mash through a fine seive. Put salt, sugar, shortening and mashed potato into a bowl. Pour 1 large cup of water in which potato was cooked, over these ingredients and when luke warm add yeast cake, which has been dissolved in a little water. Add flour, stir until mixed; turn onto floured board and kneed a few minutes. Form into rolls of any desired shape and place on greased baking sheet; brush with melted Crisco and let rise until twice their size. Bake in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) about 15 or 20 minutes.

These rolls may be made one day and if kept in refrigerator, need not be baked until the next.

Very delicious buns can be made by using this formula and prepared as follows:

Roll out the dough and spread with butter, cinnamon, sugar, and raisins. Roll up like a jelly roll and cut crosswise about an inch and a half in length.

Grease well a pyrex baking dish with Crisco. Cover the bottom of the pan with a mixture of brown sugar and butter and scatter broken nut meats, M. B. Frazier's.

Place buns, cut side down, on this sugar and butter mixture. Let rise the same as rolls. Bake in a slow oven about 20 or 30 minutes. Turn from pan immediately.

CABBAGE ACHIEVING RANK AS ROYAL DISH

Most Nutritious Vegetable, as Well as Appetizing; Has Vitamins.

Cabbage, formerly regarded as one of the most plebeian of dishes is achieving royal rank as one of the most appetizing and nutritious of all vegetables, according to the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, which highly recommends its use in more elaborate as well as in the low cost dietary.

Cabbage has another great advantage in that it can be bought for from 3 to 4 cents a pound at present market rates.

A pound of cabbage, when cooked, makes about five servings. Practically the whole head is edible.

Cabbage is a protective food because of its mineral and vitamin content. Calcium is perhaps its most important mineral. It also contains some sulphur compounds which are responsible for the decided odor that develops when cabbage is overcooked. If cabbage is cooked quickly in an open kettle this undesirable feature will be avoided almost entirely and there will be no tendency to discoloration, the bureau says.

Vitamins Destroyed by Heat.

Raw and cooked cabbage differ in their vitamin C content, for heat destroys much of this antiscorbutic vitamin. The loss of this vitamin in heating varies with different vegetables but usually much of it is destroyed in cooking. Some of the soluble substances are left in the liquid after the vegetable is cooked. If this "pot likker" is utilized the loss is lessened.

Raw cabbage ranks with orange juice and tomatoes among the richest sources of vitamin C. Fortunately raw cabbage is a delicious as well as inexpensive food and lends itself to many combination dishes. It can be served as a salad with other vegetables or fruits, or can be chopped fine for sandwiches. Small children, especially, relish raw vegetable sandwiches and, since a deficiency of vitamin C causes irritability, lack of stamina, and retardation of growth, foods which offer a generous supply should be eaten in abundance.

Green raw cabbage leaves are richer in vitamin A and iron than the white ones. The inner cabbage leaves are relatively poor in this vitamin, but it is not destroyed to any serious degree by ordinary cooking. Both vitamins A and C are protective vitamins, since they are a defense against nutritional deficiencies that are most likely to appear when the diet is composed too largely of grain products, meats, sweets and fats.

Stimulates the Appetite.

The other important vitamin found in cabbage is known as B, the antineuritic vitamin that prevents beriberi and stimulates the appetite. This one is more stable than C in cooking.

The bureau sums up the vitamin worth of cabbage by saying that it is most valuable when eaten raw. The proportion of the vitamins lost in cooking depends upon the length of time and whether or not the cooking water with its soluble constituents is saved.

Another virtue of cabbage, in addition to its mineral and vitamin content, is that it adds desirable bulk in a nonirritating form.

There are many varieties of the cabbage family on the market, chief among which are the common cabbage, kale, collards, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower and broccoli. All the others are much more expensive than cabbage, which is unique in the fact that it is to be had throughout the year at reasonable rates. Cauliflower, for instance, is often identified as "the cabbage with a college education." We find when we go to market that the more patrician the variety of cabbage, the higher the cost.

New cabbage is available except for the comparatively brief period from the time of heavy frost until January, when the first shipments begin from the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. In the interlude "old" cabbage is on the market.

Children as young as 2 years old may have cooked cabbage provided it has not been cooked too long. In preparing it for the table the bureau says not to throw away the outer green leaves, for they are the most valuable part of the head. Any discarded leaves might well find their way into the soup kettle.

Cabbage sprouts, which grow on the stalk after the head is cut, are very tender and are green practically all the way through. When boiled, they require only about five or six minutes to cook. They are especially delicious if scalloped with cheese sauce or mixed with other greens and cooked with bacon.

Egg Noodles Baked With Sweet Potatoes

1 package wide egg noodles
3 medium sweet potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup cracker crumbs

Parboil the noodles for 7 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain.

Mash the sweet potatoes. In a well-buttered baking dish place first a layer of noodles, then a layer of potatoes, dot each layer with butter. Continue until noodles and potatoes are used up, having the top layer of noodles. Beat the eggs, add the milk, salt and pepper and pour over all. Cover top with cracker crumbs, dot with more butter and bake in a medium oven about 25 minutes.

Chamberlin Heads Capital Engineers

Chapter Discusses Need for Legislation Requiring Registration Here.

The Washington Chapter of the American Association of Engineers elected officers at a meeting at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest.

Donald L. Chamberlin, vice president of the Kennedy-Chamberlin Development Co., was elected president. Byron M. Allen, engineer, maintenance of ways, Southern Railway, was elected first vice president, with George B. Kissinger, chief engineer for the Westbrook Co., as second vice president. The new secretary is Donald K. McKenzie, consulting engineer, with Vernon D. George, engineer surveyor of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, as treasurer.

Plans were formulated to increase membership in the association and consideration given to the necessity of applying to Congress for legislation requiring the registration of engineers in the District, and to bring about better cooperation among various engineering organizations of the Capital.

Spanish Cake.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon cloves
2 egg whites
½ cup currants
1½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream the butter and sugar; add the beaten egg yolks; add alternately the milk and the flour sifted with baking powder and spices; fold in the egg whites, beaten stiff; put about one-fourth of the butter into a greased and floured cake pan; add the currants to the remaining batter; turn into the pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). The top of this cake may be sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon before putting it into the oven.

FREEDOM FROM THE KITCHEN IS YOURS

It's a simple matter to leave your kitchen . . . slip on your hat . . . lock up the house . . . and do exactly as you please . . . if you have an electric range.

Once you've set the dials on your electric range, put your dinner on, adjusted the cooking heat and cooking speed, your time is your own. Without the least bit of attention the electric range cooks perfect meals. The invisible cook never forgets, never disappoints. Stay out as long as you please, and even if you're late in returning the insulated oven keeps your dinner perfectly warm.

"Matchless Service," lower in cost than ever before, assures you of real economies when you cook electrically. The next time you visit your neighborhood electric shop ask about this modern way to cook . . . the way that gives you absolute freedom from kitchen worries.

NOW! . . . a new freezing method makes this ice cream twice as delicious

Meadow Gold "smooth-freeze" produces far richer, creamier texture. Dealers are ready to serve you with the new, sealed "carry-home" package

NOW you may enjoy ice cream of a rich, creamy texture such as you never tasted before. Meadow Gold's "smooth-freeze" is a recent discovery. It gives Meadow Gold Ice Cream a deliciousness not to be found in ice cream made the old way. Never a lump or icy crystal to mar the flavor! Just velvety smoothness that melts on the tongue.

This remarkable freezing method . . . a discovery that is revolutionizing the ice cream industry . . . brings out to the full the wholesome goodness of Meadow Gold Ice Cream.

Made of real things

Meadow Gold is made of sweet, delicious farm cream from selected dairies in this community. The flavors are real flavors. Chocolate and vanilla made right from the beans. Fresh fruits in season—real fruits always. Not a single substitute of any kind.

You can let your children eat all they want of this pure, wholesome ice cream. It is a healthful, easily-digested, energy food for the whole family.

To enable you to enjoy Meadow Gold "smooth-freeze" ice cream at home, we've developed the sealed, "carry-home" Meadow Gold package. Meadow Gold Ice Cream is packed in this waxed container right at the freezer. Wrapped and sealed, it reaches you untouched by human hands.

Ask your dealer

Stop in at any dealer's and try Meadow Gold Ice Cream. See how its smoother, creamier texture improves a soda. Take along a couple of pints—of different flavors—to serve at home. You'll agree once you taste this new delight—never was any ice cream so good as this.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Roy Sernsky

"PAYING THROUGH THE NOSE"

THE OLD NORSEMEN IMPOSED A TAX ON EACH PERSON, SIMILAR TO OUR MODERN POLL TAX. IT WAS TERMED A NOSE TAX, BECAUSE THEY COUNTED NOSES AND CHARGED A PENNY FOR EACH NOSE. THOSE WHO REFUSED TO PAY HAD PART OF THEIR NOSE CUT OFF, THUS GIVING US THE EXPRESSION, "PAYING THROUGH THE NOSE."

"FORE"

SCOTTISH GOLFERS USED THIS CRY MORE THAN A HUNDRED YEARS AGO. IT IS SAID TO HAVE STARTED AS "BEFORE," BUT WITH PROPER SCOTTISH REGARD FOR ECONOMY OUR CANNY FRIENDS SHORTENED IT TO ITS PRESENT FORM.

THE SUNFLOWER

AN ANCIENT MYTH SAYS THAT CLYTIE WAS THE DAUGHTER OF OCEANUS WITH WHOM SOL (THE SUN) FELL IN LOVE. LATER HE DESPISED HER AND SHE PINED AWAY IN SORROW AND FINALLY BECAME A FLOWER WHO ALWAYS TURNED HER FACE TOWARD THE SUN.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

KEEPING COOL IN HOT PLACES.

IN determining human comfort, both at work and at rest, both temperature and humidity must be taken into consideration, is the consensus of two groups of experimenters reporting in the American Journal of Hygiene. Incidentally, the movement of air in currents is also a factor, though to a less important degree, and more indirectly.

Miura reports that at 61 degrees a difference of 1.17 degrees in temperature is equal to a difference of 50 per cent in humidity, so far as the comfort is concerned. At 70 degrees the same difference in humidity is equal in effect to a difference of 4 degrees in temperature. When the temperature of the air is 70 degrees and the humidity is 70 per cent the air has a feeling of wetness. At this temperature differences of 20 per cent in humidity can be detected by the feel of the skin. If the temperature is only 61 the variston of the humidity must be as great as 50 per cent for the skin to feel the difference.

These observations were made with very delicate instruments applied to the skin of the forehead, and on the side of the neck. Instruments showed that the skin in these regions fluctuates considerably in warmth, according to the condition of the atmosphere. The experiments showed that the skin is much more delicate in its ability to detect changes in temperature than it is in appreciating changes in humidity, but it responds to both within limits.

These experiments were made with the body in repose. Another group of experimenters worked with men who were doing hard labor. They determined the amount of heat made by the working body and what became of it.

At lower atmospheric temperatures the human body gets rid of its excessive heat by radiation and convection. It gives out heat like a stove, and it also heats up its surroundings by the same process that we heat an iron bar throughout by heating one end of it.

Perspiration as a means of getting rid of heat at low temperatures is unimportant. At high temperatures the picture is reversed. Perspiration is the only effective way of disposing of excess heat in these circumstances. The temperatures and humidities at which insensible perspiration is changed to sensible perspiration, is 50 degree Fahrenheit, and a humidity of 20 per cent. Whenever these combinations of levels are exceeded perspiration wets the skin and the clothing.

Incidentally, these experimenters found that the human body as a machine for converting fuel into energy has an efficiency of from 11 to 20 per cent.

SENILE WARTS.

F. M. writes: What is the remedy for the small, very dark, and wartlike bodies which appear on hands of old persons? They are not usually sore unless they grow so large as to be in the way, when they become irritated.

REPLY.

These are senile warts .As a rule the question ir dismissed with the statement that they are due to age. They are not usually important, though occasionally one becomes cancerous.

Custody of Boy Given To Divorced Woman

The District Supreme Court yesterday awarded Mrs. Ruth Harris Bell, of the Conard Apartments, Thirteenth and I streets northwest, the custody of a 2-year-old son, who has been the subject of much litigation between her and her husband, John Paul Bell, of Minden, La.

In her petition for custody of the boy, Mrs. Bell said that her husband sued for a divorce from her on the grounds of desertion. He was given a decree in Texas in 1930, but the decree failed to mention the couple's son, she said. Bell then filed suit in Louisiana for custody of the boy and was given an affirmative judgment. Mrs. Bell took the boy from her husband and brought him to Washington, where she instituted suit.

RAIL STOCKS RECORD WIDE CLOSING GAINS

Market in Other Issues Is Dull; Steel Slightly Higher After Small Losses.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Railroad securities provided most of the interest in today's security markets. The stocks took considerable profit-taking in the morning, but forged slowly ahead thereafter and closed with net gains of 1 to 9 points.

Industrial and utility shares were largely inactive and at times heavy, although they recovered with the transportation issues. However, their net changes were small and somewhat irregular. The market was very dull throughout the session and the turnover dropped to 1,600,000 shares.

There has been a drop of $15,900,000 in gold earmarked for foreign account at the New York Federal Reserve Bank this week, but there has been no indication as to how much was for Germany and how much for Canada. The Canadian dollar has recently been weak.

Copper Stocks Larger.

An unfavorable set of copper statistics had been expected, but the 86,000-ton gain in refined stocks for this hemisphere during May was somewhat larger than had been anticipated. The curtailment agreement reached by producers early last winter called for a 15 per cent cut in output.

Many domestic companies have reduced substantially more than that amount, but the demand for the metal has been much smaller than was anticipated and it is probable that some foreign producers have not held down.

Bradstreet's reported the downward drift if retail trade had been halted by department store sales and the demand for vacation goods. Dun's said continued unsettlement of the commodities tended to restrict business in some trade lines, although production in many directions had not been effected. Bank clearings for the week were unable to maintain the improvement noted a week ago and there was a sharp drop in commercial failures.

Rails Close Higher.

The early realizing in railroad stocks carried Atchison and New York Central 3 points lower, but both closed 2 points up. Pere Marquette recovered 9, Nickle Plate 5, Union Pacific nearly 6, Central of New Jersey 7 and numerous others 1 to 3. International Telephone took a sudden spurt in active trading and closed nearly 2 points to the good. United States Steel more than regained a 2-point loss, but its net gain was only a fraction. Westinghouse and General Motors were down 1 each. Union Carbide, Bethlehem, American Gas, Loew's, Paramount, General Electric, Allied Chemical and American Telephone finished firm.

Word that insufficient rain had fallen in Canada and that export demand was better, gave wheat a 1 to 2½ point rally. Corn was little better than steady, while a quiet cotton market advanced 2 to 7 points net.

Exchanges were generally soft, although the German mark more than recovered a midday loss. Montreal touched a new low for the year, but revived.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—Wheat went higher today influenced by the fact that for almost a week the market had closed lower. Renewal of anxiety about spring wheat crop prospects in Canada was a bullish factor, as a Chicago expert said winter wheat from the central Southwest eastward, including the Ohio Valley was being damaged by overforcing and moisture. Advices from many sections of domestic winter wheat territory indicated an unusual infestation of cut worms, army worms and insects.

Wheat closed unsettled at ¾@2½c advance; corn, ⅛@⅝c up; oats showing ⅛@⅜c gain, and provisions varying from a decline to a rise of 50c.

Generally clear weather was reported over the Canadian wheat belt, and drought that appeared to have been confined to relatively small areas. The amount of moisture received in the last 24 hours was disappointing, and evidence accumulated that the crop of the Canadian prairies had not yet received a soaking needed to offset the season's unusual shortage. It was announced that a rainfall in the Canadian wheat belt since April 1 totaled only about 35 per cent of normal, and that this period was the time in which moisture had heretofore generally been the heaviest of the year.

Contributing to wheat market strength was good demand for old domestic supplies, with offers uncompelling for nearby offerings. Old crop domestic winter wheat in fair quantities was also taken for Europe, and Argentine receipts were shrinking. Complaints of backwardness of wheat crops in France were current, and there were also advices of an apparently inevitable big reduction of wheat acreage in Australia.

Corn and oats firmed up with wheat, although the corn price upturns were retarded by favorable weather crop reports.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to a rise in hog values.

BOND PRICES HIGHER IN IRREGULAR SALES

Exception Is With Foreign Loans Which Record Sharp Losses.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—After opening with irregular changes the bond market today gained momentum to close generally higher, with the exception of the foreign group.

Gains in the average prices of representative industrial, railroad and public utility loans indicated the breadth of the upward movement among corporate obligations. More conspicuous than this strength were the sharp losses in German, Argentine and Chilean obligations.

Sales of the German 5½s exceeded $400,000 at par value, and they closed 1¾ points lower for the day. City of Berlin 6s dropped 8 points, the largest loss of the German group, and net losses ranging from 1 to 7 points appeared among other German loans. These recessions were ascribed to liquidation encouraged by unsettled conditions in Germany.

Argentine loans receded sharply also, but the losses among Chilean issues were not so wide. Other foreign loans were usually higher.

The late trend among corporate bonds was unmistakably, if irregularly, upward. American Telephone collateral 5s, the sinking fund 5s of 1960 and the 5s of 1965, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s, Duquesne Light 4½s, Philadelphia Co. gold 5s, Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971, New York Steam 5s and Norfolk & Western consolidated 4s either reached new highs or equaled their old highs for this year. These bonds are all of high investment rating, which is indicative of the continuing preference of the investing public for such issues, but the advance spread to other issues of lesser standing.

Except the Treasury 4¼s, United States Government issues were dull, but they closed irregularly higher.

The National City Co. is offering $4,202,000 of 4 per cent bonds of California to yield from 2.90 to 3.55 per cent.

George B. Gibbons & Co. are offering $3,480,000 City of Syracuse, N. Y., bonds to yield from 1.75 to 3.50 per cent, according to maturity. The Continental Illinois Co. of Chicago is offering $3,540,000 of 4¼ per cent bonds of Milwaukee to yield 2 to 3.60 per cent.

NATS BAT FERRELL OUT TO WIN SEVENTH STRAIGHT, 7-1;

PITT CONQUERS HOWELL, 2 UP, IN COLUMBIA GOLF FINAL

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

A NICHE in the thoroughbred Valhalla has been carved for the reception of the 3-year-old champion of 1931 early this afternoon. The steed that will take its place alongside the other immortals of the turf will be the winner of the $75,000 Belmont Stakes at a mile and a half.

The prowess of Twenty Grand and Jamestown has cut off all competition with the exception of Sun Meadow. Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's son of Sun Briar. The other 3-year-olds in the East have shied at a test with Twenty Grand and Jamestown and trainers of the colts of the age campaigning at Washington Park do not deem the trip and the prospects worth the trouble or the $250 starting fee. Consequently, fourth and fifth money which the rich stake carries is going begging, barring post entries.

The Belmont has thus simmered down to a three-horse race. Pittsburgher, Sweep All and Spanish Play, the best of the Western contingent, had enough of Twenty Grand in the Derby. Equipoise has broken down. Mate, conqueror of Twenty Grand in the Preakness, is declining the issue.

Remember the Travers

The Travers at Saratoga last summer was a three-horse race too. Gallant Fox, with Sande in the saddle, was fresh from his triumphs in the Preakness and the Derby, the only horse to win both stakes since Sir Barton, in 1919. Whichone was the contender, with Workman astride. The Whitney trainer had withheld Whichone from the spring stakes to point him for the Belmont. He had a better 2-year-old record than Gallant Fox and he won his early 3-year-old tests impressively. Like today's Belmont, it had all the aspects of a match race.

Jim Dandy was the third horse in the race, a 100-to-1 shot that didn't figure. Sande and Workman set a dazzling pace. Around the first three turns they swept, neither permitting his rival to draw away. The stretch run would tell the story. It did. From out of the mist at the turn for home the equine head of the 100-to-1 shot forged to the fore. Jim Dandy, reveling in the mud, won in a common canter. He made the Travers the Alamo of the turf. There ought to be a moral in that for Twenty Grand and Jamestown. Maybe for Sun Meadow, too.

Never Met as Juveniles

Twenty Grand and Jamestown never met as 2-year-olds. Their record as juveniles catapulted them into chief consideration wherever 3-year-old form of 1931 was the topic. Each occupied a separate niche last year—Twenty Grand as the maker of a new mile record for 2-year-olds and as the conqueror of Equipoise, and Jamestown as the winner, of six out of seven races and $151,925 in earnings.

Neither Twenty Grand nor Jamestown has ever run the mile and a half that the Belmont exacts. The Greentree colt traveled the mile and a quarter in his Kentucky Derby triumph, scoring in an impressive stretch run that gave evidence of his ability as a distance runner. The added quarter mile is no especial hazard for Twenty Grand.

Jamestown, as a 2-year-old, was noted chiefly as a sprinter, but his early tests this season indicate that he is a router as well. He is by St. James—Mlle. Dazie, by Fair Play, and is bred to go a route. He will have McAtee on his back, with Kurtzinger astride Twenty Grand.

The Belmont holds the prospect of an epic race, a duel of riders as well as mounts. A race of 1½ miles carries a generous asking of strategy. The task of keeping off a killing pace for the first mile is in the hands of Kurtzinger and McAtee. But neither can afford to let his rival steal a lead at any stage, with the stretch-running potentialities of both what they are. There is another thing to watch. That is Sun Meadow. That's what makes horse racing.

Pairings of D. C. Pros For Open Announced

When play begins at the national open on the morning of July 2 at the Inverness Club, Toledo, the Washington contingent will be led by J. Monro Hunter, Indian Spring, who starts at 8:50 paired with Art Straub, of the Branch Brook Club, Bloomfield, N. J. Fred McLeod will play at 9:25, paired with Larry Montes, Philippine Islands, while A. L. Houghton, Kenwood, is scheduled for 2:25 p. m., paired with George Dernbach, professional of the Flossmoor Club, Chicago.

The list of entrants totals 151 and a large gallery is certain to follow Tommy Armour, formerly of the Congressional Club and recent winner of the British open, who plays with Henry Cotton, one of the leading British professionals.

Al Singer to Battle Massey in N. Y. June 18

New York, June 12 (U.P.).—Al Singer, who at 21 is a former lightweight champion of the world, will start his comeback attempt in a ten-round bout with Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, at Madison Square Garden, June 18.

The little New Yorker, who won and lost the championship last year in less than a round of fighting, has split with the clique which guided him to the championship by carefully selecting his spots, and says he is ready to fight the best men in the class.

Massey is a much more formidable opponent than any Singer met in his rise to the title and should give the former champion a real test.

Richmond Boy Defeated on Last Hole

Pitt Ousts Eynon in Morning, 3 and 2, to Gain Finals.

Squares Match With Howell on 11th and Wins 15th, 18th

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

HARRY G. PITT, of the Manor Club, yesterday won the spring invitation golf tournament of the Columbia Club, defeating William R. Howell, a 19-year-old member of the Hermitage Club, Richmond, Va., and winner for two consecutive years of the Middle Atlantic Golf Championship. Last year, Howell won the Columbia Club event. The match yesterday was carried to the eighteenth green, Pitt winning 2 up.

The result might have been different if the youthful Virginia golfing star had played in the final round as brilliantly as he performed in the semifinal round yesterday morning when he ended his match on the sixteenth green, 3 and 2, against M. Parker Nolan, Congressional, needing only two par 4s for a 70.

Pitt even more easily disposed of his opponent in the semifinal round, Everett Eynon, the Columbia champion, whom he defeated by the wide margin of 7 up and 5 to play. Eynon, who is usually consistently good, was erratic, topped tee shots being the principal cause of his defeat.

If there was one factor which more than any other contributed to Howell's downfall it was his sad habit of hooking or pulling his tee shots. He lost the third hole because he hooked into the woods and then overapproached the green; he lost the sixth and the seventh when he hooked his drive out of bounds; and on the fifth hole a hooked iron landed his ball far off to the left of the green.

Pitt Drives Go Long And Straight.

Pitt, on the other hand, was driving long and straight and the only tee shot which was severely penalized was an encounter with a trap on the fifth hole. Both players were approaching well but their putting was not spectacular. Despite numerous opportunities not a single birdie was scored on the round.

With both the first and second holes halved in par 4s in regulation fashion, Pitt became 1 up after Howell's misadventure on the third hole and secured a half with a par 3 on the fourth by a fine recovery shot after overdriving the green. The playing of the fifth was not a championship exhibition, for Pitt, after driving into a trap and barely getting out, topped his brassy into another trap and finally reached the green in 5, holing out in 7, while Howell, on the green in 4, won with a 6. Then on the sixth and seventh holes Howell's out-of-bounds shots were fatal, but he recovered a hole on the eighth when he laid Pitt a dead stymie. On the ninth hole Howell played one of his famous mashie niblick shots, for, although his second was far off in the rough on the right of the green, he pitched so dead to the cup that he easily ran down his par 4 for a half. Pitt made the turn 1 up on Howell.

The match was squared on the eleventh when Howell, using a spoon to reach the green, was safely home, while Pitt, electing to use an iron, pressed and pushed his ball into a trap guarding the green. On the long twelfth another shot which won the applause of the gallery was made by Pitt. He had driven into the left-hand trap and was barely out with his second shot. With the green fully 200 yards away, he made a masterly shot out of the rough to the green, his ball fortunately escaping a trap by a few feet and rolling down to within 12 feet of the pin.

Howell's Recovery Wins Applause.

On the thirteenth, Howell again won the plaudits of the gallery when, after hooking his tee shot into a trap, he pitched out and ran down a par 3. Pitt secured a half with a fine approach shot from 50 yards off the green.

On the fourteenth green the door stood invitingly open for either one of the players to become 1 up, but both obligingly took three putts and the match remained all square. On the fifteenth Pitt hooked a long drive down into the flat, where he was stymied by some trees, but played through them at a wide angle, reaching the green in 3 and holing out a

U. S. Racqueters Lead In Match in Germany

Berlin, June 12 (A.P.).—The United States took a lead of two matches to none over Germany in an International tennis team competition today. John Van Ryn and George Lott jr., both of Philadelphia, winning their first matches handily.

Van Ryn defeated Ferdinand Henkel in straight sets 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, while Lott came from behind to defeat Heinz Landmann 3—6, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2. Lott was scheduled to play Fritz Kuhlmann but Landmann was substituted at the last minute.

Red Sox Win Pitchers' Battle From Detroit

Boston, June 12 (A.P.).—Jack Russell had the edge on George Uhle in a pitchers' battle today and the Red Sox defeated Detroit, 3 to 1. Russell allowed the Tigers three hits, while his teammates were able to garner only five off Uhle's delivery.

Four of the Sox hits came in the fifth inning, when Tommy Oliver got a scratch single with the bases full, scoring two runs. Warstler, playing his first game for Boston at second, followed with his second single of the game, driving in the third run.

"FRAT" NINE TO BATTLE BAPTISTS

Clash at Alexandria Today; Leon Riley in Box for Locals.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 12.—Ralph Scrivener's Alpha Delta Omega Baseball Team will encounter tough opposition in tomorrow's tussle at Baggett's Stadium, mixing with the West Washington Baptist nine at 3:30 o'clock.

This game will mark the reopening of Saturday afternoon baseball in Baggett's Stadium by the Fraters, after a three-weeks' lay-off. Previously the Fraters have been playing all games on Edward Duncan Field.

Scrivener said, "I have signed Leon Riley, former star Celtics hurler, now with the Commerce Department, of Washington, and he will toe the hill against the Washingtonians. You know our opponents have a great record. They are tied for first place in the Church League and many leading ball players will be in their line-up. I expect a tough battle and have prepared 'Vinnie' Bradley and Larry Curtis will be my reserve moundsmen, while Russ Kidwell, veteran catcher, will don the mask and mitt.

"I hope Alexandria fans will support us in this game. If we make expenses, I plan to bring some of the leading teams in Maryland and Washington here for games on Saturdays."

On June 18 the Fraters will trek to Fredericksburg, Va., for a return contest with the Elks. In the last encounter the Fredericksburg boys won out, 1-0. Doc Dreifus hurled for the local club and fanned fifteen batters, only to lose the verdict.

Manager Ted Miller, of the Del Ray Athletic Club, announced today he had scheduled the Chevy Chase Grays for a game in Washington tomorrow. This will be the first game for the Red Birds on foreign soil. Kennedy or Gardiner will pitch.

Miller is hunting for game for Sunday. He hopes to complete terms with a team from Washington today. The Red Birds play all their games on Edward Duncan Field, in Potomac.

The Belle Haven Golf and Country Club twelve-man team will trek to Purcellville tomorrow for the second meeting of the Tri-State Association. The Alexandrians are now leading the loop by nine and a half points.

Robert McDonald and Raymond Peverill, two Alexandria baseball arbiters, will probably be given the assignment to officiate in the annual Kiwanis-Rotary contest at Baggett's Stadium on Tuesday, June 23. The Kiwanians won the game by a close score last season. Piggy Demaine is slated to hurl for the Kiwanis Club.

Two Army post baseball teams, Washington and Humphreys, will clash Saturday in a third area title game on the Fort Humphreys diamond. The Humphreys team is leading the Third Area Division with a win over Walter Reed.

Lieut. Rinehardt, athletic director, today announced C. D. Bussius and Robert McDonald, two District Association umpires, would officiate the contest.

White Sox Easy Prey For Yanks; Score, 11-2

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Henry Johnson got off to a slow start today but settled down and pitched the Yankees to an 11-to-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox. He held the Sox to four hits, all of which came in the second and third innings, and batted in three runs with a pair of doubles.

Ben Chapman led the Yankees' 13-hit attack on McKain, Lyons and Moore, driving home four counters, three of them on his home run with two on base in the fifth. He also stole his seventeenth base. Lou Gehrig clouted his tenth homer of the season with Ruth on base in the sixth.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT —By C. M. Payne

BELL BEATS YEOMANS, 10-8, 6-1

District Netman Bows After Struggle in Baltimore.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 12.—Berkeley Bell, former Davis Cup alternate, fought his way into the final round of the Maryland State championship here today on the grass courts of the Baltimore Country Club by turning back the challenge of Eddie Yeomans, Washington, D. C., tyro, by the margin of 10—8, 6—1.

Yeomans pressed the Texan hard in the first set, holding small leads frequently, but Bell's aggressive net rushes and his heavily undercut drives finally proved the downfall of the smoother stroking player.

Eddie Jacobs, a bit later in the day, joined Bell in the final bracket by subduing Ted Easton, of Stanford, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, in a match which was Jacobs all the way, so intense was the serving and stroking of the defending champion.

Yeomans-Markey Team Wins.

Yeomans and Bud Markey, a Washington combination, reached the semifinal round of the doubles when they stepped over two opposing teams, beating F. B. Harvey and R. G. Vaughan, 6—3, 7—5, in the third round, and L. Stewart and J. Ramsey, 6—0, 6—2, in the fourth.

Bell and Jacobs, top seeded doubles team, also defeated two opponents today to enter the round of four. In the third round they turned back the Baltimore combination of Eric Jacobsen and George Heberner, 6—3, 6—4, and then the Yale varsity team of Billy Bascom and Bob Ryan, 6—4, 6—4.

British Cup Netmen Win Two From Japan

Eastbourne, England, June 12 (A. P.).—England took a commanding lead over Japan in the semifinals of the European zone Davis Cup tennis play by sweeping through both of the opening singles matches today with the loss of only two sets.

Fred Perry defeated Jiro Saton, 6—1, 4—6, 7—5, 7—5, in the first match, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin downed H. Saton, 0—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—1, in the second. England now needs only to win tomorrow's doubles match on one of two remaining singles tilts to assure itself a place in the finals.

Jakie May, Cub Hurler, Hurt in Auto Crash

Chicago, Ill., June 12 (A.P.).—The Cubs suffered the temporary loss of part of their relief pitching staff when Frank "Jakie" May, veteran southpaw, was injured in an automobile accident after the Chicago-Philadelphia game today.

May suffered a slight concussion of the brain and painful lacerations of the face and head when his car was struck by another at an intersection. May, obtained by the Cubs from the Cincinnati Reds last winter, was taken to a nearby hospital when an examination by Dr. John F. Davis, club physician, revealed the extent of his injuries.

GEORGE JENNINGS BEATEN.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 12 (A.P.).—Paul Kunkel, of Cincinnati, today won his way into the semifinal round of the men's singles in the tristate tennis tournament by defeating George Jennings, Chicago, national public parks champion, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—0.

Three other men previously qualified for the semifinals. They were Clifford Sutter, New Orleans; Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex., and J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J.

College Oarsman's Life Great One Except for the Oar-Pulling and Training

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Boat-race time is approaching, and these would be days of voluptuous lazing in the sun at Poughkeepsie and New London if there were any sun, and the coaches and trainers didn't always have other plans to interfere with the lazing around on the floats.

Of all the college sports, this one of pulling an oar in a crew always has seemed to me the most attractive, with the single exception of the pulling of the oar, which looks hard enough even from where the customer sits, a long way off, jolting a plank circus seat, rigged on a flat car.

Nothing to Do But Rowing And Training.

The other aspects of life on a college boat crew, as seen from where the spectator sits, appeal to that part of his nature which sets him longing now and again for the smell of fresh water and woods and the sound of little waves going slappedy-slap against the side of a rowboat. But for the rowing and the training, the young men would have nothing to do, some of them for as long as three weeks before the big race, but lie sprawled out, as bare as the palm of your hand and as brown as gravy, on the gently bobbing floats along the shore, stirring now and again just enough to roll over into the Hudson or the Thames to cool off.

But I suppose nothing is as good as it seems, for the boys who have been through this apparently ideal vacation say, "Yes, sure, it's a fine vacation. You get blisters wherever you touch the boat, and you spend most of your off-time standing around in a mob, without anything on, trying to get a big table where there is a lot of rubbing alcohol and iodine and bandages.

Job Looks Enviable To Spectators.

"You dab yourself on the blisters with alcohol and iodine or you paint a pal and he paints you back, and then you stick some tape on yourself, and by that time you have to go out and row some more. Then the tape puckers up and makes a hard wad, and this hurts the blisters even more, no matter which way you hitch around. Your hands blister and the handle of the oar chafes the pelt off your center and there is't any way you can lie on the float in the sun and get any comfort, even if you had time to lie on the float."

Still, they look enviable from where the spectator sits, most of them big kids with huge shoulders and long legs and flat muscles in front and reeking with health, and quartered in secluded places on cool water, with the mountain forests at their back.

The day of the race usually is muggy and hot, accentuating the at-

MACKS EVEN SERIES WITH BROWNS

Hit Coffman to Win, 6 to 2; Mahaffey Yields But 4 Hits.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12 (A.P.).—Walloping Dick Coffman hard, the Philadelphia Athletics evened the series with the St. Louis Browns by taking today's game, 6 to 2.

The champions clinched the game in the seventh when they pounded Coffman for five hits after two were out, and scored three runs. Roy Mahaffey went the distance for the Macks and held the Browns to four hits.

Fischer Baffles Indians, Yielding Only 8 Safeties; Nats Assume Lead Early

KING FISCH-ER

Cronin, Kuhel Are Batting Heroes of 10-Hit Attack.

Tribe Shut Out Until Seventh; 7th Win for Southpaw.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Nats' victory yesterday, their seventh in a row, extending their longest winning streak of the season, and their eleventh win in the fourteen starts they have made during the present home stay, was probably the sweetest of any, for it was at the expense of Wesley Ferrell, the league's only no-hit, no-run game flinger of the current season. And, it was no fluke either, for Ferrell was pounded off of the hill while Rookie Carl Fischer was outpitching him to give the Nationals a 7-to-1 victory.

Ferrell was seeking his tenth triumph, having previously been beaten only twice, the Nationals and Boston Red Sox having turned the trick. He was both ineffective and wild yesterday, though, so his efforts for revenge proved futile, with Fischer grabbing the glory and adding a seventh game to his victory-string. About 11,000 fans, including many "ladies' day" guests, were on hand to see the fun.

The Johnsons have been hitting all pitchers lately and Ferrell's reputation did not feaze them in the slightest. They started off by getting one run, added three more to their total in the third and two more in the fourth, after which Manager Roger Peckinpaugh made the rather belated discovery that he was no puzzle and Southpaw Walter Miller finished the string.

Myer Opens Rally With Single.

Bases on balls figured in each rally. Myer's opening single, a pass and Cronin's single netted the marker scored in the first, while Manush's triple opening the third, another one-bagger by Cronin, a walk, Kuhel's double, and Bluege's useful out were responsible for the trio molded in that round.

A second double by Kuhel scored the two runs coined in the fourth after Myer's one-shot and walks to Cronin and West had put the runners on the sacks. Miller held the Nats to but two hits after he entered the game starting the fifth and, but for an error by Hodapp in the seventh, would have pitched shutout ball. This miscue let West score, following his opening single, Kuhel's sacrifice, and a walk to Bluege, while the Goldman-Hodapp-Morgan combine was trying for a double-play, the second baseman's throw being far over the first sacker's head.

Fischer Yields Four Hits in Six Innings.

While the Nationals were making merry on their occasions at the tee, the Indians were having plenty of trouble trying to solve Fischer's slants. They made but four hits in the first six frames and, although three of these were doubles, were able to get but one man past second base.

Beginning the seventh, however, Fischer began showing signs of wear and tear and it was in this frame that the Tribe molded its lone run, making it from Porter's double and Hodapp's single. When Morgan and Vosmik, first two up in the eighth, singled in order, Fred Marberry hustled to the bullpen and began untangling his arm, but he was not needed. Kamm rolled to Cronin, who started a double-play which Myer and Kuhel finished, and this last threat of the game ended when West camped under Sewell's fly.

Cronin Leader in 10-Hit Attack.

Cronin, with three hits, and Myer and Kuhel, with two each, accounted for the lion's share of the ten home safeties, while Ed Morgan was the only Indian to get more than one. He doubled and singled while walking twice to have a perfect day at bat. Several sparkling plays were made, with Myer and West making the two best, the former on Goldman's near Texas Leaguer in the seventh and the second baseman at Porter's expense in the third. West's was a shoe-string grab, while Myer's was one in which he used only the finger-tips of his glove, both coming after long runs.

TRIBE FACES CROWDER IN FINALE

Nats Seek Sweep of Series Today; Peck Names Shoffner.

HAVING disposed of Wesley Ferrell, the Cleveland pitcher, which the Nationals looked upon as the highest hurdle for them to clear in this series, they are confidently looking forward to taking this afternoon's finale with the Peckmen for a series sweep at their ninth victory in a row.

"General" Alvin Crowder will do the home hurling, while Manager Roger Peckinpaugh is expected to call on Milburn Shoffner, the southpaw who, after a bad start as Willis Hudlin's relief in Wednesday's game, pitched hitless ball in the last three frames. Judging from the manner in which the Nats have been pounding the ball of late, Shoffner will have quite a job on his hands.

Cronin in Game After Arm Is Baked.

By playing yesterday Shortstop Joe Cronin showed that you can't keep a good man down. Thought to have been badly injured when hit on the right shoulder by one of Mel Harder's wild heaves Thursday, X-ray photographs showed no fracture, but bad and painful bruises.

Cronin reported to Trainer Mike Martin at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, had the injury baked for more than two hours and insisted upon playing. Fortunately for him, his only chance afield called for nothing more than an underhanded toss to Myer, starting the only double play of the game.

That the sore shoulder did not interfere with his batting is indicated by the fact that he cracked out three hits which drove in two runs, adding to his league-leading total in both respects.

There seems to be some doubt as to whether Cronin's consecutive-game batting streak ended when he was removed because of his injury Thursday, when he had run his total to 18 in a row. He was credited with no times at bat, having walked and been hit, but he did not get a hit. A technicality is involved, and the matter will be put up to President Will Harridge, of the American League, when he arrives here today.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones was called to his home at Woodsfield, Ohio, Thursday night because of the critical illness of his mother. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Jones recovers shortly and that the Nats' pitcher will soon be back on the job again. A few days' lay-off will not do the old-timer any harm, however, as he pulled up with a slightly sore arm after his last game.

Will Harridge, newly elected president of the American League, will visit the Capital today and tomorrow. He is en route to Philadelphia to take part in the ceremonies Monday when the Mackmen will raise their 1930 American League championship flag.

Pitcher Lloyd Brown, who has been bothered by an infected tooth, had it yanked Thursday night.

TWENTY GRAND, JAMESTOWN IN LONG-AWAITED CLASH TODAY

3-Horse Race In $75,000 Belmont

Derby Winner Held 4-5 Favorite; Sun Meadow Starts.

50,000 Crowd to See Star 3-Year-Olds in Historic Test.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, June 12 (A.P.).—Rivals for the 3-year-old championship, Twenty Grand, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and Jamestown, king of the 1930 juveniles, carry their battle of work-outs into actual competition tomorrow in the sixty-third running of the $75,000 Belmont Stakes.

Only Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow was left to face the two stars when the entry list was posted today. But with a fourth-place purse of $1,000 there may be an added entry or two before Starter George Cassidy gets the field away on its 1½-mile journey at about 3:15 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Twenty Grand Seen Certain Favorite.

Whether the track be muddy or fast, Twenty Grand, carrying the silks of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable, is almost certain to answer the bugle call as the favorite. Shrewd horsemen today considered the son of St. Germans—Bonus a 4-to-5 proposition on a slow track, and even shorter if today's sun and wind dry up the Belmont Park racing strip.

Backed by a great 2-year-old record and sizzling work-outs in the mud, George D. Widener's Jamestown is not without his backers. The strapping son of St. James has been carefully prepped by the dean of trainers, Andrew Jackson Joyner. He has proved in trials he can go the route. Even money appears to be a good price on the Widiner colt, but his odds may lengthen if the track dries out.

Sun Meadow Was Early Derby Choice.

If Sun Meadow succeeds in splitting Twenty Grand and Jamestown it will be almost as big an upset as the 1930 Travers, when Jim Dandy, the 100-to-1 shot, led Gallant Fox and Whichone home. The offspring of Sun Briar ruled one of the early choices to win the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, but was thrown out of training with a siege of coughing. Today he was considered no better than a 12-to-1 choice to lead the way over the gruelling 1½-mile journey.

A crowd of between 40,000 and 50,000 is expected to pack America's "Newmarket" to see the turf battle of the year. The track was still muddy today, but a bright sun and a strong wind were doing their best to put the racing strip into the best of condition. It probably will be a little slow, however, tomorrow, a factor that many horsemen say favors Jamestown.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

KLAUS JERGEN KURCK speaks German and can not understand English. His brother Alfred speaks English but no German. Consequently, neither can understand what the other says. Klaus recently came to the United States from Germany, where he had lived since babyhood. Brother Alfred was brought to the United States several years ago when very young and consequently his language is English. The two boys were recently reunited in New Orleans, La.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Washington Park Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 12.—Completing the third week of its 30-day meeting, the Washington Park Association has arranged a brilliant program for the week-end patrons. Juveniles will hold the center of attraction in the Thomas Curran Memorial Handicap, which features the card. This event which attracted a list of sixteen youngsters, should produce the leading juvenile of the year in this section. The headliner carries an added purse value of $5,000 and will be decided over the 5½ furlong route.

Supporting the main event, will be the Edgewater Beach Hotel purse, which attracted eight sterling 3-year-old and up sprinters, to contest the $1,600 award in the 6 furlongs of the fourth number.

In the feature, fifth on the card ADOBE POST, smart youngster in the Knebelkamp and Morris establishment, has displayed consistent form in his recent efforts and is selected to annex the stake. This Cherokee gelding has demonstrated his brilliant speed over a fast strip and with 119 pounds should carry his impost to victory. Several of the remaining contestants are closely matched but A. P. Elleteri's PROTEUS, despite his heavy impost of 125 pounds, is favored to force the pace. This fast-stepping son of Infinite holds a slight edge over the Leiter entry of EASTER TIME and BAND TIME, two promising youngsters. TELLICO, from the Van Meter and Carruthers stable is an outside possibility.

E. F. Pritchard's clever TANNERY is favored to lead his seven opponents to the wire in the 6-furlong dash of the secondary feature. This strapping son of Ballot—Blemished is a fast breaker and should carry his speed to victory over the short distance. BROWN WISDOM, from the W. E. Reichart string, highly regarded sprinter last year, appeared a trifle short in his last effort but with that race as a conditioner he should force the pace. SATIN SPAR has shown improvement in recent outings and is given the show call.

FIRST RACE—The opening event will bring out a field of twenty maiden 2-year-olds to match strides over the 5½ furlong distance. GALAFLIGHT showed speed in his last effort after his dismal race in his debut and should outfoot this group of nonwinners. THE WHIG turned in a brilliant effort to finish second to Easter Time and figures to go as well here. LOJO has trained briskly and appears best of the others for the show award.

SECOND RACE—Seventeen fleet speedsters will contest the 6-furlong dash of the second number, which is fashioned for 3-year-olds and upward. SUPREME SWEET turned in an impressive victory in her Chicago debut and with that effort to recommend her, the daughter of High Time figures to repeat against this field. NOSTAW was overmatched last start but in this company appears admirably placed. The Miss Watson colorbearer should furnish the opposition. C. V. Whitney's CHIMNEY SWEEP is consistent and on his best effort should prove dangerous.

THIRD RACE—A limit list of 3-year-olds and upward claimers will face the barrier in the 1-mile gallop of the third event. BEE A WEE, from the E. R. Bradley string is fancied to show the way to this large group. The Black Tony filly is nicely suited by the conditions and chief opposition should come from C. H. Trotter's OUTBURST. This clever performer turned in a splendid effort behind Dark Sea last start and should force the pace. RACKETEER is erratic but must be conceded a money chance of his best effort.

SIXTH RACE—Only six platers will parade in the sixth heat which will be decided over the mile and a sixteenth route. BOB ROGERS, from the Jones Stock Farm, did not like the heavy going last start but should gallop to an easy victory over his five rivals. CAMP PRINCE is dropping down here and may upset the calculations. TELA has turned in some fast trials and is the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE—In the final event which is fashioned for the old horses in training, GRIFF W. is favored over this field which will be dispatched over the mile and an eighth route. BLANC SEING appears the runner-up, with SCARLET BRIGADE as the show possibility.

RED CROSS NINE WINS.

Tommy Thompson's Red Cross team of St. Elizabeths Hospital added another victory to its unbroken string yesterday when, led by Old Rube Clark, it defeated the State Department nine, 6 to 5. Barno turned in a ment ine, 6 to 3, Barno turned in a Cross.

GRAYS MEET DEL RAY.

The Chevy Chase Grays will entertain the Del Ray Athletic Club, of Alexandria, today at 3 p. m., on the Chevy Chase diamond. The contest will be in preparation for the big game tomorow with the Takoma Tigers on the same diamond.

CREWS WORK HARD FOR REGATTA

Illness Hits Columbia and M. I. T. Boats at Poughkeepsie.

POUGHKEEPIE, N. Y., June 12 (A. P.—Hard work was the menu for the nine college navies on the Hudson today, but illness made itself felt in two varsity combinations and caused added worries for Coach Dick Glendon, jr., of Columbia, and Coach Haines, of Massachusetts Tech.

Macrae Sykes, sophomore stroke of Columbia, was ashore with stomach trouble, but was said to be recovering rapidly. Richardson, Tech's stroke, battled a heavy cold through the day's workout.

While Navy and Wisconsin waited in quarters until the tide changed, all the other coaches mustered their regular combinations and sent them over various distances, fighting a rising northeaster. Tech went up river to practice starts, while Columbia had a 3-mile pull with Wagner at stroke.

Huskies' Condition Uncertain.

Cornell went south toward Milton for a spin and Washington went down to Cornell's float and back. Pennsylvania and Syracuse worked out on the upper reaches of the river. California covered the distance from the 2-mile mark to the finish and callied it a morning.

Coach Ulbrickson, of Washington, expressed doubt concerning the condition of his oarsmen and indicated he would have no time trials before Tuesday's big test unless water conditions were unusually favorable.

Giants Pound Pirate Pitchers to Win, 8 to 2

Pittsburgh, June 12 (A.P.).—The New York Giants continued to pound Pittsburgh pitching today and made it two out of three over the Pirates with an 8 to 2 victory. The Giants piled up fourteen hits off three Pirate hurlers.

Pittsburgh started fast against Fred Fitzsimmons, scoring two runs in the first inning but Lindstrom dampened the rally with a fine catch of Bennett's drive against the right field wall and Fitzsimmons pitched shutout ball for the rest of the game. He allowed only six hits.

The Giants drove Remy Kremer from the mound in the third inning after scoring three runs in the second to take the lead. The Pirates supported their pitchers poorly, making four errors.

MISS WALKER, MRS. MARTINEZ LOOM AS NET FAVORITES

Women Enter Semifinal Round

Miss Ryan Surprises by Defeating Miss Pinette, 6-1, 6-0.

Mrs. Miller Advances in League Tourney by Default.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE more genteel members of the local tennis racquet brandished real ability on the courts at Sixteenth and Kennedy yesterday as play in the annual Women's District Tennis League tournament advanced to the semifinal round in singles and to the third round in doubles. And it became increasingly evident that Mrs. Ruth Martinez would clash with Miss Frances Walker Sunday afternoon in the final of the event.

Mrs. Martinez, driving with a consistency which gave certain basic resemblance of a practice wall, successfully thwarted the challenge of Sara Moore in the feature quarter-final round match yesterday, keeping the ball in bounds at all odds and displaying, withal, a measure of speed and placement. The match went by the margin of 6—2, 6—0. Miss Moore's only hope being her speed of shot, but that proved a boomerang in that she committed the lion's share of the errors.

Miss Walker Easy Victor.

Frances Walker turned back Edith McKelvey in straight sets, taking the first at 6—2 and the last at 6—1. Her sliding, well-angled shots presented too much of a problem for the girl who displayed her best tennis to date in gaining the quarter-final round. Running her opponent from side to side, Miss Walker won by superior speed, placement and fortitude in keeping the ball in play.

One of the suprises of the day was the manner in which Mary Ryan, heretofore listed in the realms of the also rans, gained the semifinal round bracket by a 6—1, 6—0 victory over Mattie Pinette, who, in the round before had eliminated Betty Cochran, one of the best of the younger crop of lady tennis players hereabout.

The fourth semifinalist entered the picture without the trouble of taking the courts, Mrs. Dorette Miller winning over Mrs. Lee D. Butler by default, when the latter was called out of town.

The feature doubles match of the day saw Mrs. Holmes and her youthful partner, Marywade Moses, defeat Ann Ebbeson and Bernice Reed 6—4, 3—6, 9—7, after having match point against them at 7—6 in the last set. The last point was played long after the street lamps had begun to cast an anemic glow over the region in question.

It remained for the consolation singles to present the item of courtwide interest yesterday. In the second round there was staged a lively combat between Marywade Moses and Miss Maude Sewall, bevisored, bespectacled and besteel-racqueted veteran of the local courts, who is just 40 years older than Miss Moses, to whom she lost, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Miss Sewall, who has played in the Women's District League since its instigation in 1914, displayed all of her old-time steadiness in taking the first set, and all but took the second set from the girl, who was making backhand drives with a rattle when her opponent was playing daily in a clique which included Miss Aida Doyle, Eva Baker, Connie and "Ral" Doyle.

The match lasted 1 hour and 50 minutes, and Miss Sewall was going strong when Miss Moses put away the final point.

Today's draw brings together Mrs. Martinez and Mrs. Miller, at 3 o'clock, and Miss Walker and Miss Ryan an hour later.

Quantico Marines Beat Naval Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., June 12.—The Quantico Marines defeated the Naval Hospital nine of Washington today at Quantico, 12 to 8. The outstanding hitter of the game was Surrett, who hit a homer with the bases loaded, bringing the Marines far into the lead early in the game. The leading hitter for the Naval Hospital was Harnsberger, who collected four for four, bringing in two runs. Bridges was the home run hitter for the opposing team.

The Marines have played 26 games this season and have lost but three. Couch showed his old form again today until the eighth inning, when McWilliams, a newcomer to the team, was put in. He looks like a comer.

single putt for a 4. Howell, on the green with his second, lost the hole by taking three putts, and Pitt became 1 up with three to play. The sixteenth and seventeenth were halved in pars. On the final hole Howell was not home with his second shot, and Pitt won easily with a par 4. Pitt's medal score of 75 was all the more creditable because he had a disastrous 7 on the fifth hole. NEW YORK U. TRACK CAPTAINS

New York, June 12 (U.P.).—Howard R. Tick, of Easton, Pa., and Fred Pumphrey, of Jamaica, N. Y., were elected today to captain New York University's outdoor and indoor track teams, respectively, during the 1932 season. Tick represented New York University this year in the hurdles and field events, with Pumphrey competing in the half mile and relays.

JIM LONDOS WINS.

Philadelphia, June 12 (A.P.).—Jim Londos, Greek claimant of the world championship wrestling title, tonight successfuly defended it against attacks of Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football captain. Londos threw his opponent in 1 hour 2 minutes 30 seconds with a body slam and head lock. Londos weighed 200; McMillen, 216.

The bout was held in the Philadelphia National League Baseball Park.

ENID WILSON NEW BRITISH CHAMPION

21-Year-Older Beats Miss Morgan in Golf Final.

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland, June 12 (A.P.).—Miss Enid Wilson, 21-year-old golf champion of England, today became champion of the British Isles, winning decisively in the finals of the British ladies' golf championship from Miss Wanda Morgan, of Westgate-on-Sea, 7 up and 6 to play.

With the big silver cup, presented to her by James McNeill governor general of the Irish Free State, in her arms Miss Wilson turned her eyes and her thoughts toward the United States and Canada and new golfing worlds to conquer.

Victory Nets U. S. Trip From Father.

Her father promised her either an automobile or a trip to America if she won the cup and she chose the trip. She plans to compete in both the United States and Canadian championships.

The ultimate one-sided outcome of today's final match was unexpected even after the first 18 holes had been played. Miss Morgan, comparatively inexperienced in tournament play, had given Miss Wilson all the competition she wanted on those first eighteen. Miss Wilson had to sink a long one on the eighteenth green to keep her lead on the first round.

Starting out the second round, however, Miss Wilson soon ran up a commanding lead and at the twenty-seventh hole turn was 5 up running out the match by winning two of the next three holes.

NO. 1 JUNIORS BEATEN IN DOUBLES

Wash. Grove Pair Rout Daly-Willis in Semifinals.

THE biggest upset of the District junior tennis tournament in general was scored yesterday afternoon when Al Perkins and Mason DeLand, two youths whose tennis heretofore has only been on display to the natives of Washington Grove, Md., downed the No. 1 seeded doubles team of Charles Daly and Ricky Willis, 6—2, 6—2, in the semifinal round of the tourney's doubles.

Today the upset engineers will clash with Gilbert Hunt and Nathan Ritzenberg in the final round of the tournament at 10 o'clock this morning on the courts at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets.

In routing the highly favored team of Daly and Willis yesterday, Perkins and DeLand set about the task in a fashion far removed from the expected manner of underdogs. They took the net and volleyed into victory in an aggressive, confident way, taking chances and capitalizing heavily on the effects both Daly and Willis showed of their five-set singles match of the day before.

If Perkins and DeLand can maintain their caliber of game, it is likely that they will walk over the youthful combination of Hunt and Ritzenberg this morning. The match will be played for the best two out of three sets.

Armour, Home With British Title, Looks to U. S. Open

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, June 12 (A.P.).—Tommy Armour, open champion of Great Britain and Canada, king of America's professional golfers, returned today from his latest triumph overseas, keen and eager to tackle the one great world left for him to conquer this year—the American Open.

You never could tell, as the Black Scot of Edinburgh held the British open title cup in the hollow of his left arm while photographers posed him on the deck of the Aquitania, that this arm was shattered by machine gun bullets during the World War. There was no sign, as he squinted into the talking picture cameras and told how it felt to be Bobby Jones' successor as Britain's golfing ruler, that he was blinded in one eye by the same leaden hail.

Armour Says He Was Lucky.

"I was lucky to win," he said, his lean, dark face smiling. "It wasn't that I took too few strokes but that the rest of the boys took too many. Any one must be lucky to win a major tournament. I'll do everything I can to make the luck hold at Toledo next month."

Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, like Armour, former American Open champions, came back on the Aquitania with him, but their versions of the championship play were somewhat different.

"It was the gamest exhibition of golf I ever saw," said the chunky Sarazen. "On those terrible final three holes at Carnoustie he refused to bog down. He got his pars where the rest of us threw away our chances. He set up his score for us to shoot at and we all had a chance to beat him. But none of us did."

Mrs. Armour, who saw the tournament along with Farrell's mother and Sarazen's wife, added another bit to the picture.

"The last hour and a half, when a half dozen players had a chance to beat Tommy, was pure agony," she said. "He hid away in the hotel and I brought him reports. It was terrible to see them use up all those strokes on the last three holes, but somehow I couldn't exactly cry about it."

Believe New Ball An Improvement.

Once the subject veered away from the tournament itself, Tommy had several interesting things to say. He believes the new ball now in use here is better than the old one, because it sits up better in the fairway, although he admits this is no help to the ordinary player who lacks fine control of his clubs. He thinks the new ball will not hurt the scoring in the American open and he believes the British Ryder Cup team will give the American pros a stiff battle at Columbus. Gene Sarazen says just the opposite. Both agree that Scotland's courses are the most severe they've ever seen.

Jurado Thought He Won Title After Final Putt

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The explanation of how Jose Jurado, Argentine professional, managed to fritter away a four-stroke lead in the last nine of the British open championship and wind up second to Tommy Armour, was brought into port on the Aquitania by Gene Sarazen today.

The South American is of such a volatile type his friends do not dare tell him his standing in the course of a tournament round for fear the information will affect his play, Gene said. Jose afterward told him the story this way.

"I am leading by four strokes, play like a sheep. They don't tell me my score. I sink my last putt. There is no applause. I am surprised. What's the matter? I am the champion! Maybe I am unpopular victory. I am sad. Then they tell me I am not champion. Then I am very sad."

Mrs. Haynes Eliminated In Dixie Golf Title Tourney

Bows to Mrs. Dodge in Round Before Semifinal; Mrs. Lake, Mrs. Reymond and Mrs. Solomon Other Winners.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., June 12 (A.P.).—Two former Dixie champions from New Orleans, Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake and Mrs. Ruth Reymond, today led a quartet of golfers into the semifinals of the Southern women's championship here and were ranked as favorites to meet in the titular match Sunday.

Playing the same fine consistent golf that has characterized her game throughout the tournament, Mrs. Lake eliminated Mrs. Boyd Morrow, of Baltimore, in the quarter-finals today, 5 and 3, while Mrs. Reymond downed Mrs. Jean Jones, former Virginia champion, from Richmond, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Haynes Falters After Leading, 3 Up.

In tomorrow's 18-hole semifinals, Mrs. Lake engages Mrs. Harry Dodge, Florida State champion, from Jacksonville, who today defeated Mrs. J. Marion Haynes, Washington, 3 and 1. Mrs. Reymond meets Mrs. Leon Solomon, Memphis, who beat Mrs. Carl Hess, Birmingham, one up.

Matching par on every hole of the out nine, except the fifth where she was three over with a seven, Mrs. Lake rounded the turn five up on Mrs. Morrow, five times Maryland title holder. Mrs. Morrow won two and halved two holes on the back side, but the match ended on the short fifteenth.

Mrs. Dodge, who yesterday shot the low round of the tournament to overwhelm the defending champion, Mrs. David Gaut, of Memphis, today assumed the giant killer role against Mrs. Haynes. Three down through the sixth hole, Mrs. Dodge squared matters at the halfway mark after a great comeback, and then won three in a row starting with the eleventh. Mrs. Haynes, several times District of Columbia champion, sank a 12-foot putt on the sixteenth to stay in the battle, but Mrs. Dodge's par four on the seventeenth was good enough to win, as Mrs. Haynes' second was trapped and she picked up after failing to come out safely.

Mrs. Reymond Extended By Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Raymond, playing above her usual good game, had a close encounter with Mrs. Jones. She rounded the turn one up and then won eleventh and thirteenth to go three up. Mrs. Jones won the fourteenth and halved the fifteenth, but her six on the sixteenth was one above Mrs. Raymond's par.

Mrs. Solomon, Memphis, lone representative to win back Mrs. Gaut's championship, barely survived her match with Mrs. Hess, winning one up on the eighteenth after she laid Mrs. Hess a stymie. She was one up through the ninth, with a deuce on this hole. Mrs. Hess became even again by winning the seventeenth, but failed to hop Mrs. Solomon's stymie on the last green.

15 Washington Golfers Try Out Loudoun Course

A party of fifteen golfers yesterday accepted the invitation of the Loudoun County Country Club at Purcellville, Va., to play on the club's golf course. A tournament followed a luncheon served by the Ladies Library Association. Dr. L. T. Hopkins won low gross with 82 and E. F. Walsh was the low net winner with 87—16—71.

PRINCETON COACH RESIGNS.

Princeton, N. J., June 12 (A.P.).—The resignation of Chuck Logg, varsity and freshman crew coach, was accepted at a meeting of the board of athletic control of Princeton University today. Gordon G. Sikes, '16, coach of the 150-pound crew, was named acting coach. Logg had been crew coach at Princeton since 1925.

Princeton already has closed its 1931 season without winning a race.

HARVARD BEATS HOSEI.

Cambridge, Mass., June 12 (U.P.).—Hosei University, of Japan, engaged in a baseball series with teams of American colleges, was defeated by Harvard University here today. The score was 2 to 1. Tomorrow the Japanese nine will meet Holy Cross at Worcester in its last game in the United States.

HIGH POINT GETS SINGTON.

Charlotte, N. C., June 12 (A.P.).—Freddie Sington, all-American football tackle at Alabama last season, today was sent here by the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern Association, to join the High Point Piedmont League Club.

Sington is an outfielder. He will be freshman coach at Duke University next fall.

HOLDS JOB BUT A DAY.

Richmond, Va., June 12 (A.P.).—Ray Ryan, appointed yesterday as manager of the Richmond Eastern League Club, today resigned and Bobbie Murray, second baseman, was named as playing manager.

Ryan said he resigned to avoid criticism of Charles A. Somma, who recently purchased the club franchise. Somma yesterday appointed Ryan as manager after releasing Cy Williams, announcing that he hoped a change in managers would help raise the local club from its cellar position.

TWO HILLTOP COACHES RESIGN

Murphy and Colrick to Leave Posts at Georgetown.

TWO more changes in the staff of athletic coaches at Georgetown University were announced last night, following by two days the appointment of Jimmy Mulligan to succeed John D. O'Reilly as track coach. The latest revelations were that Tom Murphy, freshman football coach, has resigned and that John Colrick, head basket ball and baseball coach, has given up those assignments in preference to making a start in the brokerage business in New York.

While Murphy has definitely severed his connections at the school, Colrick will not do so until the conclusion of the 1931 football season, it was stated. Colrick will serve as assistant to Head Coach Tommy Mills throughout the next gridiron season.

As yet the Hilltop authorities have taken no steps to secure new basket ball and baseball mentors, although it was stated last night that a coach for the court position could be signed shortly.

Kerjis May Succeed Murphy.

Murphy's post as freshman mentor may be filled by Frank Kerjis, who joined the staff this spring as his assistant. Murphy, it is believed, will enter some business in his home town of Bridgeport, Conn.

Colrick and Murphy came to Georgetown from Notre Dame in the winter of 1930, shortly following the signing of Head Coach Mills. At Notre Dame they had played three years on the football teams of the late Knute Rockne. Colrick was an all-round star, having performed regularly for the Irish in basket ball and baseball as well as football.

In his first attempt at coaching basket ball and baseball, Colrick enjoyed fair success during the last academic year. The Hilltop lost a majority of its court games, but balanced the scales with a brilliant diamond campaign.

Colrick, as in 1930, will tutor the ends of the Georgetown football squad this fall. Two other assistants for Mills, to replace Murphy and Clipper Smith, who resigned last winter to take the helm at North Carolina State, probably will be appointed this month.

BITTER FIGHT LOOMS ON RAIL RATE RAISE

Shippers and Farmers Are Expected to Contest Roads' Request.

(United Press.)

An economic battle comparable perhaps in scope and bitterness with the Hawley-Smoot tariff controversy is expected to result from the filing next week of the railroad's request from authority to increase all freight rates by 15 per cent.

The Interstate Commerce Commission expects to give the railroad men full opportunity to present their argument, on behalf of themselves, their stockholders, and the effect of rail earnings upon business in general.

But shippers and farmers through their organizations are expected to train their big guns of argument against the proposal, mostly on the argument that higher rates will increase tremendously the cost of living everywhere, and strike especially hard at their own businesses.

Estimate 10 Per Cent Average Raise.

As in the tariff fight, the consumer, who pays the tax eventually, will have only a few small voices lifted for him. About $400,000,000 a year in rail revenues are involved in the fight.

A straight 15 per cent increase would bring in an amount much larger than this, but the rail men have said they will not increase all rates by the maximum, and some not at all. They estimate the increase will average 10 per cent. If they get the authority they ask, rates probably will be increased on long-haul large-bulk commodities which trucks can not carry in competition with steam trains.

Instead of the 531 senators and representatives who decided the tariff fight, eleven commissioners will rule on this great economic struggle. Commission opinion is that the case will be one of the most important of the decade, and arrangements are expected to be made for distributing the members' vacations so that a majority can be here most of the summer for the hearings. All the commissioners probably will participate in the final ruling if there is a close division of opinion.

Will Expedite Action.

The railroads in asking for a general authorization, instead of filing a complete set of schedules, will avoid the necessity of a long series of specific hearings on various commodities. This will expedite the action considerably, it is expected, but it is not likely that if the authorization is granted, any of the rates could be made effective befor autumn.

Announcment of the mminent filing of the railroads' petition—probably next Thursday—stimulated speculation as to what has happened to the great four-system Eastern merger plan announced by President Hoover several months ago. "Minor details" were said to be delaying its submission to the commission. Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, powerful in rail legislation, attacked it. So far Couzens has not taken sides on the rate-increase plan.

The strong railroad labor movement, which has through its publication expressed great fear of wage cuts, is expected to remain quiet in the rate increase plan. Many rail men view rate inncreases as an alternative to wage cutts.

Fruit Men Fight Proposal.

Organized fruit and vegetable men already have opened fire on the rate proposal, charging it is as consumers' tax that will operate further to decrease the farmer's return. They assert that railroads now are getting 30 to 50 cents out of every dollar the farmer gets for his products—in the case of watermelons, the railroads get $1.34 for every $1 paid to the farmer.

Great questions of economic policy are involved; whether rail rates should be lifted at a time when other services and commodities are dropping rapidly in price, whether such an increase would stimulate business and prices, whether the farmers would be hurt or helped in the long run; whether the Nation's buying power would be increased or decreased.

Hearings Will Start Soon.

The hearings are expected to start within a few weeks, likely during July.

Then eleven men will sit in secret session to decide the issue. The Hawley-Smoot tariff, under open discussion by Congress and everyone else, took 17 months to complete. But a decision in this case, due to the power of Congress settled upon the commission by law, fact-finding methods, and its compactness, is likely within a few months.

Before snow falls a mimeographed statement announcing the ruling will be made public.

Failure to Pay Alimony Charged to Husband

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday signed an order requiring Cyril Dean Gallagher, of Sixteenth street near Euclid street northwest, to appear in the District Supreme Court and show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for his failure to pay to his wife, Mrs. Louise Gallagher, alimony as directed.

Mrs. Gallagher told the court that her husband was $2,000 in arrears in his payments to her. Gallagher had been directed to pay $100 a month.

Wife Sued for Divorce Denies Nagging Charge

Mrs. Justine Laura Lomedico, of Newton street near Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday filed an answer to her husband's suit for a limited divorce, denying that she had nagged him or had quarreled with him.

On the contrary, Mrs. Lomedico says, her husband, Frank Joseph Lomedico deserted her April 23, and has refused to support her.

Teacher Struck by Auto.

Miss Edith Davis, teacher at Kingsman School, and daughter of Detective Sergt. Eugene Davis, of the police auto squad, was knocked down by an auto late yesterday while crossing the street to enter her home at 1333 Maryland avenue northeast. Miss Davis was treated for concussion of the brain and contusions of face and body. According to police, the machine was operated by Hyman Galler, of Quincy street near Seventh northwest.

Trio Unhurt as Plane Upsets.

A gust of wind upset a Standard Oil monoplane piloted by Lieut. H. H. White, with two passengers aboard, at the Washington-Hoover Airport yesterday, partly tearing away one of the wings and damaging the landing gear. Lieut. White, who was coming in from Newark, N. J., managed to halt the ship right side up without injuries to passengers or himself.

PHYSICIANS DISCUSS SURGICAL HOT KNIFE

Instrument Declared Deadly to Cancer Cells; Colds and Indigestion Traced.

Philadelphia, June 12 (A.P.).—A "hot knife" for surgery, progress in a cure for congenital dislocation of the hip, and tracing of colds and indigestion to strange causes were some of the subjects discussed at the closing session of the annual convention of the American Medical Association today.

The "hot knife" is not so warm to the touch—barely 120 degrees Fahrenheit—but it is deadly to cancer cells. It is eaqually deadly to all rapidly growing cells, but is not so lethal for the great mass of normal cells which have passed their growth period.

Thirty-four cases of digestive disturbances traced to the thyroid gland were reported by Dr. J. Russell Verbrycke, jr., of Washington, D. C.

He considered them remarkable because the thyroid in each case apparently was normal. The fact that the thyroids were not functioning properly was discovered through use of one of the most delicately balanced tests of science, measurement of the basal metabolism rate, which means the amount of energy expended by the body when at rest.

A possibility that the carriers of typhoid fever will be reduced to the vanishing point in the next quarter of century was predicted by Dr. James G. Cumming, Washingon, D. C.

12,300 Employed On District Jobs

Gotwals Figures Disclose Huge Force Working on Building Projects.

The District engineering department is doing much to relieve unemployment in Washington, according to figures revealed yesterday by Maj. John C. Gotwals, engineer commissioner. It is, in fact, one of the largest employers in the District.

Both directly and through contracts the District engineering department is providing work for 12,300 day laborers and skilled workmen. Of this number 3,300 are employed by the engineering department, while 9,000 are hired by contractors on District projects. All, however, are paid by District funds.

This is ten times the number of per diem workers being employed at present by the Federal Government in the District, according to figures of the Supervising Architect's office of the Treasury Department. The Commerce Department project provides work for 700; the Department of Agriculture extension and power plant employs 400 more; while an additional 100 are working on miscellaneous projects.

Girl, 5, Injured in Crash.

A collision between an Army truck from Fort Myer and a private automobile at Twelfth and D streets southwest yesterday, brought slight injuries to Wanda Lee Womeldorph, 5 years old, of Opequon, Va. The girl was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment of a cut over her eye and shock.

Pedestrian Hit by Auto.

Running to catch a street car at Eighth and H streets northeast late yesterday, Charles Peterson, 70, of 1149 Fourth street northeast, was struck by an auto and painfully injured. Removed to Casualty Hospital, he was found to have a fractured rib and numerous bruises about the body.

FINAL PLANS SHAPED IN BIG RAIL MERGER

Early Action by I. C. C. to Be Sought to Allow Capital Expenditures.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Final details of the plan for merger of Eastern railroads into four great systems were discussed today at a meeting of railroad executives in the offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

It is understood in railroad circles that early action will be sought on the proposal by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a measure that would release capital expenditure now held up by uncertainty over merger plans as well as permitting operating economies which would strengthen railway credit. It was reported the petition may be filed with the commission by the first of July.

It was reported also that no substantial change has been made in the tentative outline of the four systems announced last December, when success climaxed years of effort to reach an agreement. The systems would be headed by the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and the Van Sweringen lines.

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania; Patrick E. Crowley, president, New York Central; J. J. Bernet, president, Chesapeake & Ohio, and O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, attended the conference. It was a continuation of conversations begun yesterday prior to the meeting of railroad presidents of East, South and West to agree upon a petition for an increase in freight rates.

Allocation of short lines and certain terminal rights were the subject of the meetings this week.

One of the stumbling blocks to the consummation of merger plans has been the question of allowing the Pennsylvania trackage rights over the Nickel Plate between Ashtabula, Ohio, and Brocton. It was submitted to a board of arbitration and a report is expected within a few days. The New York Central has protested against the granting of such rights, but it was currently reported in railroad circles that its protest probably would be overruled.

Shapiro Trial Due To Reopen Monday

Government Has Score of Witnesses to Call in Fraud Hearing.

The trial of Jacob B. Shapiro, real estate operator, will be resumed in District Supreme Court Monday morning, after a three-day recess. Shapiro is being tried on an indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud.

Assistant United States Attorney John T. Fihelly, prosecuting the case for the Government, has a score or more witnesses yet to be heard. Alvin Newmyer, attorney for Mr. Shapiro, has not indicated how many witnesses he expects to call.

The existence of trusts on property that was bought without those trusts being disclosed to the purchasers is the basis for the charge against Shapiro. The defense contends that these trusts, which, in effect, constituted a third trust, were paid off by the real estate dealer and that none of the home purchasers lost any money.

FAMOUS SEER
THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the war and tells it all. Just what your life has been. Just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay. Copyright Apr. 1931

CLERK SAVES OWENS FROM CHAIR AS JURY CONFUSES VERDICTS

Sentence on Second-Degree Murder Conviction to Be Passed Friday.

QUESTION TO FOREMAN REVERSES DECISIONS

Jurors' First Report May Have Meant Death for Lane's Slayer.

Garry Ralph Owens, convicted slayer of James H. Lane, was saved from possible capital punishment yesterday through the eagerness of the District Supreme Court clerk to assist a jury in properly rendering its judgment. The net result is that Owens faces a penalty of from twenty years to life upon a conviction of second degree murder.

The jury reported to Justice Peyton Gordon at 10:30 a. m. The foreman reported "Not guilty!" as to the first count in the indictment, and "Guilty!" as to the second. The first count carried sufficient leeway for the jury to render a second degree verdict, whereas the second count was first degree murder.

It was apparent that the jury was somewhat confused about the meaning of its verdict and Justice Peyton Gordon's court clerk asked: "You mean first degree murder or second degree murder.

The foreman promptly replied "Second degree murder," whereas the announced judgment was first degree murder.

Confusion Reigns in Court.

Confusion reigned in the courtroom. Neither James A. O'Shea nor John H. Burnett, attorneys for Owens, nor William H. Collins, prosecutor, desired to poll the jury, and the count was allowed to stand at second degree murder. A poll, with a resultant finding of guilty as to the second count, might have upset the finding. Attorneys for both sides feared possible entanglements that might throw the case out and cause a retrial.

Owens accepted the verdict in silence, which he maintained until he was in the courthouse detention room. Then he spoke only as various members of his family and his wife visited him.

The killing of which Owens was convicted left four small children and their mother fatherless and husbandless. Lane was a motorman-conductor on a one-man street car operating in and out of Congress Heights. On the night of March 18, shortly after he left the end of the line on Nichols avenue, his car was stopped and Lane shot him in the abdomen.

Will Be Sentenced Friday.

He died four days later. Owens was arrested twice, the last time on the strength of a story told police by his nephew, Charles Owens, also under indictment for the slaying. Charles was granted a severance from Garry and will be tried later.

Charles said he and Garry went out together, and that Garry stopped the street car with the intention of holding up the motorman. As Charles turned his head, he said, a shot rang out, and he glanced backward. He saw Lane staggering from his car, and Garry and he ran back to a house in Bungalotown, where they had been that evening earlier.

The defense claimed an alibi for both Garry and Charles. Many witnesses were produced to support the contention that neither Garry nor Charles could have been at the scene of the crime. Garry will be sentenced Friday.

Two Students Die In Car Collision

Third Lynchburg Youth Is Injured; Other Driver Is Not Charged.

Lovingston, Va., June 12 (A.P.).—Estes Howard, University of Virginia student, and Garland Vaughan, jr., who had just been graduated at Washington and Lee University, were fatally injured last night in an automobile collision on the State highway between Lovingston and Colleen. Ben Belitt, University of Virginia student, was injured and taken to the University Hospital at Charlottesville. All three were residents of Lynchburg.

The three young men were riding in a roadster that collided with a sedan driven by John Wheeler, jr., of Arrington, who was not injured. The students' car turned over.

Vaughan died en route to a hospital while Howard died at the University Hospital this morning. The extent of Belitt's injuries had not been ascertained. No charge had been placed against Wheeler today. An investigation of the accident was pending.

Herd Honors Given To Black Oak Farm

Loudoun County Ratings for May Are Announced by Association.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., June 12.—The Loudoun County Cow Testing Association reports that of 823 cows tested in group one during the past month, 61 were dry. The Black Oak Farm herd again led with an average of 926 pounds of milk and 40.3 pounds of butter fat. A grade Holstein, owned by W. T. Brown, was high cow, producing 1,680 pounds of milk containing 82.3 pounds of butterfat.

Of 514 cows tested in group two, 44 were dry. High herd honors for the month went to Myers Bros. with an average production of 954 pounds of milk and 43.3 pounds of fat.

There were 529 cows tested in group three, of which 65 were dry. The average production was 699 pounds of milk and 29.6 pounds of butterfat.

NEW SPOTTED FEVER CASE IS DISCOVERED

Second Sufferer Is Found in Prince Georges County, Health Officer Says.

One new case of Rocky Mountain spotted fever has appeared in Prince Georges County, near Laurel, according to the health officer.

The fever case is the second to appear in the county, the other also originating near Laurel, when a 14-year-old boy caught the disease. Two other cases have been reported in Southern Maryland, one in Caroline County and one in Charles County. The Laurel boy was brought to a Washington hospital shortly after he became ill. The spotted fever is found in the East only in a mild form, Dr. A. B. Hooton, the health officer, said. It is transmitted by the bite of ticks and resembles typhus fever.

Alleging that he had given the premium on his insurance policy to the agent of the company before the fire which destroyed his garage at District Heights this spring, Russell M. Padgett yesterday filed suit in Prince Georges County court against the Travelers Insurance Co. and James W. Rogers, their agent.

Padgett asks $5,000, the amount of the policy which the company claims had lapsed at the time of the fire. Padgett admits that he had received notice of the lapse, but that he gave a check for the back premiums to Rogers before the blaze. Rogers, he says, overlooked turning the money into the insurance company until after the fire, when he gave the check to J. Frank Dent, another agent.

The fire last spring completely destroyed the garage, which was on the Marlboro pike at the intersection of the Suitland road. Damage was estimated at the time at about $15,000. Padgett is being represented by Attorneys Leroy Pumphrey and Ogle Marbury.

Paul E. Pugitt, of South Carolina avenue southeast near Sixth street, was fined $101 yesterday in Marlboro Police Court on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving. He paid his fine, but appealed. Frank S. Waple, whose car he was driving, was fined $5 for permitting reckless driving, and also appealed. Waple gave his address as Gault place northeast near Forty-second street.

A large number of persons arrested on traffic charges forfeited their collateral rather than stand trial. They were: Newton W. Holmes, Fifteenth street southeast near D street, $10 for reckless driving; Thomas Pinkney, Forestville, $10 for fictitious markers; Elmer T. Patton, G street northeast near Thirteenth street, $5 for reckless driving; Henry A. Stake, Massachusetts avenue northwest near Thirty-fifth street, $1 for reckless driving; Gordon Ginger, Dana place northwest near Chain Bridge road, $10 for reckless driving; Charles A. Trignor, of Florida avenue northwest near Fourth street, $5 for passing when the road was not clear; Joseph H. Cummings, of Capitol Heights, $1 for having improper licenses; Robert Lee Tatum, of Washington, $10 for reckless driving, and George King, of Oakland, Md., $10 for fictitious markers.

Haled into court on a nonsupport charge made by his wife, Olivia Hawkins, Alphonse Hawkins was ordered to pay the woman $8 per week, after the woman testified he made $18 per week.

The Park and Planning Commission has declined to change the zoning in the vicinity of Clyde L. West's barbecue stand on the Baltimore boulevard in Beltsville, and the county commissioners have refused to grant a permit to raise the stand unless the zoning is changed.

When the boulevard was widened, the entrance to West's stand was raised. The State Roads Commission attempted to raise his building to the same level, when the planning commission refused a permit on the grounds that West was in a residential area. The commissioners also refused the permit on the same grounds. The commission also refused to change the zoning, holding that it would make for "spotted" zoning along the boulevard. West has asked for a zoning change by the commissioners, but no date has been set for a hearing.

The crux of the matter lies in the fact that West's stand was established before the zoning was done and the law applied only to new construction. He was not in reach of the law until changes requiring a building permit were attempted.

The post of Chief of Police of Riverdale, formerly held by E. S. Aldridge, was abolished at the close of Aldridge's term by action of the town council. The two town bailiffs will be responsible directly to the police committee of the council.

Mayor Max Vollberg said that "no reason was necessary" for abolishing the post. Aldridge has been active in opposing the purchase of a certain type of fire engine for the town, holding that another kind is more suitable.

The abolition of the chief's office was accomplished at a special meeting held to organize the council for the coming year. The following committees were named by Mayor Vollberg: Police, W. A. Carson, D. W. Thompson, and H. H. Peck; printing, Mr. Thompson; sanitation, A. R. Bowers; lights, Mr. Peck; community sings, A. J. Kracke, jr. Mr. Carson was also appointed to take charge of the town's equipment, and the whole council was named as a committee for the abolition of obsolete ordinances.

Milton D. Campbell was reappointed as town attorney; Herbert Roby, building inspector; Mr. Peck, electrical inspector, and Dr. R. A. Bennet, health officer. Frank M. Sampson will continue as town laborer at a weekly salary of $26. Chief E. C. Stewart will continue to act as fire marshal and be in charge of the firehouse.

Messrs. Thompson and Bowers were selected to make up the budget for the next year, and Messrs. Peck and Kracke will audit the books of Harry C. Weeks, town treasurer. A condensed financial statement will be submitted to property owners in the town.

Mount Rainier has decided to install five traffic lights at the intersection of Thirty-fourth street and Rhode Island avenue, to cost $3,250. Two of the lights will be placed on Rhode Island avenue, two on Thirty-fourth street, and one on Perry street, which also enters the intersection.

One fatal accident has already taken place at the corner, which has been regarded as a danger spot ever since the extension of Rhode Island avenue diverted a part of the Baltimore boulevard traffic through the town. The installation will be made on the recommendation of the Automatic Signal Corporation, who will install the lights. They will be equipped with a fire preemptor, to stop all traffic at the corner while fire engines are in the vicinity.

The town council has also enacted an ordinance providing a fine of $25 for any person found in a room where gambling is going on, and fining any person who runs a gambling game $100. This law is seen as an effort to keep in the town any revenues from future gambling raids. In a raid made several weeks ago, some $250 went to the county, although the raid was led by the town chief of police, Eugene Plumer.

An ordinance making it unlawful for children to play on the streets was dropped when Councilman Floyd Mathias said the town should provide playgrounds for children before forcing them off the street. The council will also act as a committee to attempt to prevent the removal of the station agent at Brentwood. The town will also purchase four uniforms for the town bailiffs, it was decided. J. T. Duever has resigned from one of these offices, and B. G. Myles has taken his place. The application of A. D. Souder for a post was referred to the police commissioners.

44 Youths Qualify At Naval Academy

Medical Board to Pass on 50 to 75 Daily for New Fourth Class.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—The nucleus of the new fourth class of midshipmen at the Naval Academy was formed today with the admission of 44 youths, who were found qualified in all mental and physical examinations. More than 900 candidates passed the mental examinations held in February and April and a naval medical examining board is now conducting the physical test. Between 50 and 75 boys are to be called before the board daily.

The summer routine of drills, practical exercises and classes will get under way on Monday.

Among the first group to be admitted are the following appointees of President Hoover, most of whom are residents of Washington: Nevett B. Atkins, Warren J. Noettens, Thomas D. Cummins, Louis R. Hird, Carter B. Jennings, Henry P. Knowles, jr., Frederick A. Ramsey, jr., and Francis D. Walker, jr.

Sale of War-Time City Is Postponed

Nitro, Munitions Center, Will Go on Auction Block July 8.

Charleston, W. Va., June 12 (A.P.). Auctioning of a large portion of the town of Nitro, war-time munitions center, scheduled for today, was postponed until July 8.

The postponement was asked by the Federal Government, on behalf of which sale was ordered in a proceeding entered against the Charleston Industrial Corporation to foreclose a mortgage for $950,448.75, the unpaid balance on the sum of $8,000,000 for which the corporation purchased the town from the Government at the close of the World War. When constructed as a munitions center the town cost approximately $70,000,000.

Properties at Nitro still owned by the Charleston Industrial Corporation, and to be sold at auction, include 432 dwelling places, approximately 1,000 lots and 30 factory buildings. Okey Keadle, assistant United States attorney, said the postponement was asked to permit additional prospective bidders to attend the sale.

NOMINATIONS MADE FOR ALUMNI BOARD

Ten Managers of Virginia U. Group Will Be Named in Vote Monday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 12.—The following alumni of the University of Virginia, nominated for the board of managers of the Alumni Association, will be voted on at the annual meeting Monday morning in Madison Hall:

Forrest Hyde, '20, New York City; Richard E. Shands, '21, Washington, D. C.; Charles Churchman, '13, Staunton; John B. Jenkins, '14, Norfolk, and Bernard P. Chamberlain, Charlottesville.

The five members of the alumni fund council whose terms expired were renominated. They are: Owsley Brown, '02, Harrods Creek, Ky.; Stewart G. Christian, '06, Richmond; John P. East, '91, New York City; Arthur J. Morris, '01, Ossingning, N. Y., and John Lloyd Newcomb, '06, of the university.

Board of Visitors Members Named.

At the last meeting of the board of managers the following alumni were nominated for the list to be voted on and certified to Gov. Pollard for his selection for membership on the board of visitors: James Gordon Bohannon, '05, Petersburg; Gardner Lloyd Boothe, '93, Alexandria; Whitwell W. Coxe, '07, Roanoke; C. O'Connor Goolrick, '05, Fredericksburg; T. Gibson Hobbs, '09, Lynchburg; Brockenbrough Lamb, '08, Richmond; Virginius Randolph Shackelford, '07, Orange; William Alexander Stuart, '16, Abingdon, and R. Gray Williams, 1900, Winchester.

Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University of Alabama, will be the chief speaker Monday at the alumni luncheon to the class of 1931.

Dr. Denny, one of those mentioned as possible successor to President Edwin A. Alderman, was born in Hanover county, December 3, 1870. At Hampden-Sidney College he received the A. B. and M. A. degrees before entering the University of Virginia in 1892. While studying here he taught at old Pantops Academy, Presbyterian school, not far from Monticello, and after obtaining his Ph.D. returned to Hampden-Sidney where he taught Latin and German for three years.

At Tuscaloosa 20 Years.

In 1899 Dr. Denny went to teach Latin at Washington and Lee and became acting president two years later. In June, 1902, he was inaugurated as president and served there until January 1, 1912, when he became head of the University of Alabama. During his 20 years of service in Tuscaloosa this university has made remarkable advances.

Dr. Denny has held many important positions. He is a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching. During the World War he headed the cottonseed industry division of the U. S. Food Administration and in 1929 was appointed a member of the national advisory committee to study relations of the Federal Government to education.

By popular vote in 1925 he was named "the most distinguished professional leader of Alabama."

Annapolis High Class Of 116 Is Graduated

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 12.—Annapolis High School graduated one of its largest classes at commencement ceremonies tonight before an audience that crowded the Circle Theater. Diplomas were awarded to 116, girls outnumbering the boys by 10.

State Senator Ridgely P. Melvin, Anne Arundel County, delivered the address, and diplomas were awarded by Frank E. Munroe, president of the county board of education.

Features in Tomorrow's Post

Guam—long one of the Navy's outposts—is to be abandoned as an economy move. David Rankin Barbee, Post staff writer, goes behind the scenes at this faraway naval station to give much interesting background on the history of Guam and on the men who have seen service there. A timely and forceful article of historical value.

"The Cowboy Who Runs the Army" is the title of a story in the tabloid magazine in which the amazing rise of Secretary of War Hurley from an 11-year-old orphan to a place in the Cabinet is traced in an appealing and authentic manner.

Right in our midst there is arising a series of buildings of rare beauty, the result of a quickening in the educational and religious feeling of the Nation. A story on Catholic University of America describes this rapid growth in the magazine.

Tomorrow is Flag Day and appropriately enough there will be found in the magazine a story entitled "The Genesis of Our Flag."

Other features which make tomorrow's Post attractive in every respect are "The Counselor," who answers your questions in the tabloid magazine; "The Fall of An Old Dynasty," dealing with latest events in Spain; two splendid fiction stories chosen for their appeal to discriminating readers and all the latest news, sports and pictures.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH DIPLOMAS AWARDED

Scholarships and Special Prizes Are Presented to Graduates.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Commencement exercises of the Alexandria High School were held last night in the auditorium of the Maury School, when diplomas were awarded 69 graduates. The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. Walter J. Young, professor of education in the State Teachers College, Fredericksburg.

The invocation was by the Rev. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; presentation of awards was made by Henry T. Moncure, principal of the school, and diplomas were awarded by Urban S. Lambert, chairman of the city school board. R. C. Bowton, superintendent of the school, presided.

Miss Elizabeth Apperson, valedictorian, was presented with the Rotary Club medal for scholarship by Judge William S. Snow, club president. Miss Apperson also was awarded a scholarship in Strayer's Business College.

Kiwanis Medal Awarded.

The salutatorian, Miss Mae Thomasson, received the Kiwanis Club medal and also a scholarship in the State Teachers College, Fredericksburg.

Other scholarships awarded were Washington and Lee University, to Louis Harvey; University of Virginia, to Haywood Davis; William and Mary College, to Julian Penn, and George Washington University, to Ellsworth Bray.

Miss Josephine Painter, who was prevented from graduating by illness, but who will be graduated as soon as she is able to take the required examinations, was presented with a prize for having successfully passed the State chemical test conducted by the American Chemical Society.

Members of the corps of cadets among the graduates received certificates of completion of the military course.

List of Graduates.

The graduates follow:

Helena Elizabeth Apperson, Mary Elizabeth Angel, Louis Lynwood Armistead, Mildred Rebecca Ayres, Jean Marjorie Bladen, Harriet Franklin Butler, Louis Franklin Bohraus, Ellsworth Bray, Ida Wainwright Baggett, Frances Cline Buddin, Robert Louis Cohen, Elizabeth Dell Clinkscale, Audrey Maynard Cary, Mary Anna Cox, Margaret Louise Cunningham, Doris Celeste Dienelt, John Haywood Davis, Catherine O'Donoghue Delaney, Emma Virginia Emerson, Doris Wildt Ervin, Bernice Esther Fedder, Mary Hinton, Roberta Nevitt Hoy, Madgalen Catherine Houft, Mallory Gertrude Hufty.

One of the largest banquets held in Alexandria recently was that Thursday night in the George Mason Hotel, of the Scottish Rite Masons, marking the close of their spring reunion. The banquet was served by wives and daughters of members. Delegations from Front Royal Woodstock, Winchester, Fairfax, Harrisonburg, Strasburg and Arlington County were present, with more than 350 Masons in attendance.

Dr. Robert South Barrett warned of the "red" menace, which, he said, is spreading over Europe, and of emmissaries bringing Communist doctrines into the United States. The leadership of Mussolin over the blackshirted Fascist organization, and his "sinister influence" were referred to by Dr. Barrett in no uncertain terms, who said that Mussolini, unless stopped by the hand of fate, would be responsible for another World War. The venal politicians, the unscrupulous legislators, the officeholders and the gangsters, backed by a corrupt judiciary, he said, imperiled liberty and threatened the very lives of honest citizens. He urged the Scottish Rite Masons to stamp out this threat to liberty by the use of their power in civic affairs.

Jefferson Myer, commissioner of the United States Shipping Board, said the teachings of Masonry had been a big factor in the upbuilding of the Western States. In Oregon, his home State, he said, the educational bill sponsored by Scottish Rite Masonry was first adopted by the Legislature. Illiteracy in Oregon, he said, is practically nonexistant.

C. C. Moore, former governor of Idaho, and now commissioner general of the United States Land Office, in the principal address, paid high tribute to Masonry, telling how a band of men bound together by Masonic principles formed the vigilantes and stamped out banditry when all other methods had failed. He predicted that the recovery of the United States, and the world in general, would be slow, and that the country in the future would be run on a more conservative basis. The Russian people, he said, in time will overthrow those who hold them in bondage, but not before their practically prisonmade goods have lowered the prices in every civilized country in the world.

Judge William S. Snow of the class which had just finished the degrees, spoke on the "Impressions of the Class."

H. H. Porter, venerable master of the Washington Lodge of Perfection, welcomed the new Scottish Rite members and urged them to carry out the principles of the craft—justice and freedom. Arthur Cooke made a short talk.

A musical program was rendered by a quartette from the National Broadcasting Co.; the Scottish Rite Orchestra under the direction of Samuel Wade, and vocal solos were given by Duncan Thomson and Clarence W. Sutton.

Graduation exercises of the Xaverian Brothers School and of St. Mary's Parochial School were held Thursday night in St. Mary's Catholic Church, when the Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor of the church, addressed the graduates. A special prize of $20 in gold was given by the Fourth Degree Assembly, Knights of Columbus, for the best essay on early American history, to Linwood Barnett, and a prize of a two-year scholarship to St. Mary's Academy, given by the Catholic Daughters of America, went to Lucille Nalls.

The following graduated from the Xaverian Brothers School: Linwood Barnett, Roscoe Crawford, Esmond Davis, Otto Sidde, Harold Jackson, James Kennedy, William McKelleget, Walter Moss, Donald Moore and Eugene Zimmerman.

Those receiving diplomas from St. Mary's School were Frances Davis, Edna Magruder, Mary Louise Williams, Marie Northrop, Eleanore Cady, Gertrude O'Malley, Kathryn Ayres, Nancy Lynch, Bernedette Poole, Anna Ambrose, Lucille Nalls and Madeline McCaffrey.

The music club of the American Legion Auxiliary met yesterday morning in the George Mason Hotel, with Mrs. Albert M. Briggs as director. Next Friday the club will meet at 10:30 o'clock at the hotel and will remain for luncheon at 12 o'clock, when any member of the auxiliary is invited to be present to discuss American Legion affairs and prepare for the department convention in Clifton Forge in August. The luncheon will be a subscription affair, and reservations will be made with Mrs. Richard B. English or Mrs. George W. Roop.

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church will attend Holy Communion in a body at the 7 o'clock mass tomorrow morning. At 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening there will be a reception of new members and for old members to renew their pledges.

Disbarred Lawyer Gets Life Under Baumes Law

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Clarence C. Mason, 51, a disbarred lawyer of Harrisville, W. Va., convicted as a fourth offender, was given a life sentence in Sing Sing today by Judge Joseph E. Corrigan, in General Sessions. The sentence was imposed under the Baumes law.

In the last fifteen years Mason has been convicted of forgery in New York City, Milwaukee, Columbus and Fort Worth. Mason's last conviction was for forging the name of Thomas J. Davis, a lawyer of Harrisville, to a telegram asking that $1,000 be sent by the People's Bank of Harrisville to New York.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE BOYS BACK HOME HEAR ABOUT CALVIN'S VACATION.

(The scene is the country store of Plymouth, Vt. Some of the Former President's old cronies are sitting about the place discussing the news that Mr. Coolidge has demanded a vacation from the task of writing a daily newspaper article of 250 words.)

LEM—Somehaow it jest don't seem to make sense.

Asa—If it warn't right here in cold print I'd say it was a derned lie. Cal Coolidge hevin' t' take a rest from writin' one little three or four-inch artikul a day! It don't seem possible!

Jeptha—He never was no Hercules, I'll allow, but I woulda sworn on a stack o' Bibles he warn't so weak as all that.

Lem—It's a downright reflecksh un on Vermont, if you ask me.

Luke—That's my way o' thinkin', too. Think of a Vermont native son, raised right here in these mountains 'n' never mollycoddled, comin' out in print 'n' claimin' he's all tired out from writin' an artickul so small it ain't hardly visible to th' naked eye!

Jeptha—His old daddy would turn over in his grave at th' thought Calvin would ever hev to take a rest from a little job o' that kind. I'm glad he ain't alive to see his son publicly confess that he can't turn out a couple hundred words a day without bein' afeered o' goin all ter pieces.

Abner—It jest goes to show the softenin' influence of prosperity 'n' city life.

* * * *

LEM—I think Vermont oughter do sumpin about it if only to preserve its self-respect. I remember Cal when he had t' get up at sunrise, feed the stock, curry the hosses and do a mess of chores afore breakfast. Then he'd work all day with the hayin' in a broilin' sun without complainin'.

Obadiah—I've seen him put in twelve hours at a stretch maple sugarin' without any yellin' about a vacashun.

Abner—I never thought I'd see the day when any Plymouth boy would get all hot 'n' bothered over a little scribblin' for the newspapers.

Lem—Tain't as if he had to write a whole column with verse 'n' snappy paragraphs 'n' everything like that. Sakes alive! He don't hev to write much more than you'd find under a harness ad in a mail order house anyhow.

Obadiah—An' they tell me he gets two hundred thousand dollars a year for the stuff.

Abner—I reckon it's lookin' at them checks that wears him all out. He ain't built to take all that money without feelin' the strain.

* * * *

JEPTHA—Th' mere fact he thinks he could break down from any such trifflin' occupation jest goes to show he's gettin' false notions o' life. Fust thing you know we'll hear he's gone into a physical decline from openin' his mornin' mail.

Abner—He's all softened up, that's what.

Asa—All softened up!

Jeptha and the rest of the boys (sadly)—What a pity!

BACCALAUREATE.

"Work hard! Fight onward, dawn to dawn!
Be diligent to get ahead!"—
So says the dean; then with a yawn
Calls it a day and goes to bed.

"Life is a battle all the way;
Try not to make of it a snap!
Beware of sloth." I hear him say—
And then he goes and takes a nap.

Two Boston policemen were run over the other day by a truck loaded with prohibition pamphlets, which must have impressed them as the height of something or other.

MR. P. G. WODEHOUSE, famous author, says he spent a year in Hollywood on the pay roll of a movie concern at $2,000 a week and collected a total of $104,000 without being called on for any real work. Possibly this will be the company's first knowledge that he was in its employ.

THE YOU-DON'T-SAY-SO DEPARTMENT.

"I still love Mr. Stillman—he's a great fellow. I want to tell you that I think the world of him. But you see that's not enough to make a woman live with a man."—Mrs. Fowler McCormick.

UPPERVILLE HORSE SHOW IS THRONGED

All Classes Well Filled as Attendance Reaches 8,000 Total.

Special to The Washington Post.

Upperville, Va., June 12.—Forty-first annual exhibition of the Upperville Colt and Horse Show Association came to a close today, the most successful event in the annals of the association, both financially and as to the number and quality of entries.

This show, which was organized in 1853, is the oldest in America and always draws outstanding horses in the country. A blue ribbon is considered a hard thing to win at Upperville. Leading society and horse fanciers from New York, Philadelphia and Washington mingled with local enthusiasts of this hunting country and thronged the grandstand, the show ring, and the grounds today. It was estimated nearly 8,000 people attended.

Mrs. Cary T. Grayson entertained in her box today Mrs. Andrew Mellon, Mrs. D. C. Sands, and Miss Charlotte Noland, of Foxcroft. Mrs. J. Boardman Harriman, Washington, was also a guest of friends and Maj. and Mrs. George Patton, Washington, were in a box with Gen. and Mrs. William Mitchell. Mrs. Altemus, Philadelphia, mother of Mrs. J. H. Whitney, witnessed the show.

All Classes Well Filled.

The morning's program was devoted to thoroughbreds and ponies, the afternoon being given over mostly to hunters. All classes were exceptionally well filled, most of them having more than 30 entries each.

Maj. G. S. Patton, jr., Washington, D. C., won first in heavy and middle weight hunters, riding his mount, a chestnut gelding, Hukuku. Admiral Grayson's entry won first in the class for thoroughbred yearling fillies, the class being filled with outstanding entries. Much time was required to select the winner of the 2-year-old thoroughbred class, judges finding it hard to make a selection from the large number of excellent entries. The winner was finally announced as Mrs. D. N. Lee's Queen's Pride.

The pony jumping class attracted much attention as the juveniles piloted their mounts over the hurdles with almost faultless performance. Miss Charlotte Noland, Foxcroft, had a number of entries in this class, also Miss Bettina Belmont with her Punchinello and Black and White, and Stanley Green's Queen of Sheba. First prize went to Miss Belmont's entry, second to Oliver Filly's Pat, of New York, while Meade and Robert Palmer, of Alexandria, captured third.

Mrs. Whitney's Horse Wins.

The touch-and-out class, always a popular one with spectators, was won by Mrs. Whitney's Bowling Green, the only entry that made a clean performance. D. L. M. Allen's Rockicy took second, and Miss Julia B. Whiting's Quick Silver third.

The Brook Hill trophy, presented by W. C. Selpp, was won by Miss Julia B. Whiting's Quick Silver. Miss Mallory Davis, riding an entry of Mrs. D. C. Sands in the ladies' hunter class, was thrown at the hurdle and badly winded. Besides this there were very few spills. Judges today were: Hunters, William duPont, jr., and Henry G. Vaughan; ponies, Maj. W. M. Grimes, and thoroughbreds, C. J. Fitzgerald.

Summary of winners:

Thoroughbred sucklings—First, Anne Excellance and foal, Courtland R. Smith, The Plains; second, Loveken and foal, P. R. Drury, Boyce, Va.; third, Mary C. and foal, P. R. Drury.

Thoroughbred Brood Mares.

Thoroughbred brood mares—First, Banda, Mrs. John Hay Whitney; second, Bethany Bey, The Plains; third, Parthema, George R. Slater, Upperville.

Thoroughbred stallion—First, War Star, Ayrshire Farm, Upperville; second, Dear Herod, P. R. Drury.

Pony saddle class—12 hands and under—First, Nancy, Miss Charlotte H. Noland, Foxcroft; second, Burks, Miss Charlotte H.
